Senator Johnson and Gov. Edwards Easily Carry Detroit

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich April 6.

THE Detroit city vote complete (319 precincts out of 366 in Wayne County) in yesterday's presidential preference primary gave:

GOV. EDWARDS POLLS HEAVY VOTE

New Jersey Executive Second in Democratic Race With McAdoo, Bryan and Palmer Trailing.

By the Associated Press

DETROIT, Mich., April 6.—With nearly half of the precincts in the State tabulated, United States Senator Hiram Johnson was maintaining the lead he took last night over Major-General Leonard Wood, for the indorsement of Michigan Republicans for the presidential nomination.

One thousand two hundred thirteen precincts give for Democratic preefrence—Hoover, 13,577; Edwards, 11,407; McAdoo, 10,770; Bryan, 9,057; Palmer, 9,650.

Previous figures on 1286 precincts Hewas fourth inRLoh., ,s-nR—yes, gave Hoover 24,000 Republican votes. He was fourth in the Republican primary.

Forty out of 45 precincts in Genesee County, including the City of Flint, with but one missing precinct, give: Republican: Johnson, 3773; Hoover, 1771; Wood, 1576; Lowden, 1086.

Democratic: Hoover, 356; McAdoo, 299; Bryan, 271; Palmer, 116; Edwards, 90.

The figures tabulated this morning came from 64 of the State's 83 counties, with only a half dozen nearly complete. Returns from Kent County (Grand Rapids), and Genesee (Flint), came in slowly, only 17 of 75 precincts in Kent being in hand. Wayne County (Detroit), where Johnson showed his greatest strength, however, was nearly two-thirds complete. The figures for 215 precincts out of 366 in Wayne County, gave: Johnson 40,672; Wood, 9880.

Wood's greatest strength on the face of the incomplete returns seemingly was in the Upper Peninsula. There 125 precincts out of 257 gave him 10,742, Johnson, 8011, and Lowden, 4611.

Counting of the ballots cast on important local issues in many of the larger cities, delayed the returns on the primary, the early figures bore out predictions that the rural vote would be materially curtailed by the Easter storm.

6 1-4-CENT FARE TO BE ASKED FOR BY CITY

Motion for Rehearing Before State Commission Questions Figures for Two Funds.

The city's motion for a rehearing on street car fare rates was drawn up by Associate City Counselor Hamilton today and will be forwarded at once to the State Public Service Commission at Jefferson City, which will be asked to establish a fare at a rate not higher than four adult tickets for 25 cents, as against the recently authorized reduced rate of 7 cents.

In the motion it is alleged that the commission's allowance of 6 per cent of the company's gross revenue for injury and damage reserve is excessive, as it permits the company to set aside for this purpose $1,300,000 annually, though the amount actually expended for these purposes never exceeds $700,000 a year.

The motion also objects to the setting aside of $1,500,000 a year for the depreciation reserve and says that $900,000 a year would be sufficient.

It also questions the correctness of the commission's estimate that the number of passengers carried in the current year will be 284,000,000 and says the city figures that the number will be 296,000,000. At the 7-cent fare rate the city's estimate would add $840,000 to the revenue, as compared with the commission's estimate. The motion says that with a proper readjustment of the reserve charges and a proper estimate as to total number of passengers the company's operating revenue would be increased $2,000,000 a year and it could pay a fair return on the investment with a 6¼-cent fare.

TOLEDO JUDGE ORDERS HIGHER FARE AND INCREASED PAY

Company Signs New Scale After Court Threatens to Name Street Car Receiver.

TOLEDO, O., April 6.—Federal Judge Killits today ordered the Toledo Railways and Light Co. to restore street car service Wednesday morning, threatening to name a receiver if the company refused.

Cars have been idle since last week, when the men struck because the Council refused a fare increase to 7 cents, but the company refused to grant a higher pay scale without the fare increase.

Judge Killits ordered the fare to be 7 cents, 2 cents for transfers, and directs the company to pay the new scale demanded by the men.

While Judge Killits was preparing the order, the company signed the scale and the union accepted. The car men will be paid 54, 56 and 60 cents an hour, the scale demanded by the union.

SCHOOL FOR TRAINING BELLHOPS

Hotel Men Plan Course for Waiters and Chambermaids.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 6.—The American Hotel Association, in convention here today, decided to establish a school for the scientific training of hotel employes. Bellhops, chambermaids, elevator operators, cooks, waiters and clerks will be among the students. Location and other details connected with the school are in the hands of a committee.

A law was recommended to make the signing of a false name on a hotel register a criminal offense.

More Jobs Than Applicants.

The report of the St. Louis Free Employment Bureau, 603 Pontiac Building, for last week, shows that employers offered more positions than could be filled by the applications received. Applications numbered 325, and 303 were placed. Employers offered 354 positions, and 314 applicants were referred. The bureau is operated by the Missouri Bureau of Labor Statistics.

THREE POLICEMEN WOUNDED IN BANK HOLDUP TO RECOVER

Robber, Who Is Dead, Believed to Have Been Without Accomplice; Was Inventor of Burglar Alarm.

PATROLMAN WAS KILLED IN FIGHT

Easton-Taylor Trust Co. and Theater Next Door Scene of "Two-Gun, Bad Man" Attempt.

Police Sergts. William Henry and Michael Flavin and Patrolman Claude Adams are expected to recover from their wounds, inflicted by Frederick Charles Smith, or Schmidt, in the robbery of the Easton-Taylor Trust Co., 4474 Easton avenue, which was described in late editions of yesterday's Post-Dispatch. The wounded policemen are in St. John's Hospital.

Smith, who was 40 years old, an electrical contractor and inventor of a burglar alarm, and who lived at 4138 Natural Bridge avenue, held up the bank, with a revolver in each hand, at 3 p. m., took $15,332, and fought with policemen in the bank and in a moving picture theater next door. As told yesterday, he killed Patrolman Terence McFarland, wounded Sergts. Henry and Flavin, and Patrolman Adams, and was himself wounded three times. Smith died in the city hospital at 5 p. m.

Sergt. Henry's wound was in the face, but surgeons today found that the bullet, entering at the bridge of the nose, had ranged upward, without piercing the skull, and had gone out through the scalp. He will recover, and his sight probably will not be impaired, it was announced. Sergt. Flavin, who was wounded in the left side, and Patrolman Adams, whose wound is in one arm, are progressing favorably.

Hold-Up in "Bad-Man" Style.

The hold-up, executed in the most exaggerated style of the two-gun "bad man" of the movies, may have been Smith's first crime. The police have been unable to learn that Smith had previously engaged in any form of crime, or had associated with criminals, and his wife and their neighbors declare that he was industrious and orderly. The wife says he suffered an injury to his head and spine, seven years ago, which had produced a condition at times resembling epilepsy, and she has suggested that this may have impaired his mind. Police officials, who yesterday declared that the perpetator of the robbery must have been either drunk or drug-crazed, are inclined to accept the wife's explanation. The police believe he had no accomplice.

The money taken by Smith, $15,309 of the bank's funds, and $23 taken from a woman customer, was recovered, being in a sack found beside him after he fell wounded in his intrenchment, in the orchestra pit of the movie theater.

Bank in Active Outlying Business Center.

The Easton-Taylor Trust Co. building is on the south side of the street at a corner of Easton avenue and a wide alley, which is one-third block east of Taylor avenue. The west half of the building is occupied by the trust company, and the east half by the lobby of the Easton-Taylor Motion Picture Theater, leading to the theater's auditorium in the rear. A door connects the forward portion of the bank's quarters with the forward portion of the theater lobby. (See ground plan on page 3.)

Easton avenue is lined with business houses on both sides of the street for a block east and west from the trust company building, forming one of the largest and most active neighborhood business centers in the city. The Wellston car line passes the bank and crosses the Taylor line only a short distance west. The Deer Street Police Station is one and one-third blocks west.

Story of Holdup.

The district had its normal business appearance yesterday at 3 o'clock, the bank's closing hour, when the robber, Smith, entered. Police and officials of the bank gave the Post-Dispatch the following relation of the events that followed:

The robber cried, "Hands up, everybody!" as he entered. He carried a .38-caliber revolver of cheap variety in each hand.

At the right of the bank entrance is a railed space forming the office of the bank's president, John R. Lanigan of 6374 Pershing avenue.

Robber Begins Firing.

Lanigan was seated in a swivel chair facing the street, and Mrs. Isabella Parker, 618 Mildred avenue, Webster Groves, who was in his office

M'KELVEY PUTS HIS 21-YEAR-OLD SON IN $3600 JOB

TEST REQUIRED BY CITY CHARTER

Efficiency Board Explains It Did Not Have Time to Give Examination—Youth Succeeded Experienced Man.

A letter has been sent by the joint council of the Associated Engineering Societies to the efficiency board, asking whether James G. McKelvey passed an examination before he was appointed to the position of chief engineer of the Building Department by his father, James N. McKelvey, Director of Public Safety, and, if not, when it is proposed to hold such an examination.

Information received by the officers of the Associated Societies was that the younger McKelvey is 21 years old. Chairman Hertenstein of the efficiency board thought he was 23. McKelvey himself refused to state his age, when asked today by a Post-Dispatch reporter. The position pays $300 a month. McKelvey entered his father's department three years ago as a draughtsman at a salary of $90 a month.

The Associated Engineering Societies is an affiliation of seven organizations of engineers, and, as such, is interested in the caliber of engineers appointed to responsible positions by the city. It so happens that William E. Rolfe, associate to the president of the Board of Public Service, is head of the Associated Societies, and he, at the instance of the joint council, dictated the letter of inquiry.

Chairman Hertenstein made public the letter today, after a Post-Dispatch reporter visited him yesterday to inquire about it.

Denied Membership in Body.

The reporter's inquiry also brought out the fact that young McKelvey recently applied for a junior membership in the American Association of Engineers, a grade which requires the applicant to have had four years of practical experience. The application was denied, but McKelvey was offered membership in a lower grade, namely, "candidate junior." He wrote a "hot" letter in reply, it was related by Oscar F. Kresse Jr., secretary of the local branch, refusing the membership offered him. Kresse said the letter was "higly unethical," and was so pronounced by the organization.

The city charter requires that appointees to the position held by McKelvey must successfully pass an examination. McKelvey has not been given an examination, although he has been in the office since Jan. 1, succeeding Henry Rusch, an engineer of long experience and recognized ability.

"Too Busy for Examination."

This was explained by Chairman Hertenstein as follows: He said the Efficiency Board has been so busy with other matters recently that it has had no time to hold examinations. Consequently, when the position became vacant, and Director McKelvey asked the board for a list of eligible applicants, there were none, and McKelvey was told to make a temporary appointment until examinations could be held. He promptly appointed his own son, who was employed in the department as an architectural draftsman at a salary of $195 a month.

As the charter provides that temporary appointments can only be for a period of 60 days, the period expired March 1, and Director McKelvey again "temporarily" appointed his son.

Willing to Stand Examination.

James G. McKelvey, who is youthful appearing, with blond hair and large tortoise shell-rimmed spectacles, said to the reporter that he is willing to stand the examination whenever the Efficiency Board is ready to give it. He said he saw no reason why he should not hold the job if he is able to do the work. He said he studied at a technical school, but declined to give the name of the school.

He disclosed that among the duties which have devolved upon him, as chief engineer, was that of passing upon the plans of the 40-acre plant of the General Motors Co. It was his duty to decide upon the safety of the construction, and whether the contractors complied with the city ordinances.

Director McKelvey is ill at his home, and it was said there that he was not able to discuss the appointment of his son.

McKelvey's daughter, Grace, until three years ago employed as a stenographer in his office, now is employed in the office of Circuit Clerk Goldstein at $100 a month. Director McKelvey's salary is $8000 a year. He is a member of the Republican City Committee.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN PICKET OF BRITISH EMBASSY ARRESTED

Four "Free Ireland" Supporters Sent to House of Detention in Washington.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Disregarding warnings of the Federal Government that they would be prosecuted under Federal penal statutes, two women favorable to an Irish republic resumed today the picketing of the British embassy which led yesterday to two arrests.

They were arrested. They gave their names as Mrs. Honor Walsh, Germantown, Pa., and Miss Elaine Barrie of Philadelphia. They were booked at police headquarters on charges of violating a Federal statute making it a felony to assault a diplomatic representative of a foreign Government and taken to the house of detention. United States District Attorney Laskey, who gave orders for the arrest, placed the amount of bond at $1000. It was not furnished and the women were locked up.

When word of the arrests reached the headquarters of the women at a hotel, two more pickets with banners were sent to the embassy and it was announced that the pickets would be sent out in relays as rapidly as those "on duty" were arrested. When the two women appeared the police stationed at the embassy summoned the patrol with policewomen to arrest them.

The second group arrested were Miss Helen O'Brien, who gave her address as 5227 Delmar boulevard, St. Louis, and Miss Kathleen O'Brien, Philadelphia. They were taken to the house of detention.

According to Mrs. Mary Porter, owner of the apartments at 5223-27 Delmar boulevard, no person named Helen O'Brien has ever lived at the address given.

BABY CARRIAGES OF EVICTED TENANTS BLOCK TRAFFIC

Brooklyn Justice Applauded When He Grants Relief Under New Rent Statute.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Baby carriages today blocked traffic in front of a Brooklyn courthouse, so great was the throng of evicted tenants seeking relief under new laws designed to curb profiteering in rent.

In Manhattan court more than 400 men, women and children engaged in an enthusiastic demonstration when the first of 150 rent complainants was given a six months' stay of eviction. Tenants whose cases were awaiting hearing applauded Justice Prince and shouted their approval. Some stood on benches and waved their hats in joy.

Every tenant found his appeal to the court successful, the landlords being ordered to postpone evictions from one to six months.

FRENCH CROSS RHINE, OCCUPY GERMAN CITIES

Troops Enter Frankfort and Darmstadt and Will Go Into Hamburg, Hanau and Dielung.

GERMAN TROOPS AVOIDING CONTACT

France Will Recall Troops if Germans Meet Demand to Withdraw From Ruhr Zone.

By the Associated Press.

MAYENCE, April 6.—French troops entered Frankfort at 5 o'clock this morning, finding only a small German force, left there to afford police protection for the people. The occupation of the city was a mere military march and was not attended by any fighting.

Darmstadt was entered at 7 o'clock by French forces. The German Government garrison of that city had left at midnight to avoid contact with the French and this morning was six miles east of the city. Occupation of Hanau also reported.

Frankfort was occupied without incident, with the French cavalry in the lead, followed by the infantry and the artillery. The occupying forces pressed rapidly beyond the city. They met with no opposition. By 10 o'clock in the morning the cavalry had reached Eckenheim (three miles north of Frankfort). The entire operation is expected to be completed during the day.

Extension of Mayence Line.

The occupation takes the form of an extension of the French lines around the bridgehead of Mayence, a distance of about 18 miles. The extreme limits of the advance form a semicircle similar to but larger than that of the original zone of occupation.

The only German troops encountered in Frankfort by the French were Scherheitswehr, or volunteers, who surrendered. They probably will be simply disarmed and released.

The French occupying force is estimated to number from 15,000 to 18,000 men. It is composed largely of cavalry with detachments of infantry for occupation of the various centers and artillery merely as a precautionary measure. The neutral zone occupied presents no interest whatever from the point of view of military strategy and hence the force has been limited to the number necessary for occupation alone.

Gen. Degoutte has issued a proclamation to cities and towns within the area to be occupied, declaring French troops have crossed the Rhine to compel the Berlin Government to respect its agreement with the allies and asserting there is no hostile intent toward the people of that region.

Proclamation to People.

The proclamation says the French troops will withdraw as soon as German Government forces have evacuated the neutral zone and declares no one will be affected by the presence of the French as long as order is maintained. The proclamation makes the following provisions for public order:

Frankfort, Darmstadt, Offenbach, Hochstadt, Koenigstein and Bieburg as well as all towns and districts within the circle of Gross Gerau, Lang Schwalbach and Wiesbaden, with the exception of Biebrich, are declared under a state of siege.

German authorities and public services will continue to function under French military officials and strikes will not be tolerated.

People are temporarily forbidden to circulate in the various communities from 2 o'clock at night until 5 in the morning.

More than five persons must not collect in streets or in private or public meetings without authorization.

Newspapers Suspended.

Newspapers are temporarily suspended and permission must be given to use the telephone and telegraph. Postal censorship is temporarily established. Wireless installations must be dismantled and the use of carrier pigeons is forbidden.

All arms and grenades must be deposited in city halls within six hours after the posting of the proclamation, but regular police will be allowed to retain sabers and revolvers. Safety guards must disarm.

Any infraction of these rules will result in courtmartial.

"The General commanding the army of the Rhine," the proclamation concludes, "counts on the public powers and the population to understand the necessity for the above measures and hopes repression will not be necessary."

Forces Were Ordered Forward by Marshal Foch.

JAPANESE TROOPS SEIZE VLADIVOSTOK AFTER HARD FIGHT

Russian Officials of Revolutionary Regime Deported and All Russians Disarmed—Korean and Russian Prisoners, Tied Together, Marched Through the Streets.

By the Associated Press.

VLADIVOSTOK, April 6.—Japanese troops yesterday occupied Vladivostok after eight hours of severe fighting in all parts of the city. The Japanese flag is flying in the place of the Russian ensign from all Government buildings.

Some of the officials of the revolutionary regime already have been arrested and deported. All Russians have been disarmed.

Throughout Sunday night the Japanese fought with rifles, machine guns, grenades and small artillery in all portions of the city. Their incessant firing met little opposition, as the Russians were taken by surprise, the Japanese moves toward occupation having been unexpected by the party in power.

Many Russians escaped into the hill country behind the city, whence they had come two months ago, when the all-Russian Government of Admiral Kolchak fell before the attacks of a revolutionary party.

Early yesterday the Japanese launched their attack in the Korean quarter which they occupied. Later they marched Korean and Russian prisoners, tied together with ropes, through many of the streets of the city.

The last of the American expeditionary forces under Brigadier-General William S. Graves left Vladivostok April 1. A few hours subsequent to their departure a proclamation was posted throughout the city stating Japanese troops would not evacuate Siberia at the present time. The proclamation warned all inhabitants against any unfriendly attitude on the part of the Russian population. The tenseness of the situation had increased hourly since that time until the clash yesterday.

Vladivostok One of Headquarters of the Korean Propaganda.

Dispatches from Vladivostok dated Nov. 18 told of an attempt by the Russian revolutionists to capture the city from the remnants of the Kolchak army, but the Government troops succeeded in heading off the Red forces. Troops of the allied forces, including American and Japanese soldiers, took no part in the fighting. They stood by and watched. There were two American cruisers in the harbor at that time.

No other important action was reported from Vladivostok until Jan. 31, when cables brought news that the revolutionists had captured the city and that the last of Kolchak's officers and men had surrendered. The triumphant Reds were celebrating their victory. American troops and Red Cross workers were getting out of the interior and concentrating on the coast under the protection of our warships. They were soon to embark for home.

On March 8, after several semiofficial announcements to the same effect, Tokio announced that the Japanese Cabinet had approved the withdrawal of all Japanese troops from Siberia, as soon as the Czecho-Slovakia troops were safely away.

For six or eight months, reports from Far East ports have told of the increasing strength of the Korean rebellion against the Japanese rulers. Vladivostok was one of the headquarters of Korean propaganda and direction. The next piece of information was that of today, of the capture of Vladivostok by Japanese and of the taking of Russian and Korean prisoners.

The northern tip of Korea reaches within a few miles of Vladivostok, and its proximity thus makes it an excellent field for revolutionary workers.

Japanese Explanation of Action Received in Washington.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The Japanese attack on Vladivostok which gave them control of the city resulted from "threatened and aggressive acts of a portion of the Russian army," according to an official dispatch from the Japanese War Department received today by Major-General Kazutsugu Inouye, the Japanese military attache here.

The dispatch said the Japanese commander, after disarming the Russians, issued a proclamation that his action had no motive other than to maintain order. It was added that the Russian authorities were "now being negotiated with in an en-

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., April 6.—The proposal sponsored by Mayor James Couzens to bond the city for $15,000,000 with which to begin the building of a municipally-owned street railway system to compete with the present Detroit United Railway, carried at yesterday's election, according to complete figures tabulated this morning. Mayor Couzens announced today that with the consent of the City Council he would begin excavation for the new car tracks at noon today.

JOS. FLORY, STUNG BY BEES, NEARLY LOSES HIS SIGHT

Clerk of Court of Appeals Injured Two Months Ago, Back at Work.

Joseph Flory of 4255 Shenandoah avenue, clerk of the St. Louis Court of Appeals and once a Republican candidate for Governor, was able to fully resume his duties today for the first time since he was stung by bees on his farm near Eureka, Mo., Feb. 1, last. For a time it was feared he would lose his sight. An oculist today told him the condition of his right eye was improving and there was no danger of sympathetic weakening of the left.

Flory had sold his farm but had retained ownership of two hives of bees. He opened the hives to see if there was any honey and the bees attacked him, stinging him all over the body. Some of them, he said, settled on his eyelids and stung him through the lids, injuring the right eyeball. Abscesses developed from this injury.

CROKER SAYS BUT FOR HIS WIFE HE WOULD BE IN GRAVE

Old Tammany Boss, Whose Sanity Is Attacked in Suits by His Children, Will "Cut Them Off" in His Will.

HOLDS LAST 6 YEARS HAPPIEST OF LIFE

His Son Richard Objects to an Accounting, Millionaire Asserts—Tells How Children Were Cordial to Wife at First.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PALM BEACH, Fla., April 6.—A statement that neither Richard Croker nor his wife will submit to a compromise of the proceedings brought against them by Richard Croker Jr. was issued yesterday by Harold Nathan of Leventritt, Cook, Nathan & Lehman, who has arrived from New York to assist S. L. Buissey, Croker's Palm Beach lawyer, in fighting the case.

While the old Tammany leader cannot be quoted as saying so, it is common report here that up to the time of the present action, in which the insanity assertion and the attack against Mrs. Croker have astonished him, he had intended dividing his estate equally between his wife and his children, but that now the latter will not get a cent.

Croker received the Post-Dispatch correspondent at his winter home, the Wigwam, yesterday, and for more than an hour listened to various phases of the case his children are attempting to make out against him as they appear in affidavits.

The interview was in the presence of his wife and Nathan. Far from showing evidences of a weakened mentality, Croker dominated the situation. As is habitual with him, he did not talk a great deal, but when he made an observation it was strictly to the point, and he frequently overruled the other two.

Croker Speaks Sharply.

It is asserted in the complaint that his mentality is so weakened it has passed into the control of his wife. Turning to his lawyer at the end of the interview, he said almost sharply:

"You are my counsel, and I intend to hold you responsible for what appears. If you think I have said anything which from your point of view you feel I ought not to, now is the time to say so."

Dr. Ralph N. Green, the alienist, who has been observing him two days, broke out into a laugh. The remark was about as clear-headed as those of Croker which preceded it.

Summing up the situation, Croker said:

"This Florida suit appears to me to have been for the purpose of injecting two new elements into the situation already covered by the six suits in New York. I am informed that my son Richard says he does not want any of my money. What, then, does he want? He does not want an accounting. My lawyers have been trying to get an accounting for years, and our filed answer to one of the actions in New York state is a demand that this accounting now occur.

"This Florida suit, which tries to set up that I am crazy and makes allegations concerning my wife, is, therefore, I believe, intended as a club to hold over my head. If that is it, I want to state that there will be no compromise."

The conversation before this had dealt with the affidavit of Richard Croker Jr., in which he tells of remonstrating with his father just before his marriage and of his father's defense of his fiancee; also of other affidavits that set up there was friction between the children and the second wife from the first.

Croker Explains Differences.

This Croker denied in detail. He also explained how differences arose between him and his son, these explanations differing materially from those made by his sons. Croker said:

"There was no difference between my children and me about my marriage until I took my power of attorney away from Richard, three years later, in 1917. When I decided one morning that I was going to be married I took Mrs. Croker with me and went to Richard's house. I left her outside for a moment and told him what I was going to do. Then I brought her in and introduced him.

"He shook hands with her and welcomed her into the family. He said: 'If you take good care of my father you will have the thanks of his entire family.' From then for the next three years we stopped at his house. I think, every time we were in New York, but one, and the relations were cordial. We came down to Palm Beach after the marriage and the children sent us Christmas presents and continued to do so, and for three years all the children wrote my wife many letters expressed in endearing terms. There is no truth at all in Richard's statement that he endeavored to persuade me not to marry or to delay my marriage, and all our trouble has arisen through my endeavor to get my business affairs through him straightened out.

"When we were about to go to Ireland on the last trip the Lusitania made over, we were at Richard's house when a rumor reached us that the Germans were going to sink her. I sent out for a lawyer and we made a will that night, leaving everything to my children in the event the Lusitania was sunk and Mrs. Croker and I lost our lives.

Says Wife Is Proficient.

"It was not more than three months after I was married when it came into mind when I found out how proficient she was, that my wife could assist me in handling my business affairs as well as Richard could. She wrote a good letter and showed she had sense. Still, I did nothing about it until some three years had passed, and then I heard in Ireland some things which led me to write to the Equitable Trust Co. to send me all the cancelled checks Richard had drawn. I wrote to one of the officers and he wrote me that Richard refused to allow him to send these checks. When I returned to New York I asked Richard about this and he denied it. I also found that my safe deposit box, which had jointly stood in Richard's and my name, was taken in his name alone, and I could not even look into my own box.

"I handed the Equitable officer's letter to my lawyers and instructed them to start an inquiry and find out a lot of different things. I remember that in 1916, when we returned from Ireland, Howard and Mary met us at the boat and took us to the Savoy. That was the first time, I think, that we had not gone to Richard's house.

"Mrs. Croker and I offered Glencairn to them to occupy during the remainder of the war. We would have been glad to have had them at our home. That was before the power of attorney was taken away. I told him at that time I was going to have an investigation made, and that I hoped it would show up all right.

"I tried my best for years to get along with Richard. The fellow didn't know enough to get anywhere. I would take him out to dinners, and when the thing would be half over he would be gone. He would never stay anywhere long enough to do business. I spent a good share of my time telephoning him and trying to get hold of him, but he was always getting dressed, or getting undressed, or in his bath, or out of town, or somewhere else, and I finally came to conclude that I could not do anything with him.

"I have never been happier than during the last six years," Croker concluded. "I wish my children had been as happy. Except for my wife whom they are now trying to lay it on, I would have been in my grave."

Note Pieced Together.

Mr. and Mrs. Croker were asked about an affidavit by Howard Croker saying that March 24 last he saw Mrs. Croker come out of the Postoffice in Palm Beach and tear up a piece of paper; that he caused the pieces to be collected and put together and discovered them to be a canceled note for $11,000, and that the deponent believed she was destroying a record of her financial transactions.

"The note," said Croker, "was one I put in the bank to meet some taxes. My wife and I both signed it, because the account in that bank was in our joint names and my wife and I have property here that we own jointly. I got a payment of $11,000 on a piece of land that day and I said to my wife, 'Let's go to town and pay off that note,' which we did. I had just been in the bank with her, paying it off."

Dr. Green, formerly in charge of the medical staff of the Florida State Hospital for the Insane, has completed his observations of Croker, which, however, are partly informal, as they were made at Croker's request, the court not yet having taken action on demand that his sanity be investigated. The specialist examined blood and other specimens, conversed with Croker and observed him the greater part of 48 hours. He said he found no evidence of the senility alleged in the affidavits filed by his sons, and added: "I found a wealth of maturity and soundness of judgment, coupled with an excellent state of physical preservation.

German Cities in the Region Being Occupied by the French

Frankfort and Darmstadt have already been occupied by French forces and Hamburg, Hanau and Dilburg are to be entered by Foch's forces.

FRENCH TROOPS MARCH INTO FRANKFORT AND DARMSTADT, GERMANY

Frankfort-on-Main and Darmstadt, 19 miles south. Forces commanded by Gen. Degoutte, which have been holding the Mayence bridgehead, were ordered forward by Marshal Foch following the efforts on the part of the French Government yesterday to induce the Berlin Government to withdraw its forces from the neutral zone along the eastern bank of the Rhine, where they had been ordered to disperse communistic units that for the past fortnight have conducted a revolt in the Ruhr Valley.

Marshal Foch had a conference this morning with Premier Millerand. Later the Premier received Hugh C. Wallace, the American Ambassador.

Notice to the Germans.

Premier Millerand today formally notified Dr. von Mayer, the German Charge d'Affaires, of the action of the French Government in ordering the advance, and informed him that as soon as there had been complete evacuation of the neutral zone by the German troops the French would evacuate the cities they had been ordered to occupy. The Premier's note read:

"By my letter of April 2, I asked you to make insistent representations to your Government to obtain the immediate withdrawal of the German troops which unduly penetrated the neutral zone fixed by Article 32 of the treaty of Versailles.

"My request having obtained no result up to this time, I have the honor of informing you that the General commanding in chief the army of the Rhine has received orders to occupy immediately the cities of Frankfort, Homburg, Hanau, Darmstadt and Dieburg. This occupation will end as soon as the German troops shall have completely evacuated the neutral zone."

German Troops Enter Essen From Two Sides of Town.

By the Associated Press.

ESSEN, April 6.—Reichswehr forces marched into Essen from two sides of the town this morning.

Fighting began early Monday morning near Essen between Reichswehr forces and the workmen, the Reischwehr throwing several scores of mines without great effect. At about 11 o'clock the Reds replied with rifles and machine guns and the troops threw more mines. A number of houses in the outskirts of Alten Essen, north of the town itself, were demolished.

The Reds tried to blow up a bridge over the canal, but succeeded only in badly damaging it and preventing the transportation of the Reichswehr cannon. After the heavy firing in the forenoon there was a lull and many units of the Reds, in good military order, retired upon Alten Essen. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon there was a resumption of the fighting, but without decisive result. Today Essen is quiet.

FURNITURE SALESMEN RETURN

Twenty-eight furniture salesmen, who left their employment in downtown stores March 29, when employers demanded that they give up their affiliation with the Retail Clerks' Association, returned to work this morning, after the employers agreed to recognize their organization.

Employers agreed to replace salesmen in their positions without discrimination or loss of time while on strike. The salesmen have been members of the association one year, during which time they have obtained an earlier Saturday closing hour.

Ocean Shipping Rates Increased.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 6.—The North Atlantic shipping lines have decided to increase freight rates very substantially from the United Kingdom to North America as from April 1, says the London Times, this morning. The decision is attributable to the high level of working expense and the rise in the price of bunker coal.

ACCOUNTANTS FIND EAST ST. LOUIS HAS $665,000 DEFICIT

Report of Audit, Ordered Withheld by Council, Declares City's Financial Condition is Unenviable.

The final report of Marwick, Mitchell, Peet & Co., public accountants, of an audit of previous administrations, received yesterday by the East St. Louis City Council, was referred to itself as a committee of the whole and ordered withheld from the press and public. Mayor Stephens favored publicity, but the Commissioners voted against it. Commissioners Whalen and O'Leary, who opposed publicity, were members of former administrations which the accountants have audited, Whalen as City Clerk and O'Leary as Collector of Special Assessments.

Notwithstanding the action of the Council, a Post-Dispatch reporter examined the report. Among the comments which it contains are the following:

"The financial condition of the city is an unenviable one. On May 6, 1919, there existed a deficit of over $665,000, part of which consisted of liabilities recorded on the books, and part of bonds which were unrecorded.

"As long ago as 1913 the city authorities were warned of the chaotic condition of the records with respect to the Special Improvement Funds, and only a partial attempt has since been made to remedy the situation. We were prevented by the commissioners from making any examination of the conditions of the special improvements accounts.

Neglect of Ordinance Found.

"We found in many instances neglect to carry out the requirements of the city ordinances, careless and haphazard methods in the account keeping, and, at times, disregard of the elementary principles of accounting necessary for the proper safeguarding of the finances of the city.

"The records in many important respects were incomplete, and several reports required from officials by virtue of ordinances of the city were lacking."

When the report and bill were presented, Mayor Stephens made a motion that the report be read and ordered published in full, and that the bill, $2562, be paid. There was no second. The commissioners voted to refer the report to the Council as a committee of the whole. The City Clerk was instructed to place the report in his office vault and permit nobody to see it. Commissioner Whalen refused to vote on the question involving the bill. He said he believed the firm had received sufficient compensation. The Council last September instructed the firm to cease its work, and paid the bill to date, $4010.

Mayor Stephens insisted that Whalen had to vote on the question of referring the bill to Commissioner Veach for investigation. Whalen left the Council Chamber. Mayor Stephens voted against referring the bill, saying in his opinion the Council had entered into the contract, and was obligated to pay the bill.

In a partial report last October the accountants complained of lack of co-operation on the part of the commissioners.

Audit Covers Six Years.

The books were audited for six years prior to the present municipal government assuming office, last May. Whether any irregularities were found has not been disclosed.

Commissioner O'Leary said today that the Council did not believe the bill was just, and that the principal reason for referring the reports to the Council as a committee of the whole was to give Commissioner Veach an opportunity to investigate the bill. "The Council has not accepted the report, and until it is accepted the Council has no authority to permit anybody to handle or read it," said Commissioner O'Leary. "We may be wrong, but that is our attitude."

Commissioner Veach said that the reason the auditors were prevented from making an audit of the special improvement funds was because the auditors said it would require six months' work to complete the work. "We need the money for more essential purposes," said he.

Many Supporters of Lowden Present and Little Enthusiasm Is Displayed.

Major-General Leonard Wood, candidate for the Republican nomination for President, spoke at Relay Depot, East St. Louis, at 3 o'clock this afternoon, to a gathering of about 200 persons. His train was three hours late. Gen. Wood and Gifford Pinchot, former head of the Forestry Bureau of the Interior Department, were heard attentively, but there was little display of enthusiasm. The audience was in part composed of supporters of Gov. Lowden.

A number of women in the audience shook hands with Mrs. Wood and her daughter, Miss Louis Wood. The train proceeded to Belleville after a short stop, this being the second day of Gen. Wood's six-day Illinois speaking tour.

Gen. Wood said the next President would have great problems to face, and he spoke briefly of immigration, in its bearing on the labor problem. Pinchot said that, after a careful survey of the candidates, he had decided that Gen. Wood was the logical man for the presidency.

BRYAN SELECTS MEREDITH FOR THE PRESIDENCY

Secretary of Agriculture Meets His Test on Prohibition, Suffrage, Labor and Business Capacity.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1920.)

WASHINGTON, April 6.—William Jennings Bryan has looked over the list of men available for the Democratic nomination for the presidency and come to the conclusion that Edward T. Meredith, Secretary of Agriculture, who hails from Des Moines, Ia., is the best equipped, best qualified and best suited to the demands of the rank and file of the party for a progressive candidate. Mr. Bryan's views have been disclosed to leading Democrats with whom he has recently been in informal conference here. Curiously enough, Mr. Meredith himself is not an aspirant for the nomination, but is an avowed supporter of William G. McAdoo, for whom he is trying to get the Iowa delegation.

But the Commoner thinks the Wilson load hangs too heavy around the neck of Mr. McAdoo, and while he is personally fond of the former Secretary of the Treasury and has high regard for his ability, he thinks the son-in-law argument would be a difficult one to surmount in the campaign.

As for Attorney-General Palmer, Mr. Bryan chafes because of the injunction issued by Mr. Palmer against the coal miners. The Commoner thinks the Democrats should keep in the good graces of labor and, while he approves heartily of Mr. Palmer's prohibition views, he does not think the Attorney General can qualify as a friend of labor.

Test Applied to Meredith.

To all the candidates on the list Mr. Bryan applies this test—prohibition, woman suffrage, friendliness to labor, capacity for business administration, and recognition of the interests of the farmer.

Mr. Meredith supplies all of these qualities. He ran for Governor of Iowa on a dry ticket and is known as a champion of prohibition. He has ardently supported women suffrage. He has taken a broad attitude on the question of labor and was appointed a member of the public group in the President's first industrial commission. Mr. Meredith is, moreover, a successful business man. He is the editor and publisher of "Successful Farming," one of the largest farm periodicals in the country.

He is a promoter of other large business enterprises and thinks in terms of business efficiency. He favors the league of nations, and has been a consistent supporter of President Wilson.

As a matter of fact, Meredith has never taken himself seriously as a presidential aspirant. Many of his friends here, however, who are not inclined to think he has much of a chance this year, even with Mr. Bryan's support, say he would make an excellent candidate four years from now, as he would by that time have acquired an intimate knowledge of Government administration through his membership in the Cabinet.

Meredith One of "Big Four."

Mr. Meredith is himself one of the "big four" in Iowa's delegation to the Democratic convention at San Francisco. While he has worked hard to have the delegation go uninstructed, he is at the same time eager to have Iowa support ultimately the candidacy of William G. McAdoo on the floor of the convention.

Other members of the Iowa delegation are striving to have Iowa's delegates instructed now under the unit rule for Palmer. There will be a State conference of Iowa Democrats next week, when, no doubt, the supporters of McAdoo and Palmer will begin the battle for an instructed or uninstructed delegation. Meanwhile the attitude of William Jennings Bryan is significant of the course he intends to follow.

Mr. Bryan himself is not likely to be a delegate to the convention. Nebraskans here insist that there are more "wets" than drys in the Democratics primaries in Nebraska and that Senator Hitchcock and a wet ticket of delegates will win.

This makes Mr. Bryan all the more anxious to select a leading dry from the neighboring State of Iowa to support. Whether he is a delegate or not, Mr. Bryan is out to make the Democratic convention dry. And Edward T. Meredith is and has been a pronounced advocate of prohibition for many years.

So the spectacle presents itself of a former Secretary of State in the Wilson Cabinet supporting for the presidential nomination the Secretary of Agriculture as against the Attorney-General and a former Secretary of the Treasury in the same Cabinet.

Whatever the dramatic episodes of the Jackson day dinner may have spelled at the time, they have failed to introduce any substantial element to compete with the hold which the Wilson men seem to have on the fortunes of the Democratic party.

Even Mr. Bryan selects a Wilson man as his own candidate. And the next nominee, whoever he is, will be approved or disapproved on the record of the titular leader of the Democratic party—Woodrow Wilson.

Lenine Declares Soviets Must Use Abilities of Bourgeoisie

Capable People Must Administer Government While Proletarians Are Learning, He Says —Outlines Recent Peace Proposals.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, March 29.—Nikolai Lenine, Premier of the Soviet Government, addressing the ninth convention of the Communist party today, outlined peace proposals received by the Russian Bolshevik Government, restated some of the principles for which he said the Soviet republic stood and revealed some concessions to the former governing classes.

"We are neither at peace nor war and are neither recognized nor unrecognized," he said. "Letvia has made normal peace proposals and Finland's proposition regarding the fixing of a demarkation line are equivalent to peace overtures. Regarding Poland we must be very careful, because we are dealing with a government which does not know what it will do tomorrow."

Internal Problems Discussed.

Discussing internal problems, Lenine said centralization or decentralization was the most important question before the convention. While the Soviet republic demands are unaltered for certain principles such as the abolition of private property, he said, history has shown that when the change from a feudal to a Bourgeois Government was made, the latter availed itself of administrators from former governing classes.

"We are undergoing the same experience," he continued, "and must have capable people who understand technique of administration. We must draw them from the former ruling classes while preparing Proletarian workers for administrative positions. A most difficult problem requiring the entire strength of the nation confronts us. We have been victorious along the battlefront but a still more important bloodless victory must be won."

Greeted With Enthusiasm.

Tremendous enthusiasm greeted the address. All approaches to the opera house, where the convention is being held, are being carefully guarded and the square in front of it has been cleared and is under patrol by cavalry units.

Reports received relative to coal miners in March are said to be encouraging. Many soldiers have been sent to the mines but men having technical experience are badly needed.

TEACHERS TO DISCUSS SALARIES WITH BOARD

Representatives of Principals, High School and Grade Instructors to Attend Session.

Representatives of the employes of the Department of Instruction, including the principals, high school teachers and grade teachers, will attend an informal meeting of the Board of Education Thursday afternoon to discuss the salary question.

The teachers consider this a point in their favor, as heretofore they have complained that they were never given an opportunity to express their views on the financial affairs of the school system. Their opinions, they said, following a custom established many years ago, always were addressed to the Superintendent of Instruction, and he was their sole representative in matters affecting them which came before the board for consideration.

President John McDonald has informed the other board members that the various branches of the teaching corps have been invited to attend the meeting, and has requested that all board members be present.

The entire board also has been requested to attend the regular meeting of the Committee on Instruction tomorrow afternoon, at which time recommendations for changes in the increased pay schedule for teachers, recently proposed by Supt. Withers, will be submitted by him.

Criticism by the high school teachers has been that they will not receive, under the Withers schedule, the 33 1-3 per cent increase requested, while the grade teachers will receive nearly that amount. The grade teachers have criticised the maximum proposed for the second assistants, who are in the majority among the grade teachers. They complain that the second assistants are not receiving an increase, according to the proposed schedule, in proportion to increases recommended for other groups of grade teachers.

DANIELS HOPES U. S. MACHINE WILL FLY ACROSS PACIFIC

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Secretary Daniels told the Senate Naval Committee today that he hoped that "in two years or less we will have a machine that has flown across the Pacific."

The Secretary was discussing a provision in the annual naval bill for the preservation of the transatlantic seaplane NC-4 in the National Museum. He did not go into any details as to the proposed transpacific flight.

Daniels appeared before the committee to explain further the appropriation measure, and particularly the provisions for enlarging naval facilities on the Pacific coast. He was heard in executive session after a brief open meeting, during which he urged an increase in the appropriation for the training and development of the naval reserve force. The bill as drawn carries $50,000,000, which Daniels said would barely allow the department to "stand still." The reserve force, he added, was the navy's greatest personnel asset in time of war and should be fostered in years of peace.

Farm Loan Commission Named.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—President Wilson yesterday designated Charles E. Lobdell, Kansas, Republican, as Commissioner of the Federal Farm Loan Board, succeeding George W. Norris, who resigned to become Governor of the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank. W. H. Joyce, formerly president of the Federal Land Bank at Berkeley, Cal., took up his duties as a member of the board. Mr. Lobdell has been a member of the board since it was created.

30 WITNESSES WIN CASE FOR SALOON MAN

One-tenth of the 300 population of Old Monroe, Lincoln County, Mo., appeared before United States Commissioner Mitchell here yesterday to testify in behalf of John Whelan, a former saloon keeper charged with having sold a pint of whisky to W. C. Caldwell, a restaurant owner.

Mrs. Caldwell found the pint of whisky in a shed in the rear of her home about a month ago. She questioned her husband and he said he bought it Jan. 20 from Whelan, who now runs a soft drink place. She told the Prosecuting Attorney about it and he passed the word along to the St. Louis Internal Revenue office.

Two enforcement officers were sent to Old Monroe. After Caldwell had told them he bought the whisky from Whelan they went to Whelan's home and seized 30 gallons of whisky, 20 gallons of gin and 100 pint bottles of whisky.

Thirty Witnesses for Defense.

Among the 30 witnesses who testified for Whelan yesterday were the Sheriff of Lincoln County, the Mayor of Old Monroe and the president of the town's only bank. Old Monroe has been "dry" under local option for eight years. Until it was voted dry Whelan ran the only saloon in town. He testified that he had not sold whisky since the Volstead act went into effect and that the whisky in his home had been there several years. The Sheriff testified that the only time he knew of when Whelan sold whisky since the county went dry was on the Fourth of July two years ago.

"How do you know he sold it?" asked the Commissioner.

"I bought a drink from him myself," replied the Sheriff.

The Sheriff and all other witnesses for the defense testified they would rather take Whelan's word for anything than "most anybody else's."

Whisky Ordered Returned.

Whelan was discharged and it was ordered that the whisky seized be restored to him, though the enforcement officers had a search warrant. The ruling was that he had the whisky before wartime prohibition became effective and was entitled to keep it in his home.

Judge Faris in the United States District Court ordered that a large quantity of whisky, beer and gin seized at the home of Theodore Albes in his home above his saloon, 2361 Adams street, Jan. 30 last, be returned to him because it was seized in his home without a search warrant. After the arrest Albes was convicted of selling whisky in violation of law and was fined $600.

HOWAT IS ORERED TO APPEAR BEFORE INDUSTRIAL COURT

Head of Kansas Miners Had Defied Tribunal, Declaring Men Would Not Recognize It in Coal Investigation.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Kan., April 6.—Alexander Howat, president of the Kansas miners, and four other district officials of the union organization were ordered this afternoon by Judge A. J. Curran of the Crawford County District Court to appear forthwith before the Kansas Court of Industrial Relations to testify.

The officers, in addition to Howat, are August Dorchy, vice president; Thomas Harvey, secretary-treasurer; Thomas Cunningham and Robert Foster, auditors. Officers will serve the papers on the miners' officials late today.

Howat definitely refused shortly before noon to go into the Industrial Relations Court and participate in the investigation of the coal mining industry now being made here.

"We will not recognize the industrial court," Howat declared.

Howat said that the resolutions adopted by the recent district convention of the miners had made the position of the miners clear.

Six of the nine mines not operating yesterday because of a strike of miners in protest against the awards of the National Coal Commission, were working this morning, it was announced by the operators' association.

Two mines working yesterday and three that were closed yesterday were idle today. About 1000 men are not working today.

JAPANESE CAPTURE VLADIVOSTOK AFTER A HARD FIGHT

deavor to arrive at a harmonious future policy."

The dispatch said that the battle between the Japanese and Russian army at Nikolsk and Khabarovsk was continuing. This battle was said to have been forced "by the sudden aggressive action of the Russian army."

Official Statement.

Gen. Inouye summarized the dispatch from Tokio in the following statement:

"According to a proclamation by the Japanese Government under date of March 31, negotiations between the Japanese army and the Russian authorities at Vladivostok were progressing very favorably with a view to agreeing upon a program of co-operation, whereupon April 4 the sudden aggressive action of the Russian army forced a battle with the Japanese troops at Vladivostok, Nikolsk and Khabarovsk.

"At Vladivostok the Japanese succeeded in disarming both the Russian army and the navy on the morning of April 5, but at Nikolsk and Khabarovsk the fighting is still in progress. The Japanese commander proclaimed that the disturbance was provoked by the threatened and aggressive acts of a portion of the Russian army and that his disarming the Russians had no motive other than to maintain order and peace. The Russian authorities are now being negotiated with in an endeavor to arrive at a harmonious future policy."

Japanese Vice Consul Killed by Bolsheviki in Russia.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6.—Japanese Vice Consul Ishida has been killed by the Bolsheviki at Nikolaevsk, Eastern Siberia, according to cable advices received by the New World, a Japanese language newspaper here today.

Recent Honolulu and Vladivostok dispatches told of fighting between Japanese and Russians at Nikolaevsk, a town on the Amur River, in Eastern Siberia. Vladivostok dispatches March 22, reported 40 Russians killed and 80 wounded. A Tokia cable to the Nippu Jiji, Japanese vernacular newspaper in Honolulu, March 30 quoted delayed advices to Japanese military headquarters in Siberia reporting a two-day battle between Russian forces and Japanese at Nikolaevsk beginning March 18. According to this report the Russians destroyed the Japanese consulate there and Vice Consul Ishida was missing.

UNION RAILROAD MEN TO "BREAK" CHICAGO STRIKE

Nine Hundred Yardmen From Cleveland and Iowa Expected to Restore Normal Switching Conditions.

CONGESTION MAY BE BROKEN IN 5 DAYS

Leader of Unauthorized Walkout Says the Men Out Have Money Enough to Last a Month.

CHICAGO, April 6.—Railroad managers estimated today that traffice in Chicago terminals, crippled by an unauthorized strike of switchmen on 18 roads here, and Sunday's blizzard, would be nearly normal by Saturday, following the arrival of yardmen sent by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen to take the place of the strikers.

A shutdown at the stockyards because of light cattle receipts threatened to throw 50,000 men temporarily out of work. Morris & Co. stated that 75 per cent of all their employes would be laid off "if present conditions continued for a few more days."

The strike of 350 switchmen on the Chicago Junction Railroad, which serves the stockyards, partly crippled activities at the packing houses and threw 5000 men out of employment. Only 9000 cattle, hogs and sheep reached the yards yesterday, as compared to receipts of 40,000 hogs alone a year ago.

John Grunau, leader of the strikers, claimed that 16,500 switchmen had quit in the Chicago district. He said the strikers were financially able to stay out a month. Railroad managers asserted not more than 2500 men were out.

A. F. Whitney, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, said that 600 brotherhood men from Cleveland and 300 from Iowa, together with surplus road crews, were ordered here.

The city's supply of dairy and farm products was cut short by an express embargo.

Brotherhood Head Says Wages Have Nothing to Do With Strike.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, April 6.—W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, today issued the following statement regarding the employment of brotherhood members as union strike-breakers in the Chicago switchmen's strike:

"Regardless of reports issued by John Gruneau, leader of the strike of switchmen at Chicago, such strike is illegal and members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and others, will be fully protected in accepting positions as switchmen or switch tenders made vacant by such illegal strike.

"The Brotherhood will co-operate to the fullest extent with operating officers of the railroads and with the Government in performing the usual and regular work covered by contracts made by the authorized committees of the Brotherhood.

"The question of increased wages had nothing to do with the present trouble, but the removal of John Gruneau from a position as yard conductor, was the cause of a few switchmen in the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad yard, who were members of a renegade organization, headed by Gruneau, quitting work. The question of increases in the wages was later injected for the purpose of playing upon the sympathies of other train and yard men, who naturally feel that the Federal Railroad Administration did not grant fair and equitable wages during Government control."

KENTUCKY BANK ROBBERS FLEE TOWARD CAVE COUNTRY

Two Armed Men Get $8000 at Cave City and Abandon Auto When Cut Off on Highway.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAVE CITY, Ky., April 6.—Two armed robbers held up the People's Bank of Cave City at 12:30 o'clock today, forced S. D. Caldwell, the president, to open the vault, locked him in it and escaped in an automobile with $8000, mostly currency. Headed off at Glasgow Junction, five miles south on the Dixie highway, the bank robbers abandoned their car and took to the knobs west of here in the vicinity of Mammoth Cave.

A posse of 40 men with bloodhounds is pursuing them, but the wild country of Barren and Edmonson counties is honeycombed with caves in which the men could hide indefinitely if supplied with food.

fice, was seated near and with her back to the front window, facing Lanigan.

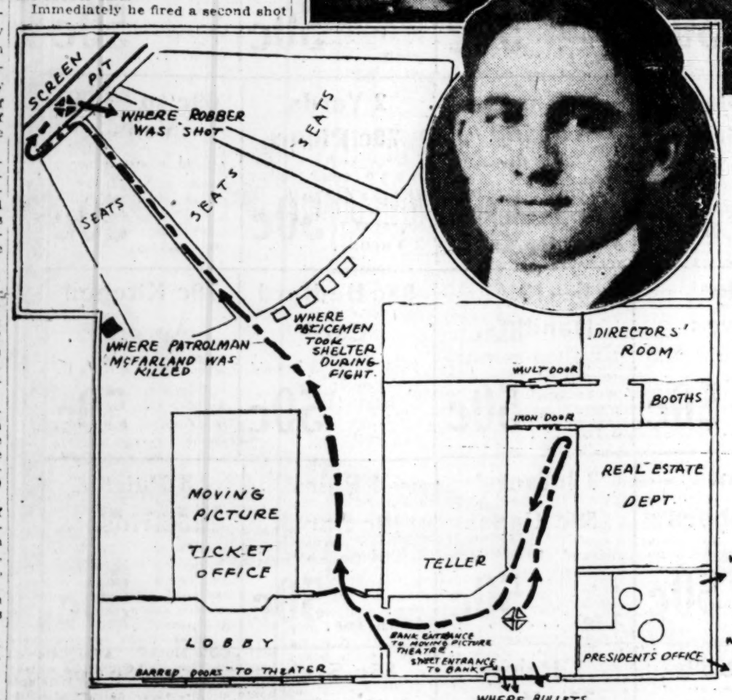

Lanigan, upon hearing the robbers' command, wheeled about and started to rise. As he did so the robber fired a shot at him from a revolver in his right hand. The bullet passed out the window on the alley at a point which indicated that it just missed the top of Lanigan's head. Lanigan said that it seemed to pass through his hair.

"I mean business, get 'em up," the robber said.

Immediately he fired a second shot from a revolver in his left hand and moved to the first teller's cage on the left side of the bank. The bullet pierced a framed certificate hanging outside the teller's cage, which told of the authority of the bank to receive Liberty bond payments.

The course of the robber from the time he entered the bank to the moving picture theater orchestra pit where he was shot is indicated by the arrow head and dotted line. In wounding the three police officers, he fired through the glass street entrance door while they were trying to enter the bank lobby.

Frederick Charles Smith, who killed one policeman and wounded three others and was himself fatally shot.

At J. Sagner, the teller on duty within the cage, had dropped to the floor. Mrs. Minnie Swope, 1423 Pendleton avenue, had been depositing $25 when the robber entered. She stepped aside and was just out of line of the robber's first shot, the bullet passing her head. She left a handbag containing $23 on the ledge of the cashier's window in obeying the robber's command to hold up hands.

Man Made to Put Money in Sack.

Louis F. Schneider, 4573 Lucky street, secretary and cashier of the bank, stepped into Sagner's cage and pushed all the currency lying within the cage through the window towards the robber. The amount of the currency afterwards was found to be $15,309.

At this moment, Peter P. Hammer, 4558 Garfield avenue, entered the bank and seeing a man with a revolver in each hand before the teller's cage, started to back out the front door.

The robber stopped him. "Step up and put up your hands," he commanded. As Hammer obeyed, the robber held out a 100-pound flour sack, which he had taken into the bank, and instructed Hammer to put the money into it. In doing so, Hammer brushed some of the packages of greenbacks off the teller's ledge onto the floor.

"Don't spill no more on the floor," the robber said to him.

Mrs. Swope's pocketbook had fallen to the floor and in scooping up the money, Hammer put it into the robber's bag.

When Hammer completed his task the robber ordered all in the bank to go to the directors' room, which was at the end of the aisle in the rear of the bank room.

Persons in Bank.

The following complied: Lanigan, Mrs. Parker, Hammer, Schneider, Sagner, Mrs Swope and the following bank employes: G. J. Hamman, 1339A Goodfellow avenue; Arthur G. Giles, 5233 Spalding avenue, real estate officer; Clifford Drier, 4589 Cote Brilliante avenue, bookkeeper; Arthur G'sell, 4433 Evans avenue; John Dolan, 1425 Temple place, special officer; Miss Grace Farrington, 4519 Easton avenue, and Mrs. Virginia Coshow, 4230 Delmar boulevard.

Mrs. Swope took her place behind a radiator apart from the others in the directors' room.

"I'd hate to have to kill you lady," the robber said, "get over with the rest."

After instructing those in the directors' room to remain five minutes, the robber began his retreat to the front of the bank.

Woman Attracts Passerby.

Mrs. Parker, from her seat in the President's office near the bank's front window, had begun, upon the entrance of the robber, to tap on the window pane in the hope of attracting the attention of someone on the outside to the events within the bank. Her tapping caused John J. Macklin, 4521 Easton avenue, a feed and grain dealer, to look into the bank. What he saw caused him immediately to run to the Deer Street Police Station, one and one-third blocks west, to give the alarm of the holdup.

Patrolman Michael Comer was approaching the bank from the east on the south side of Easton avenue sensed a holdup and sent a boy to the Deer Street Police Station while he approached the bank cautiously. Patrolman William Teepe, from the north side of Easton avenue, saw that a holdup was in progress and ran to a telephone. His call, Macklin and the boy sent by Comer reached the Deer Street Station almost simultaneously and at a time when the second platoon of about 50 policemen was assembling for rollcall.

The entire platoon rushed pell mell for the bank. One of the daily incidents of roll call is drill with riot guns. This point had not been reached yesterday, but some of the men seized riot guns from the racks at the alarm and the remainder of the guns later were sent to the scene.

Officers of the first platoon had been approaching Taylor and Easton avenues, which is their relief station. The result was that when the robber reached the front of the bank in his retreat from the directors' room he found his escape by the front exit of the bank blocked by policemen. Capt. Peter Reynolds of the Deer Street Station, an old Indian fighter, caused others of his men to surround the trust company building from every angle.

First Shot Hits Sergeant

The robber, from inside the bank, opened fire into the knot of policemen at the front door.

His first shot struck Sergt. Henry, who fell into the arms of Patrolman Fred Wildberger, formerly of the Deer Street Station, later of the Mounted District, and suspended two weeks ago when the grand jury indicted him in connection with the killing of Peter Birmingham at Sarah street and Easton avenue last summer. He had been at the Deer Street Station and went to the bank with the other policemen.

"Give me your gun, Bill," he said to Sergt. Henry, who handed it over, and Wildberger opened fire upon the robber inside.

The robber had kept up his fire and Sergt. Flavin, who was using the corner of the bank between the windows on Easton avenue and the alley as shelter, was struck in the shoulder. Another of the robber's shots struck Patrolman Adams, who was in the group of about seven at the door.

Flees to Orchestra Pit.

The robber then chose the only escape open to him, the door leading from the trust company into the lobby of the theater. He ran through the long lobby into the theater and down one of its aisles into the orchestra pit.

The theater was deserted and dark. The orchestra pit gave the robber trenchlike protection. The pit is about two feet deep and is further screened from the auditorium by a wire netting two or more feet high, covered with a striped green and white cloth. It encircles the pit and was a realistic fortification to the eye and, as it proved in the exchange of shots which followed, in fact.

There was a period of quiet, for the police could not discern their quarry. Other police hammered open some of the exit doors on the alley side of the auditorium, allowing a flood of light to penetrate the darkness.

The robber stood up in the pit, with his hands above his head, but with a revolver in each.

"I give up," he cried.

"Drop those guns," Policeman McFarland commanded, and came out a bit from the shelter of the jutting corner.

Theater Seats Splintered.

The robber brought his revolvers from above his head to level and fired. Policeman McFarland fell dead. A second shot was aimed at Patrolman O'Brien, who was crouched behind McFarland. It struck the wall a few inches from the corner.

The robber ducked into the pit, shouting, "come and get me," and a fusillade of bullets came from his revolvers and were answered by the policemen behind the seats. Their shots were fired through the thin backs of the wooden seats and a block of seats about six wide and several rows deep were splintered with bullets.

The police kept up their fire. Soon they perceived that they no longer were being fired upon. They advanced to the pit.

The robber was crumpled up in a chair. One of his revolvers was clutched in his right hand. The other was lying on the top of the grand piano in the pit. The sack containing the bank's money was beside him. On the floor were 12 loaded shells for his revolvers.

He was dragged up an aisle, through the lobby and out on the edge of the sidewalk in front of the theater. He lay there for more than 20 minutes, while hundreds of school children, flocking at the close of school, gazed upon him.

25 Exploded Shells Picked Up.

The police picked up between 25 and 30 exploded shells within the theater and bank. There were two bullet holes through the alley window of the bank. There were four bullet holes through the glass of the front door of the bank and one in the door. There was the mark of a bullet on the granite which formed the base of the first cashier's cage. There also was a bullet hole near the door to the directors' room.

In addition to the block of about 30 seats, the backs of which were splintered by the policemen's fire, isolated seats all about the auditorium bore the marks of bullets. The motion picture screen was pierced four times, once very close to its top. The striped green and white curtain which covered the screen shielding the orchestra pit was pierced several times, tears in the cloth making it difficult to distinguish which rents were caused by bullets.

Smith, the robber, did not regain consciousness after being dragged from the theater. He died on the operating table at the city hospital at 5 p. m. His wounds were two bullet holes in his head and one in his thigh.

His pockets contained $15.19 in cash, a watch, a bank book, a business card and a card showing his draft registration.

Police armed with riot guns did not enter the fight within the theater, those who participated declared. Riot guns are heavy shotguns, the shells for which are loaded with "buckshot." An hour after the robbery, Patrolman Isaac Craig, who carried one of thees guns, began to unload it, with the muzzle pointed to the sidewalk in front of the bank. The gun was accidentally discharged. Five of the "buckshot" entered the foot of Patrolman Otto Glaser, 32 years old, 4430 St. Louis avenue. One shot struck Patrolman John G. Voss, 50, of 4611A Evans avenue, in the calf of his left leg.

Bank Robber Was Inventor of a Burglar Alarm.

Mrs. Minnie Smith, 37 years old, of 4138 Natural Bridge avenue, widow of the Easton-Taylor bank robber, wept at Police headquarters today as she told a detailed story of her husband's life as it was known to her. She declared she knew him only as a hard worker at his trade, that of an electrical repairer, as inventor of a burglar alarm which he was trying to place on the market, and as a kind and congenial husband.

The police have no information which would contradict the wife's story. Smith had never figured in the police records, so far as could be learned. Neighbors supported the wife's declaration that he was industrious and homeloving.

The Smiths had lived in St. Louis two years. Their home was a three-story frame house, which bore a sign indicating that Smith was an electrical contractor. Smith was a native of Germany, and his father, Frederick Schmidt, who has a locksmith's shop at 1814 Biddle street, still spells his name in the German style.

Mrs. Smith said her husband was injured seven years ago by a fall from a train at Dayton, O., and that he had since suffered from a form of epilepsy, having occasional fits. She said, however, that he had done well in business, and had paid for his automobile and for their furniture. They were thinking of returning to Dayton, she said, and they took an inventory last week, in which it appeared that by selling the automobile and some other articles they could pay off a debt of $500 owed to a loan company and have $300 and their furniture to take to Dayton.

She said he had invented an improved burglar alarm, and that he told her he was negotiating with business men downtown, three nights last week, to put the device on the market. He was at home until 1:30 p. m. yesterday, she said, telephoning to different persons about electrical work.

Slain Patrolman, Bachelor, Joined Force in 1903.

Patrolman McFarland, who was shot and killed by the bank robber, was a bachelor, and resided at the D'Arle Hotel, 744 Walton avenue. He entered the Police Department as a probationary patrolman on Oct. 30, 1903, when he was 28 years old. He came from a family of policemen.

Sergt. Henry resides at 3969 Hartford street with his family and is 46 years old. He entered the department in 1906 and was the city's first parole officer.

Sergt. Flavin is 41 years old, and lives at 3737 Lincoln avenue, with his family. He has been in the department 13 years.

False Report of Bank Hold-Up Telephoned to Police.

At 5 p. m. yesterday a man who did not give his name telephoned the Laclede Police District that the Grand Avenue Bank, on Grand avenue near Olive street, was being held up. A patrol wagon was loaded with policemen and rushed to the bank, which was found to be closed. Only a few clerks remained inside. They told the police there had been no robbery attempt.

SIX POLICEMEN KILLED IN YEAR WHEN ON DUTY

WITHIN the last year, six St. Louis policemen, including Patrolman McFarland, have been killed in the performance of their duty. Two other members of the force, one the Chief, and one a probationary patrolman, have been wounded by criminals, and have recovered. The Easton-Taylor robbery is the fourth St. Louis bank holdup within a year, one of the previous robberies having been successful, from the robbers' standpoint, and two unsuccessful.

MISSOURIAN, WIFE AND TWO SONS DIE WHEN HOME BURNS

SIKESTON, Mo., April 6.—J. H. Bohanan, his wife and their two boys, 14 and 8 years old, respectively, were burned to death last night at their home, on the McCoy farm, about two miles west of Sikeston. Eight persons were sleeping on the second floor, four of them farm laborers, who escaped before the flames reached their room.

At the Coroner's inquest it was said the floor fell while the Bohanans were in bed. The origin of the fire is unknown. Bohanan and his wife were married Sunday. One of the children was Bohanan's and the other was his wife's.

An older Bohanan boy was in Lilbourne, Mo., at the time of the fire. Another son lives on an adjoining farm.

Will Not Serve in Red River Case.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 6.—Judge Jacob M. Dickinson has withdrawn his acceptance of the Supreme Court's offer of the receivership of the Red River oil lands, it was announced at his office here today. Judge Dickinson, who has been ill for several days, had accepted the offer, when he suffered a relapse, and, on advice of his doctor, notified Washington officials that he would be unable to serve.

Board Walk Visited by Thousands Opening Night

Coliseum Is Transformed From an Arena to a Moonlit Scene at the Ocean Side for College Benefit.

The Atlantic City Board Walk, a benefit fete and bazar, arranged by St. Louis women to add to the national funds being collected for the endowment of salary increases for teachers at Washington University, Smith College and Bryn Mawr opened most auspiciously last night at the Coliseum. The arena, after being set with reproductions of the shops and amusement attractions of the famous ocean-side resort, had barely enough promenade space left to accommodate the first-night attendance of several thousands.

The Board Walk will be open from 2 to 11 p. m. each day up to and including April 14.

As transformed for the occasion the Coliseum arena is a scene of rare beauty and its spectacular charm is increased by the fanciful costumes of many of the young women who serve as saleswomen in the shops or circulate through the crowd selling candy, popcorn, cigarettes and refreshments. Among the most striking costumes are those of the candy girls, whose dresses of red and white simulate sticks of peppermint candy.

The girls at the cigar and cigarette shop are in Oriental costumes, which have long symbolized the fact that though the world in general doesn't care much for the Turk it likes his tobacco.

Attention to Detail.

In all of the finely designed and beautifully lighted shops there is the same attention of detail in making the costumes fit the surroundings. Where hats are on sale there are beautiful young women wearing hats of such style and quality that they excite the envy and emulation of all feminine visitors to this indoor Atlantic City. In the perfume and toilet preparation shop are girls costumed to represent powder puffs, lip sticks, manicure implements and similar adventitious aids to beauty. In the country store are "rubes" and gingham-clad lasses, and in Aunt Jerusha's Kitchen Shop burnt cork negro "mammies" skillful with the frying pan and the waffle iron.

Realism is everywhere. It is real realism, too. There are no shoddy makeshifts. Silk is silk and sable is sable in the costumes of these shop attendants. Their trappings alone represented the expenditure of much time, labor and money.

There is a real board walk, and there is a real beach with real sand and real wheel chairs, brought from Atlantic City, and pushed by real Washington University students.

The beach adjoining the board walk along the eastern side of the arena is enlivened by playful kiddies disporting in the sand, which came all the way from the Meramec River. At intervals less juvenile bathing girls, pupils of local teachers of the classic dance, appear on the beach. There is always an interested gallery of onlookers at the rail on the beach side of the board walk.

The general illumination effect is that of moonlight. This is accomplished by having the greater part of the overhead light filtered through the semi-transparent tent top of blue with which the arena space has been covered.

Painted Waves There.

Standing on the board walk one would not suspect that tiers of thousands of seats are on every hand. These are concealed by the drop curtain of sky-blue which extends all around the arena. Near the floor level this curtain meets and joins a canvas representation of ocean waves with most realistic effect. With its present setting the Coliseum is all dressed up, and no place to go and sit down, except in the basement where old Uhrig's Cave has been converted into a restaurant under Bevo Mill management. Here among pungent cedar decorations one may find a seat and eat or drink near beer with a near beer name at 20 cents a bottle, or nearer beer with a name which made it famous when it was real beer for 25 cents a bottle. Prices here range from 20 cents for soup to $1.50 for roast chicken, which, according to preference, will be served "a la Dwight Davis" or "a la August A. Busch." Sandwiches are 30 cents, and ice cream 25 cents. In this basement restaurant there is an orchestra and a free dancing floor.

On the main floor also dancing is one of the attractions, the price being only 5 cents a couple or six tickets for a quarter for each dance to the music of a very good orchestra which plays Dardanella and Venetian Moon with equal facility.

The shops, of course, are expected to be the revenue producers through which it is hoped to raise about $50,000 for the endowment funds. As at all affairs of the kind, buying was not brisk on the opening night, but all through the evening there were groups of interested women shoppers in the hat, fur and novelty shops.

One of the interesting places which was always crowded was the auction booth where home furnishings in great variety were sold to the highest bidder. The chairman of this booth is Mrs. William H. Elliot. Last night's auctioneer was Lewis B. Ely, appropriately costumed in a loud check suit, a scarlet necktie and a silk hat made long before the war and mopping his brow with a red bandanna handkerchief between bids.

The novelty shop, another prime attraction for women, was presided over last night by Mrs. William A. Stickney. Tonight's chairman will be Mrs. Morrison Fuller.

Candy Sellers Everywhere.

The candy sellers in their striking costumes were the largest working force in any single activity. They were everywhere, offering as their principal stock in trade, that particular brand of salt water taffy which has added to the fame of Atlantic City. There were other busy circulators, too, girls in fancy costumes selling "chances" on a great variety of commodities. They were not insistent or importunate. In fact throughout the bazar there was a sort of repression which may have been only first-night backwardness. Whatever its cause it would have made a professional carnival man want to jump in and "put a little more pep" in the proceedings.

The only sellers who approached "ballyhoo" methods were men who sold goods in some of the booths, notably Former Circuit Judge Thomas L. Anderson, who devoted much lung power to the exploitation of a soft drink, and Herbert Cost, who did a brisk business in cigars and cigarettes.

Mrs. Breckinridge Jones and Miss Marguerite Orthwein capitalized the prevailing leaning toward the mystic by looking into the future in the fortune telling booth.

Outright purchases of goods seemed to be more popular than dallying with chance. There is a ham and bacon wheel and there are several other devices of the kind, but last night they appealed to comparatively few. Greater stress was laid on the fact that anything might be bought, from a kitchen knife to a sable fur coat for $25,000.

Articles Were Donated.

Most of the articles on sale were donated. Others were bought at factory prices, giving an opportunity to sell them at a profit at prices no higher than those charged in the stores.

All of the money taken in at the door and all the profits of the shops will go into the endowment fund. A committee of business men underwrote a fund of $30,000 to defray the show's expenses, but this will not be drawn upon as the expenses will be met by the advance sale of about 35,000 tickets at 25 cents each and of program space netting $10,500. Chicago promoters of the Board Walk idea furnished the scenery and superintended the building and setting of the shops. For this they charged a fee, the amount of which is not being made public by the local committee, but is included in the expenses already realized. The box office price of tickets is 50 cents for one adult or two children.

COMPLAINTS OF PRICES ON ANTHRACITE COAL

Increases Up to $2 a Ton Reported—Prosecution Threatened If Law Is Upheld.

Anthracite profiteers are to be investigated and will be prosecuted if the constitutionality of Section 4 of the Lever act is upheld on appeal, according to an announcement made today by Vance J. Higgs, special prosecutor for the Government.

Higgs received yesterday 10 complaints of extortionate charges for anthracite. The advances reported were as much as $2 a ton over the Government restricted price, which recently was removed. One of the persons who complained said that a dealer refused to sell at any price.

It is evident, Higgs said, that dealers who bought the hard coal at low prices are either selling at excessive prices or holding it for even higher prices than they dare to charge now.

The defense of the dealers, he assumes, is that they have to sell at replacement cost, but Higgs characterized their action as pure profiteering.

Section 4 of the Lever act defines as a felony the charging of unjust or unreasonable prices for necessaries. Federal Judge Faris recently held this section unconstitutional. An appeal has been taken. Higgs will have Department of Justice men investigate all complaints of overcharging and if Judge Faris is overruled he says he will prosecute the profiteers.

FORMER SERVICE MEN START WOOD FOR PRESIDENT CLUB

Special Effort to Be Made to Enroll Soldiers Who Were Trained Under General.

The preliminary organization of a Wood-for-President club of former service men was effected at a gathering of 15 former soldiers, sailors and marines at a luncheon today at the American Hotel. Al Grierson Jr., a private in the First Division, and one of the Grierson twins, will be temporary chairman.

Among the promoters of the organization are Maj. Gus C. Taussig, who was in the Tenth Division; Capt. John Lehmann of the Eighth, and Walter Anschuetz, a private.

Every soldier who was either a soldier, sailor or marine will be invited to join, and particular attention will be given to getting men in divisions trained by Gen. Wood. A mass meeting of ex-service men soon will be held to perfect the permanent organization. The temporary headquarters are in room 509 Merchants-Laclede Building.

Mensheviks at Soviet Congress Protest at Bolshevik Tendency to Centralize Power in Moscow

By LINCOLN EYRE,
(Copyright, 1920.)

PARIS, April 4.—Following the acceptance of the peace resolution by the Soviet Congress in Moscow, Lenine embarked upon a general dissertation of the situation in which the country found itself. I had been told that Trotzky was a finer speaker than his chief. Indeed the Bolsheviki regard the War Commissary as their most eloquent spokesman. To me, however, his oratory was most disappointing. He stood bolt upright and delivered himself of sharp, close clipped sentences much like a commander addressing his troops. His admirers concede that the manner was acquired through haranguing red soldiers and at no time stirred his hearers to these outbursts of almost delirious enthusiasm evoked by Lenine.

Lenine's words—of course meaningless to me, who am wholly without knowledge of Russian—seemed to flow more smoothly than Trotzky's and his air was more human and less machine like. His appearance on his feet suggests a combination of scholar and prize fighter. The feline lightness of his gestures remind one of that athletic art known as shadow boxing. He has a peculiar way of cramming his hands into the pockets of his coat, leaning forward on the tip of his toes and then flashing them out again in pugilistic fashion, but with the index fingers pointed straight at his audience. Never for a moment is he still, always he is shifting his position, and so swiftly that the end of a short phrase may find him 10 feet from where he stood at the beginning of it.

Lenine Is Ousted.

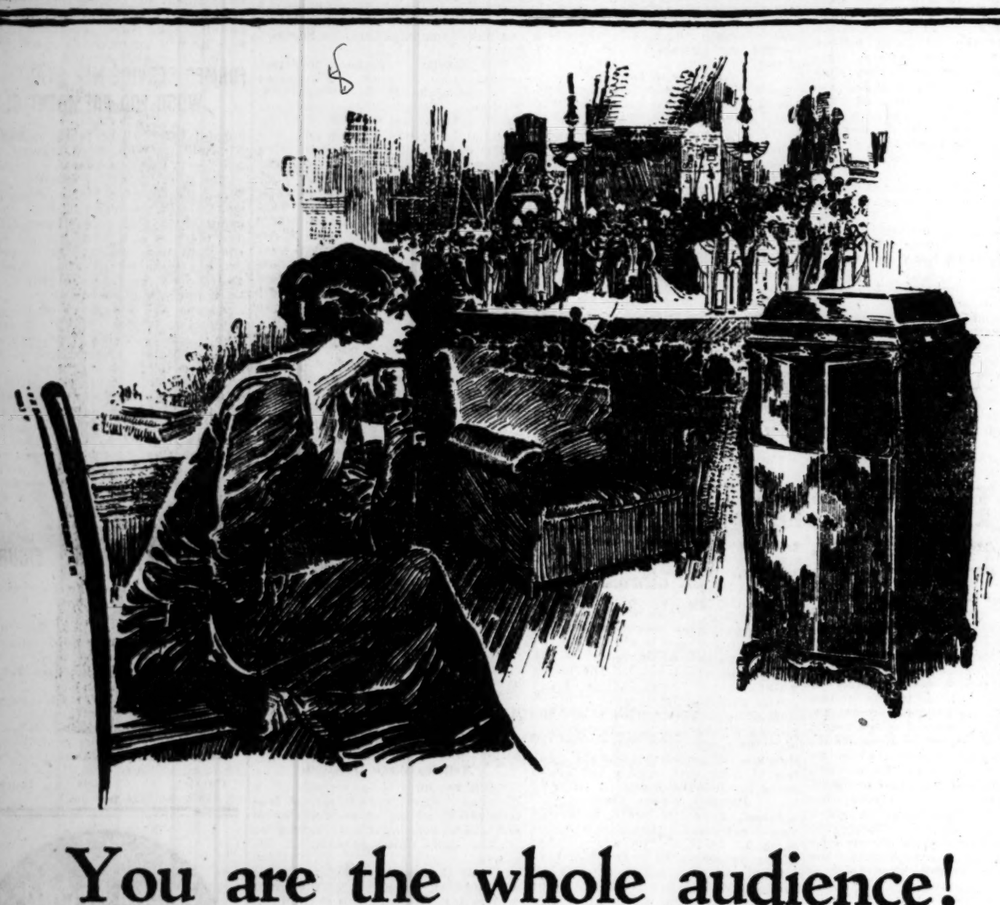

Since space forbids a textual recitation of his speech, which the Bolshevist press hailed as one of the most important he had ever made, I restrict myself to quoting numerous characteristic excerpts from which may be gathered a fairly adequate conception of the whole. He began: "We have always said both before and after the October revolution that we regard ourselves merely as a detachment of the international army of the Proletariat which has come to the fore by no means in proportion to the development and preparedness of the International Proletariat but as a result of exclusive Russian conditions. It is only possible to count on a final victory of the Socialist revolution when the Proletariat is victorious, at least in a number of advanced countries. This factor has created the chief difficulty that we have had to experience. This shouldn't surprise us, for it was easier to commence the Socialist revolution in a country like Russia than in more advanced countries. But for all that, this slow, complicated development of the revolution imposed incredible difficulties upon us. Nevertheless the year under review stands out more than anything else for the fact that we have secured a gigantic victory, the more so that without any exaggeration we can say that our greatest difficulties are now behind us in spite of the dangers yet confronting us. The history of allied intervention divides itself into three main stages, in each of which we gained complete and decisive victory."

Lenine defined the Entente's first failure as its inability to get French and British troops to fight against the Red Russians, and said: "For thinking that the workers and soldiers exploited by international capital would manifest their sympathy for us, in the long run we have been accused of being Utopians. Experience has shown, indeed, that we cannot always depend upon the action of the proletariat abroad. Still, thanks to the true class instinct of the workers and the peasants in the Entente armies the British and French were compelled to withdraw their troops. This was our greatest victory over them. Against the infinite military and mechanical superiority of our enemies we placed the solidarity of labor and we won. Our enemies shout about democracy, but not in a single Parliament have they dared to say that they have declared war on Soviet Russia.

Benevolent Neutrality Gained.

"Then there arrived the second epoch of the Entente's interference in our affairs. Pressure was brought upon the small nations surrounding Russia, for whom war had won their independence, to fight against Russia with the aid of English, French and American money. How, these small nations had the impudence from the Entente viewpoint and from our viewpoint the stupidity of believing its promises about democracy and independence. They thought the Entente's democracy was real democracy, and that independence meant real independence, and not simply the enrichment of France and British capitalization. They thought they were to be really free and not simply objects of plunder for American millionaires and for officers and nobles who, for a paltry 100 per cent profit, consent to do the dirtiest kind of work. That is how we won, for the Entente's pressure on these little nations produced a reaction through which we gained their benevolent neutrality. They went against the all-powerful allies because they saw that the allies were plunderers who merely desired to oppress them. Our victories in the second are far more durable than they seem at the moment. I don't by any means exaggerate, and, in fact, I regard exaggeration as dangerous, but I have not the least doubt that the Entente will make yet further attempts to urge one or another of our neighboring small states against us. But our victory is stable. Further attempts may be made against us, but we will conquer them more easily because the small nations, in spite

How we did our Home over for less than $100.

YOU know that spring feeling of being sick of every room in the house. After living shut up all winter, the wallpaper seems dingy, the rugs ugly and every piece of furniture looks like something from the zoo.

Along about dandelion time, I always begin to shift things about, but the more I move them the worse they seem.

This year I was in despair. I made up my mind we would have to repaper and repaint, and buy a lot of new draperies, furniture and rugs. So I sent for the painter and the paperhanger. But when I got their estimates, I just had to lie down and rest. Then I made a tour of the stores, and oh! the lovely things I saw. And oh! the lovely prices!

At last one evening, I handed to my husband a list of the things I thought we needed, and the cost. He took one look at it, then at me, and we both burst out laughing.

"What do you think I am," he said, "a munition worker!"

Then came the reaction and we were both as glum as we could be. He sat with his eyes on the ceiling, and all of a sudden he said:

"Gee, how I hate that old chandelier!"

"Me, too," I replied, "but when we bought it, we thought it was exquisite."

"By Jove!," he said, "that reminds me. Coming out on the car one day I overheard an architect talking to his client. He was saying something like this. 'The trouble with half the homes in this city is that the lighting effect is wrong. People buy fixtures because they think they are pretty, instead of buying lighting effects. Oftimes, by simply changing the distribution of light, I have shown people how to save hundreds of dollars that they were intending to spend on re-decorating or on new furnishings. You see, the old-fashioned kind of lighting made a glare around the chandelier, and left great chunks of gloom along the walls and floor. The new idea in lighting is to get plenty of light in all parts of the room, without too much anywhere. This new system, called the Duplexalite, does that. It has made it possible for the first time to use in the home the Mazda C lamp, which is the most efficient and economical lamp yet discovered.

And then he went on to tell how it was made. It seems that most of the light rays go to the ceiling and are then deflected to all parts of the room, giving a soft radiance that makes every object in the room look its best, while other rays go directly downward through a glass disc giving an increased intensity for reading or working.

To cut a long story short, my husband made some inquiries the very next day. He found that Duplexalites had long been used in several of our leading retail stores and in the best hotels and were even going to be installed in his own office. He also found that in the home they could be used with beautiful shades of silk, cretonnes or parchments and so can be made to harmonize with any decorative scheme in any room, no matter how elaborate or how simple.

And when we found that an electrician could put up four or five Duplexalites in an hour, that settled it.

The upshot of it is—that for less than $100 we have succeeded in actually doing our home over, without repapering or repainting a single room, or buying a stick of furniture—just by changing the lighting. And, as they say in the movies, "You wouldn't know the old place now."

CENTRALIZATION OF BOLSHEVIK POWER AROUSES PROTEST

of their bourgeois system, have convinced themselves not by theory, but by experience, that the Entente is a beast more savage than the Bolshevist which is used as a bogey to frighten children among the civil middle class of the whole of Europe.

The third victory claimed by Lenine lay in the sympathy the Bolshevik regime has begun to inspire among the intellectuals of capitalist countries. In support of this thesis he quoted a declaration signed by a number of French litterateurs opposing the interventionist policy toward Russia. He went on to describe how the Russian peasants gradually abandoned their favorable attitude toward Kolchak because "the peasants, having experienced both dictatorships—ours and the capitalists'—have chosen that of the proletariat and will march with it to final victory."

Repeat Peace Proposals.

He continued: "Comrades, from what I have said of our international victories it follows and it seems to me that it is not necessary to dwell on this at length, that we must in the most calm and business-like manner repeat our peace proposals many times, because each time we do, in the eyes of every educated man, even of our enemies, we gain, and the educated man blushes with shame.

"This is what happened when William C. Bullitt arrived. Bullitt was received by Chicherin. He talked with me and Chicherin and in a few hours we drew up a preliminary treaty of peace. He assured us—these gentlemen like to boast—that America is everything and that nobody will pay attention to France in the face of the power of America. When we had signed the treaty both the French and American ministers did this (Lenine made an eloquent gesture with his foot), Bullitt was left with a scrap of paper and his chief said to him, 'who would have thought that we were so naive and foolish to believe in the democracy of England and France.' The result of the full text of the treaty we drew up with Bullitt was published in French and republished in all the American and English newspapers. So our foes appear before the whole world rather as scoundrels rather than foes. All sympathy of even the least educated bourgeoise who remembered that at one time they also struggled against their czars and kings, was transferred to us because we in a business-like way signed peace conditions of the most difficult character, saying we value the blood of our people and our soldiers highly. We will pay you traders a high price for peace; we will make heavy sacrifices in order to preserve the lives of our workers and peasants.

"We are accused of terrorism. This reiterated accusation never leaves the columns of the press. We are accused of conducting terrorism on principle. To this we reply: 'You yourselves do not believe this calumny.' The French historian Aulard, who wrote a letter to Humanite, writes: 'I have studied history and when I read that in Russia there are only monsters, freaks and bogeys, I say that is exactly what was written about Robespierre, and I do not mean to compare these great men with the Russians with whom they have nothing in common. But I say as a historian that one should not believe all these rumors.' When a bourgeois historian begins to speak in this fashion we see that fog of lies which was spread about us is lifting.

Terrorism in Defense.

"We say that terror was forced upon us. They forget that terrorism of the all-powerful Entente. Is it not terror when a world fleet blockades a starving country? Is it not terror when foreign representatives, relying on their alleged diplomatic inviolability organize White Guard revolts? One must look at things soberly. One should remember that international imperialism had staked everything on the suppression of the revolution and does not stop at anything. If we had attempted to use words and persuasions in this war, created by the international plunderers, bestialized by war, we would not have lasted two months; we would have been fools. Terror was imposed upon us by terror of the Entente, terror of the all-powerful capitalism which strangles and condemns workers and peasants to death by starvation for daring to fight to redeem their country.

"Every victory we secure on the basis of this terror will result in that we shall eventually be able to dispense with this form of convincing the peasantry who are more and more coming over to our side. We are accused of creating incredibly difficult conditions for the middle class, for the bourgeoisie intellectuals. To this we reply that the imperialistic was a continuation of imperialist politics and for that reason it called out the revolution. Everybody felt that the war was conducted by the Bourgeoisie for predatory interests and that in this war people were being exterminated and the Bourgeoisie was growing rich. This fundamental motive which runs through the whole policy of the Bourgeoisie in all countries ruins and will ruin it to the very end. Our way is a continuation of revolutionary politics and every worker and peasant instinctively feels that this war which imposes all sacrifices upon the workers and peasants, nevertheless, does not stop at imposing sacrifices upon other classes. We know that this is more difficult for them than for workers and peasants because they belong to the privileged class. But we say that when it is a question of liberating the exploited millions of workers, a government which hesitated before imposing sacrifices upon other classes would not be a Socialist Government, but traitors.

Burdens Blamed Upon Allies.

"If burdens have been imposed upon the middle classes, then it is because of unprecedented difficult conditions imposed upon us by the Entente. Every victory that we gain—this we see by experience and I cannot dwell on it in detail just now—results in that all the wavering elements arrive at the conclusion that there is no other choice, except between dictatorship of labor or the power of exploiters. If heavy burdens have been placed on these elements, then this fault lies not with the Bolshevik Government but with the Entente and White Guards and victory over them will be a real and stable guarantee of the improvement in the position of all classes.

"Comrades, the task now confronting us is to employ the experience acquired during our military operations in the sphere of social construction. Nothing fills us with such joy at this turning point in Soviet Russia as the fact that the most difficult period of civil war which we have been conducting is behind us and that before us lies that work of peaceful construction which attracts us most, in which we all must share and to which we have dedicated all our efforts and all our lives."

Citing the food problem as the hardest existing at the moment, Lenine said the peasants had to be taught that freedom to sell bread at unrestricted prices in a starving country merel means freedom to pile up fortunes and so could not be tolerated. "We say to the peasants," he observed, "as members of the working class, you cannot say that it is not just that you should give your corn to the commonwealth workers at a fixed price and not at speculating prices, which would be a return to that exploitation against which we are fighting." Peasants are gradually becoming accustomed to this idea and in many districts it is being applied to full hundred per cent. So that in spite of the smallness of our success, on the whole we are making excellent headway. There cannot be the slightest concession on the bread question. If the peasants will give corn to the state all difficulty will be overcome and the workers' debt to the rural population be paid three fold when our industries are rehabilitated."

Lenine listed the fuel shortage and epidemic menace as the next most important problems. His statement: "The Red army has now become a national army which means the unity of the city proletariat with the great mass of peasantry," also excited his auditors. "The phrase dictatorship of the proletariat," he exclaimed, "was used as a bogy by the peasants. But now the peasants have turned against this bogey and are realizing that although the dictatorship of proletariat sounds wise and Latin, it merely means the Soviet Government which truly represents both urban and rural toilers."

Mensheviks Is Nervous.

The convention's second day was devoted to discussion of Lenine's address on the part of the opposition spokesmen, and in which Bolshevik delegates are made passive but by no means disinterested observers. A hostile murmur, quickly stilled, however, by Lenine's upraised hand, greeted the appearance at the speaker's rostrum of Dan, one of the Mensheviks officially accredited to the convention. Dan's voice trembled from nervousness at the outset of his discourse, but he soon got control of himself and despite numerous angry interruptions, proceeded to express his dissatisfaction with the Bolshevik regime. He admitted that Soviets were proving themselves a fairly efficient and increasingly democratic system of administration.

His complaint, he said, was not so much against the soviets as against what he termed the Bolshevik tendency to withdraw power from these organs and deposit it in hands of a central oligarchy at Moscow. Lenine grinned amusedly and buried his head deep in the fur collar of his overcoat while his followers were showing in catcalls and hisses their distaste for Dan's observations. The Menshevik won a storm of plaudits in the end, however, by his praise of the Red army, victories over the foes of the revolution which he agreed all Russian Socialists should seek to pre-

Your Earning Power and Your Need of Sleep

© Simmons Company, 1920

IT'S a big temptation these days, with so much to be done, to cut down your sleeping time.

But the busier you are, the more you need the perfect relaxation that only good sound sleep can give.

Far from promoting perfect sleep, the typical wooden bed or ordinary metal bed creaks, rattles, and sways, preventing that sound repose which can be had only in a sturdy, noiseless bed.

You should know the Simmons Bed—

The noiseless bed—

The bed built for sleep.

Thousands of people will tell you that they never realized how deep and sound sleep can be, until they discarded wooden beds and ordinary metal beds for a Simmons Bed—noiseless, restful, sleep-inviting.

Simmons Company are pioneer makers of Metal Beds built for sleep—

Makers of those wonderful Simmons Springs, that really do invite the body to lie out flat, every muscle relaxed—

Specialists, too, in Twin Beds—that fine principle of a separate bed for every one, so that one sleeper does not disturb the other, or communicate a cold or other ailment.

Ask the leading dealer in your section about Simmons Steel Beds, Brass Beds, Springs, Day Beds and Children's Cribs—the most popular sleeping equipment in his store.

They cost little if any more than ordinary beds and springs.

And when you are selecting your Simmons Beds with an eye to their appearance in the room, you will see that Simmons has for the first time established beautiful and authoritative design in Metal Beds.

BOND SPEAKERS' WORK OUTLINED AT DINNER

Men and Women to Uge Passage of Municipal Issue at Meetings and Theaters.

Speakers for the $24,000,000 municipal bond issue, in neighborhood meetings and moving picture theaters for the next five weeks, will present reasons why all of the 18 items of the bond proposal should be supported by voters at the special election May 11.

The work of the speakers was outlined at a dinner given at the City Club last evening, which was attended by more than 100 men and women. A number of the men were among the most effective of the Four-Minute Men, volunteer speakers who served the Government in its publicity work during the war period.

The dinner speakers gave instructions and suggestions to the guests. Mayor Kiel asked that the speakers, in going about the city, emphasize the fact that every registered voter is entitled to vote on the bond issue. The idea seems to have gone out, he said, that only taxpayers are entitled to vote.

Each of the 18 proposals, to carry, must receive an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the votes cast on that proposal. This means that for every vote against the bonds, two votes must be cast for them. The task of interesting voters, and getting them to turn out to the polls, was outlined as being of great importance.

Speakers who took up various items in detail were: President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service; William T. Findly, Harland Bartholomew, engineer of the City Plan Commission; Director Schmoll of the Department of Public Welfare; Chairman Lovelace of the Bond Campaign Committee, and Howard Rhodus, vice chairman of the speakers' division.

UNION OFFICER GETS $96.25 VERDICT IN SUIT OVER ARREST

O. J. McSpadden Obtains Judgment Against W. C. Rogers and H. H. Stacey in $350,000 Action.

A judgment of $96.25 was awarded to O. J. McSpadden, a national officer of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, yesterday in the Circuit Court at Clayton against William C. Rogers, vice president of the Employers' Association of St. Louis and H. H. Stacey, a chauffeur, who were charged by McSpadden with having "framed" his arrest June 21, 1919.

Suit was filed originally by McSpadden for $350,000 damages. Similar ones were also filed by union officials against the Wagner Electric Co., Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and others totaling $1,350,000. A demurrer was sustained last week eliminating all defendants except Stacey and Rogers.

The arrests were made in the strike of Bell telephone operators in June, 1919, when McSpadden and others were charged with abducting three striking operators and conveying them to a St. Louis county roadhouse. All were released for lack of evidence and union officials said their reputations had been damaged to the amount asked.

NEGRO GETS LIFE FOR KILLING WIFE'S SISTER

Benjamin Sanders Pleads Guilty of Murder in Hawthorns Boulevard Garage.

Benjamin Sanders, 24 years old, a negro chauffeur formerly employed by Henry E. Griesedieck, 3250 Hawthorne boulevard, was sentenced today to life imprisonment in the penitentiary for the murder of his sister-in-law, Vera O. Brooks, 20 years old, a negress, in the Griesedieck garage Nov. 6 last.

Sanders, in the presence of a large crowd of negroes—men, women and children—who had assembled to hear his trial, withdrew his former plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty of first-degree murder. The sentence was recommended by Assistant Circuit Attorney Lacy.

There was a demonstration on the part of the spectators when sentence was passed. Women relatives of the murdered girl wept and men in the audience mentioned that the restoration of the death penalty, which became effective last October, would have applied to Sanders' case in the event of conviction by a jury.

In response to questions by Judge Taylor, Sanders related the details of the crime. He told of taking the girl out riding in the Griesedieck automobile. When they returned to the garage, he said, he attacked her and she threatened to tell her sister, his wife. He then killed her with an iron bar, he said.

When he told of wrapping the body in a sack and taking it in the automobile to the Compton avenue viaduct, where he threw it out, the women relatives of the Brooks girl became hysterical and had to be silenced by a bailiff.

serve. Of the some half dozen so-called opposition labors that followed Dan, only one expressed important dissent from Bolshevism's governmental program. He was Bourevoy, leader of the "legal" right Social Revolutionaries. Commencing with the statement that the bulk of his group regretted their pro-Kolchak plottings of the year before and were now prepared to stand by the soviets against all external enemies, Bourevoy went on to proclaim his belief that the peasants were not getting a square deal in the matter of political representation. This aroused a perfect frenzy of hooting from the Bolshevik rural delegates. Bourevoy finally left the platform amid a derisive tumult, some excited representatives of the Communist party even calling for his arrest.

Sailor Delegate Speaks.

An interval of debate ensued during which a sailor delegate of the Baltic fleet delivered the Russian navy's homage to the convention and envoys from the Siberian army and from the newly captured city of Omsk, briefly reported on the events in the eastern war zone.

Then came the only really dramatic moment of the convention's five-day session—the unexpected appearance at the tribune of Martoff, Mensheviki's principal chieftain.

Chairman Kalinin announced that Martoff, though not a delegate, had been specially invited to express his views of the supreme authority of the Soviet Republic. The Bolshevik majority received their most eminent political opponent in chilly silence which the tiny Menshevik minority evidently feared to break by untimely applause. Speaking in a low voice, wholly lacking in that assurance which characterized Bolshevik orators' declarations, Martoff pronounced himself wholly in accord with the head of the soviet government, with whom in bygone years he had been associated both as political coworker and friend) as far as the peace proposals were concerned. "There can be no doubt," he said, "that the approach of peace is chiefly due to the soviet's success in military and diplomatic fields. I heartily second a policy that tends to promote peace, even at the expense of vast concessions to the enemy countries. Peace that is being prepared, however, is bound to be influenced in a large measure by the attitude of public opinion abroad toward the soviet government. Therefore I am obliged to say that the dictatorial procedure of our governing bodies should be modified and greater opportunity offered for democratic exercise of free speech."

At this point Martoff's words were drowned in the most violent manifestation of hostility that had thus far arisen. The delegates' wrath was finally calmed by the presiding officer, but the remainder of the Menshevik leader's dissertation was cut to pieces by virtually continuous interruption, Bolshevik members frequently springing to their feet and shaking furious fists at him. Martoff's theme appeared to be that only by granting equal political rights to all citizens could the Soviets achieve the reputation for real democracy, without which the country would not be able to solve its foreign and domestic problems. Like Dan, he affirmed his loyalty to the Soviet regime, but fear that the Soviets were surrendering too many of their prerogatives to the Kremlin despotism was even more expressively expressed in his speech than it had been by his fellow Menshevik. A sailor delegate yelled as Martoff walked off the stage, "The liberty Martoff wants is the liberty to destroy the revolution."

Bolsheviki Echo Charge.

The opposition's claim that the Soviets were not exercising as much power as they should, found a certain amount of echo among the Bolsheviki rank and file, notwithstanding the latter's angry reception of this criticism. Indeed, in the course of the few cutting sentences with which he replied to Martoff, Lenine thought well to invite each delegate to submit in writing the dates on which the provencial or local Soviet assemblies had met, in order that where it appeared that they had not been convened often enough steps should be taken to increase the frequency of their sittings.

When, on the third and fourth days of its session, the convention resolved itself into committees, each dealing with a particular phase of the national situation, the Government declared its belief that the time had come for the beginning of a decent realization process which should gradually augment the initiative and scope of the regional and communal councils—a policy directly in line with the minority's suggestions. The convention closed with a plenary sitting at which a long series of resolutions approving the Government's past activities and present program were passed by acclaim. The only significant development was a manifesto to "peasant toilers of all the Russias," in which the rural population was admonished to do its full duty by the commonwealth, and warned that only thus could it hope to obtain manufactured articles necessary for agricultural production.

It will be noted that while Lenine's casual references to a world revolution and the approaching downfall of the capitalistic Moloch elicited fervent applause, the convention was far more occupied with Russia's internal fabric than with matters of moment to the international proletariat. Indeed, Lenine's was the only important speech in which topics other than those having to do exclusively with Russian domestic affairs were dwelt upon. All the numerous discourses by representatives of the various Government departments of the armies and the provinces dealt entirely, or practically so, with the development of the Russian commonwealth and the opposition was developed along the same lines. Therefore it is that the impression of the seventh All-Russian Soviet Convention which is graven most deeply in my memory is that not of a set of wild-eyed agitators, seeking means to fire the world with the flames of Bolshevism, but of a body of more or less average men striving sincerely, albeit somewhat confusedly, for the betterment of their own nation.

Federal Men Find Roach in Bottle After Becoming Ill.

Warrants were issued today for the arrest of Joseph Parisi, proprietor of a saloon at Natural Bridge and Vandeventer avenues, and his bartender, Frank Parti, charging them with selling whisky yesterday.

The bottle from which drinks were poured was confiscated and four enforcement agents tasted the liquid, pronouncing it whisky. Each became ill. This morning a large roach was found in the bottom of the bottle. Parisi was arrested several months ago charged with violation of the wartime prohibition act but the charge was dismissed when he established that he was out of the city when the liquor was sold by a bartender.

WEST VIRGINIA LABOR MEN PERFECT POLITICAL PLANS

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 6.—A political organization that will be a "model of thoroughness and effectiveness," is being perfected for the coming election by the West Virginia Federation of Labor, according to the campaign plans, made public here today by C. K. Keeney, district president of the United Mine Workers.

The organization will function in every political subdivision of the State, from the Congressional district to the precinct, he said. In the precinct a committee of five for general work and for special duty at the polls on primary elections, will be named, he added, and there will be a "woman for every precinct, armed with a camera, to obtain pictorial proof of any questionable performance about the polls."

"Nothing will be too small for us to weigh," declared Keeney, "not even a candidate for constable."

Does Your Blood Need Iron?

How to Make the Test That Tells

A pale face, a nervous, irritable disposition, a lack of strength and endurance—these are the warning signals that Nature gives when your blood is getting thin, pale, watery and starving for iron. If you are not sure of your condition, go to your doctor and have him take your blood count, or else make the following test yourself: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired; next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. All good druggists sell Nuxated Iron, on the distinct understanding that if you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

BOTH CLUBHOUSE AND NAVY STATUE PLANNED

Directors of Campaign to Raise $500,000 Tell How Money Will Be Used.

Following a military and naval parade on Saturday, members of the Naval Veterans' Association of St. Louis are going among business houses and to residences seeking contributions to a fund they hope may reach $500,000, with which to establish memorials to the St. Louisans who gave their lives in the war while in the navy and to honor the men who enlisted here and returned.

Charles O. Layton, captain of the association, and G. E. Heneghan, executive officer, who are conducting the association's part in the campaign, yesterday gave to the Post-Dispatch a statement of how they expect to spend the money raised, whether it reaches $500,000 or not. They explained that some within their ranks favored a memorial statue and others a clubhouse, and to satisfy both it had been determined to establish both, if possible.

$50,000 for a Statue.

If less than $100,000 is collected, they said, half of the collection likely would be expended for a memorial and half for a clubhouse. The maximum for a statue will be $50,000, they said, so that the surplus over $100,000 would be applied exclusively to a clubhouse. They hope that this sum will be sufficient to erect a five-story building, as they have planned, but that if the sum is less they will scale down the clubhouse plan accordingly.

None of the money can be expended, they declared, without the sanction of Commander E. A. Brooks, who was in charge of the St. Louis recruiting station of the navy during the war and who now is employed at the First National Bank in an executive position. Brooks is treasurer of the fund. Members of the association, they said, have contributed $3000 to the expenses of the campaign. No salaries are paid, they declared, except to five stenographers at the campaign headquarters in the Republic Building, Seventh and Olive streets.

Agreement With Love.

The director of the campaign is C. H. Love, who is not a member of the association, but who has conducted similar campaigns through Missouri. The association has a verbal agreement with Love that if $100,000 or more is raised, $48,000 shall be spent for a statue of design which Love has submitted.

Love stated that if that sum is spent for a statue, his commission from a company he represents and which he expects to get the contract will be $5800. Love said that bids from companies other than his will be sought, but that he will have refusal of the order at the lowest bid. No agreement between him and the association is effective unless the collection reaches $100,000, Love said.

The officers state that the naval veterans of the war have waited since the armistice for some move on the part of the city toward establishing a memorial to their branch of the service. The present campaign is the result of the city's failure to move as expected, they stated.

NEW JUDGES NAMED FOR CITY CRIMINAL COURTS

Agreement on Assignment of Circuit Jurist Reached—Kimmel Next Presiding Judge.

Reassignment of Circuit Judges, effective July 1, was tentatively agreed upon yesterday. By the arrangement Judges Taylor, Klene and Garesche, who are presiding in the criminal divisions, will resume stations in the civil divisions at the Courthouse, and they will be succeeded at the Municipal Courts by Judges Hall, Landwehr and Hartmann, who will serve there for one year.

Judge Kimmel is to be the presiding Judge, sitting in the assignment court. Judge Falkenhainer at present in the assignment court, is to go to an equity court, No. 13, relieving Judge Shields, who will preside in No. 7, a jury division. Other reassignments were Judge Hogan from a jury to an equity division, and Judge Davis from the latter division to a jury room.

LAW ENFORCEMENT ISSUE IN KANSAS CITY ELECTION TODAY

James A. Cowgill Opposed for Re-election as Mayor by Matthew A. Foster, Republican—Heavy Vote Expected.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 6.—Republicans and Democrats of Kansas City cast their ballots today for municipal officers.

The Republican ticket was headed by Matthew A. Foster, candidate for Mayor. On the Democratic side Mayor James A. Cowgill, headed the ticket as candidate to succeed himself.

Both parties had made an active canvass and it was predicted the vote would be heavy. Laxness of law enforcement was charged against the administration by the Republicans and that issue became the dominant one of the campaign.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

GEORGIA HAMILTON.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance, the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness, and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, dull eyes ought to brighten and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health. Miss Georgia Hamilton, who was once thin and frail, reporting her own experience, writes: "Bitro-Phosphate has brought about a magic transformation with me. I gained 15 pounds and never before felt so well."

CAUTION—While Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for the relief of nervousness, general debility, etc., those taking it who do not desire to put on flesh should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.

Would You Gain a Pound A Week for Three Months?

Then begin taking regularly three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets, which are made from a health-germ of ordinary yeast and combined with hypophosphites and an absorptive phosphorus.

Physicians and chemists assert that this tablet is very largely used for increasing the weight and improving the nervous system because of its aid to digestion, assimilation and absorption. The food elements which go to make blood and solid tissue is retained when this treatment is regularly used for several months. Most apothecary shops supply them in sealed packages.

This Actually Removes Superfluous Hair Roots

(Entirely New and Quick Method)

By the introduction in this country of what is known as the "phelactine process," any woman can now rid herself completely of annoying superfluous hair or fuzz. The process is entirely new, different from all others, and far better—because it actually removes the roots, as well as the surface hair. It is almost instantaneous, perfectly harmless, odorless and non-irritating.

Just get a stick of phelactine from your druggist, follow the simple directions—and see the hair roots come out, with your own eyes! No depilatory or electrical treatment can produce this result. The skin is left soft, smooth and hairless as a child's. Phelactine can be used with absolute safety—one could even eat it with impunity.

WHITE OWL

An Achievement

SMOKERS are commenting on the unvarying goodness of White Owl cigars as never before. The fragrant quality of White Owl stands out more and more as a distinct achievement. Only the great resources and long experience of the General Cigar Co., Inc. could have produced such a cigar.

Immense stocks of fine tobacco kept in reserve insure the curing of all leaf from one to two years. Only when this leaf reaches the highest point of fragrance do our experts release it to be made into handsome White Owl Cigars.

This long Invincible shape gives fragrant White Owl the look of a much more expensive cigar. It also helps the fine draft and even burn so characteristic of White Owl.

If you are looking for a fine cigar at a reasonable price, we recommend mild White Owl.

HARTS DENIES SOLDIERS WERE "STRONG-ARMED"

At House Committee Hearing, Commander of Paris District Objects to Use of Phrase by Representative Bland.

BLAND SAYS OFFICERS ASSAULTED PRIVATES

General Admits Overcrowding of Prison and Lack of Beds and Blankets—Says British Would Have Shot Prisoners.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Charges that "strong armed, blood-thirsty police companies swept the streets of Paris making wholesale arrests of American soldiers," were denied today before a House war investigating committee by Brigadier-General William W. Harts, former commander of American troops in the Paris district. Gen. Harts, who was ordered home from Germany, where he served as chief of staff of the American forces, to testify, also denied that prisoners were "put through a third degree to obtain confessions of crime," or that they were "beaten, threatened and inhumanely treated."

Representative Bland, Republican, Indiana, who questioned the witness, read reports of specific cases in which officers were said to have assaulted soldiers and asked whether Gen. Harts took action in those cases. Gen Harts said he always followed recommendations of inspectors.

"That's the trouble," Bland returned, "hard-boiled, strong-armed practices were used constantly and no one was punished."

"I object to the words strong-armed," said Gen. Harts.

Charges "Third Degree' Methods.

Representative Bland charged that soldiers "were put through the third degree," but Gen. Harts said he had not been informed of such conditions.

"That's why you are before this committee," Bland replied.

Ten thousand men passed through the prison in Paris in four months, Gen. Harts said. Some were held overnight and others for long periods.

"I knew that the four rooms of the prison were overcrowded," the witness said. "I visited them frequently. Conditions were bad and I knew they were."

"Conditions were worse than you know or wish to admit," Bland interrupted. "Men were crowded into four rooms, sleeping on the floor. Twelve men slept in a room 15 feet long."

Gen. Harts replied that the committee desired "to fasten something on him." It was his desire, he said, to tell the facts.

Overcrowding Admitted.

Representative Bland said 52 men slept in a room 20x15 feet, directly above Gen. Hart's office, without blankets, beds or ventilation.

"That is true," the witness replied. "Blankets were sent to the men from the front. They would have had blankets if they had been in Paris legitimately."

"That explains the whole attitude of the Paris command," Bland replied. "They were there and you didn't care what became of them."

"Not at all," Gen. Harts retorted. "These men were sulkers—duty dodgers, who didn't remain with their divisions. The British shot such men. Our object was to get them back to their organizations as soon as possible. It was remarkable that we accomplished what we did."

HIGH STAGE OF MISSISSIPPI RIVER THREATENS MUSCATINE LEVEES

By the Associated Press.

MUSCATINE, Ia., April 6.—With a further rise of two feet in prospect and the levees in the vicinity of the city threatened by the present stage of the Mississippi River, hundreds of men and teams are now being employed to elevate the barriers against the high water and plans are being perfected for the relief of flood victims.

The city and county has authorized the immediate expenditure of $12,000 for construction work along the levees which protect the southern part of the city and the Muscatine Island district.

South Muscatine and the island will be under five to six feet of water if the levees, which are in places only a foot above water now, give way.

It is estimated that 100,000 acres of tillable ground, the large part of which is devoted to truck crops is in danger of overflow.

Breaks in the levees have already been observed by patrols which are being maintained day and night and the hasty assembling of large crews alone averted the threatened breaks.

The local post of the American Legion is expected to assume night patrols along the levees this evening.

Do You Stop—and Belch?

Sure Sign of Acid-Stomach

"Makes the Body Sour"

Because of universal stomach trouble—rarely do you find anyone these days—who does not belch, say "Pardon me," then go on talking.

Along with this embarrassing trouble goes Bad Breath, Food Repeating, Heartburn, Sour Acid Gassy Stomach. Millions suffer from Overeating, Indigestion, or some of the seventy non-organic diseases caused by Acid-Stomach.

Saps Your Strength

An Acid-Stomach does not hold food long enough to thoroughly digest it but hurries it out, a sour, fermenting mass, forming gasses and harmful acids—that can not make good blood—flesh—bone and brain.

Day and night this goes on, doing ceaseless damage. Stomach troubles, like Belching, Indigestion, Heartburn, etc., are Nature's warning to look out—get rid of your Acid-Stomach—or something worse will happen to you.

A New Method Takes the Acid Out

It is called EATONIC—a tablet—good to eat, like candy. Learn its power to take up and carry the Excess Acid out of the body. For the sake of yourself and family, try EATONIC. Realize the benefits that words cannot tell.

EATONIC is different—it takes up, just like a sponge, the harmful acids and gasses and carries them out. Other methods try to change the form of the excess acid but leave it in the body. It is better to take it out; then it can do no harm.

The EATONIC tablets have been proven to be best in thousands of cases when others have failed. EATONIC also disinfects and purifies the entire digestive tract; drives out the gas and bloat. You can fairly feel it work. It's a natural, harmless remedy—acts quick. Simply removes the Excess Acidity and of course the sufferer gets well.

Keep a big box of EATONIC at home. Carry a few in your pocket; take them daily. Then see how good you feel after you eat. Let your own stomach be the judge. EATONIC will save you suffering—may save your life.

Millions need this help. If EATONIC fails to please—IT DOESN'T COST ONE PENNY. No matter what you have tried or now use—don't give up hope. Over half a million have used EATONIC and were benefited. Frequently the first tablet gives instant relief. Leading druggists everywhere now sell and guarantee—

EATONIC

FOR YOUR ACID-STOMACH

Free

Simply send us your address on a postal and receive by return mail a big 50c box of EATONIC. Try it faithfully. If satisfied, send us 50c. If it fails to benefit you—the test is free—you do not owe us one penny. Address postal to Eatonic Remedy Co., Dept. 3, 1018 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Millions Are Suffering

They really don't know what ails them or how to get relief. Here are a few of the seventy non-organic diseases caused by Acid-Stomach: Headache, Nervousness, Insomnia, the "Blues," Rheumatism, Thin Blood, Emaciation, Gastritis, Heart Trouble, etc. Give EATONIC a test—stops Belching—makes you feel good.

The Animals Know!

Yes, the deer know! They go to "deer licks" to lick up the salt.

And we humans should know that "salt" is Nature's own remedy. Salinos is just a wonderful "salt."

Because we enjoy eating, we put all sorts of unmixable foods into our stomachs. Harmful chemical actions then follow and poisons form which produce, among many bad feelings, headaches and "heart-burns" and constipation; or the poisons may damage important organs of the body—sometimes the kidney or liver. We become "bilious" and "yellow complexioned" or "nervous" and "fagged." Then we can't work with zest. We lose courage. In this state of body one of many serious diseases is likely to develope. Now—corrects food mistakes. Salinos prevents many sicknesses—many diseases. Yet Salinos is simply four salts, all well known to the medical profession, put together in such a scientific way that Salinos is really the "pleasant laxative salts"—painless—safe and reliable.

Thousands of physicians prescribe Salinos. No home medicine-chest should for a day be without it. Four druggists out of five in your city have it.

Ask yours to send you the medium-size bottle (there are three sizes). Keep it on hand. When you see how wonderful it is—you'll unhesitatingly recommend it to others.

MRS. MARIE BUCK TO GET SON'S LEGACY

Court of Appeals Decides Will Case Involving Youth Who Ran Away to Sea.

The St. Louis Court of Appeals, in deciding a case involving a legacy, today held that a young man may be expected to outlive an old man; that a man cannot be presumed to have ended his life if there is no evidence of it, and that life on the sea is not so hazardous that a boy should be presumed dead after having been at it for one year.

The case was that of Mrs. Marie Buck of Denver, sister-in-law of the late Ralph Buck, stove manufacturer, in whose will was a provision for $2000 for his nephew, Ralph Buck, Mrs. Marie Buck's son. Ralph ran away and went to sea in 1909, after reading "Newby Newman, the Boy Who Went to Sea," a novel. Nothing has been heard of him since. His mother claimed his share of the Ralph Buck estate.

Ralph Buck died a year after his nephew disappeared. The defense claimed that the boy might have died, ended his life or been killed before his uncle died, which would have annulled the bequest. The Court held that these suppositions were not based on good logic, and ordered the money paid to the mother.

EAST ST. LOUIS VOTE LIGHT WITH FEW WOMEN PARTICIPATING

Labor and Nonpartisan Candidates Contesting, Each With Complete Tickets in Field.

The future activity of the Labor Party in East St. Louis probably will be determined by the encouragement accorded to the party in the election being held today. The party has a complete ticket in the field for park commissioner, assessor and supervisors. Only one other complete ticket is before the voters, it being designated as "nonpartisan" and comprises chiefly representatives of the Democratic and Republican parties.

The vote during the morning was lighter than expected. The candidates say a large vote will be cast during the afternoon. Women are eligible to vote for all offices, except park commissioner, but few took advantage of the franchise this morning.

The Labor Party ticket comprises largely representatives of labor unions and they expect a solid labor vote to be cast for the entire ticket.

INVESTIGATION OF GASOLINE PRICES ORDERED BY HOUSE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 6. — The Federal Trade Commission was directed yesterday by the House to make immediate investigation into the causes of recent advances in prices of gasoline, fuel oil and kerosene.

A report not later than June was called for under a resolution adopted without a record vote and which also asked that the commission determine whether "any combination in restrain of trade exists between those engaged in the oil business."

Representative Howard, Democrat, of Oklahoma, the only member to speak against the resolution, characterized it as "political legislation" that would only "harass" business.

M'CULLOCH-CAMERON CASES UP

Circuit Attorney McDaniel and his special assistant, A. C. Maroney, departed for Springfield, Mo., shortly after noon today, to be present in the Greene County Circuit Court when the burglary and larceny cases of Richard McCulloch and Bruce Cameron, who were officials of the United Railways at the time of the theft of the citizens' referendum petitions, are called. McCulloch and Cameron were indicted for burglary in the first degree and larceny in connection with the theft.

The cases will not go to trial tomorrow, McDaniel said, but will be set for an adjourned term, probably late in May, when the court will have no other business before it. He said he understood that counsel for the defense would be present and that certain motions probably would be argued.

Subscriptions totaling $90,321 were announced today as a result of the campaign started three weeks ago among Washington University alumni and former students to be applied on the $2,000,000 salary endowment fund movement in behalf of the institution. These figures include all subscriptions received up to 5 p. m. April 1.

The following amounts, which are included in the total, were raised last week: Alumni—Arts and sciences division, $4607; medical, $1835; law, $370; dental, $225. The students now attending the university, who also are aiding in the campaign, reported a total for last week of $5751.50, bringing their grand total to date $11,416.

WILL FLY, FLOAT AND SUBMERGE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 6.—"The airship which will fly and, in fact, float and submerge is," in the judgment of Sir Fortescue Flannery, M. P., "no impossible dream of the future." He added that some of those present might live to see this materialize.

Keep Your System Clean and You Will Be Healthy

Elimination helps to avoid colds, headaches and epidemics

ANYONE who has watched himself knows there is nothing so important to health and comfort as regular daily elimination. Half of the minor illnesses of life are due to neglect of this. The five million men who were in our army know the importance the doctor attached to this function.

By all means try to regulate yourself by intelligent diet and exercise, but when these fail you will need a laxative, one as near to nature in its action as skill can make it. In the opinion of many thousands of good Americans such a one is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. It acts promptly, gently and without griping and will with certainty regulate any tendency to constipation that you may have.

Take it when you feel drowsy, dizzy or bilious, when you feel a cold or a fever coming on, when there is an epidemic, when you have eaten anything about which you are in doubt. It is at such times that you need to be free of poisons and of fermenting foods. You can buy Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store. Thousands of families have it constantly in the house against emergencies.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, there being over 6 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 511 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

Persians Predict Red Flag in East.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, April 6.—At a meeting of the Persian Communist party, held March 27, a manifesto was issued saying: "The time is not far distant when the red flag of the free proletariat will be raised in the East," according to advices received here.

Make Your Skin Like Velvet

DON'T you wish your face was as smooth and fair as your body? It would be if protected from wind and dust. If you want a clear smooth skin.

Try this simple formula—

"A little CREME ELCAYA rubbed gently into the skin; then if you need color, a very little Elcaya rouge spread carefully over the cheeks before the cream is quite dry; and after that the film of face powder over all."

CRÊME ELCAYA

is a delightful, non-greasy, disappearing toilet cream that makes the skin like velvet.

Your dealer has ELCAYA and has sold it for years. Ask him.

A SURE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

MARIO AND BALLESTER STAR IN 'RIGOLETTO'

BY RICHARD L. STOKES.

THE opera purveyed by the San Carlo company, which began a series of eight performances with Verdi's "Rigoletto" last night at the Odeon, is the only commodity heard of which has not increased its cost for the consumer, and at the same time has improved its quality. The price is still at the $2 scale, as it was when the company first visited this city several years ago; yet the initial production was, in many respects, the most artistic which Impresario Gallo's troupe has yet offered in St. Louis.

This magnanimous policy was rewarded by a big attendance and by applause recalling those uproarious evenings one reads of at Italian opera houses. There were hundreds of Italians present, and the air resounded with stamping feet, beating palms and cries of "Bravo!" and "Bis!"

The climax of the tumult came with the great duet between Rigoletto and his daughter, sung at the end of the third act by Miss Queena Mario and Vincente Ballester. It seemed possible that the seats might be torn up, until the singers appeased the clamor by giving the number a second time. Then, despite the struggles of singers and conductor, the opera was not permitted to continue until the famous quartet—sung by Miss Mario, Stella de Mette, Ballester and Romeo Boscacci—had been repeated.

Miss Mario's Appealing Gilda.

The events of the evening featured by the approval of public and connoisseurs alike were Miss Mario's notable interpretation of the role of Gilda, and the capital performance of the title part by Ballester, a youthful Spanish baritone who made his St. Louis debut last night.

Miss Mario will be recalled as the charming and accomplished young American soprano, a pupil and protege of Mme. Marcella Sembrich, whose coloratura skill created enthusiastic comment during the San Carlo engagement here a year ago. It will not be pretended, however, that Miss Mario's delivery of the bravura aria, "Caro nome," was quite so brilliant and facile as was her mad scene in "Lucia" last year.

A true coloratura soprano is one of the rarest and most delicate of gifts; and Miss Mario's voice is near the end of the season during which it has been put to horrifying tasks of drudgery. She has sung three or four parts a week; in one period of 19 days she took 15 principal roles; and she was even compelled—much to the indignation of Mme. Sembrich when she learned of the imposition—to attempt the dramatic soprano part of "Madame Butterfly." It is remarkable that all the dew has not been brushed from her voice.

Yet it still remains, as was amply proved in the lyric passages of the part, one of the loveliest young voices in America—at its best seraphically dulcet, pure and tender. It has the sweet and appealing quality that glides through the ear and penetrates straight to the heart. Again and again recurred liquid notes, soft and exquisite, that seemed angelic rather than human.

Runs Gamut of Emotions.

On the side of expressiveness, few twelvemonths register so much progress as this studious and earnest young diva has accomplished since last year. Gilda is often regarded as a colorless role, which prima donnas are content merely to sing. Miss Mario has found a piercing pathos in the maiden of the opera who was so wickedly deceived in her love, who expiated with her innocence the baseness of her father, and who repaid the perfidy of her lover by giving her life for his.

Pure and gentle affection for her father, maidenly rapture and passion with her lover, heart-rending pathos in the hour of tragedy, resolute heroism at the moment of death—all these emotions in turn colored that sensitive voice, and directed the singer's motions, gestures and facial expression. Mme. Sembrich made the trip last fall from New York to Montreal to hear her pupil's Gilda, and is said to have exclaimed that no one at the Metropolitan could do it so well.

Blending perfectly with Miss Mario's soprano in the duet scenes was the baritone of Ballester. It is not one of those thunderous, roof-shaking baritones, but it is, especially above the staff, clear and ringing as a bell. Its quality is such that there was little surprise at hearing that Ballester sang several years as a tenor. His ease of tone emission would delight a vocal teacher, and his pellucid diction was a joy to the ear. While not so fiery and furious in acting the part of the ill-starred mountebank as Riccardo Stracciari, for instance, Ballester made the character so clear that one could almost follow its changes of mood without knowing the text.

"Madame Butterfly" Tonight.

Boscacci's light and mellifluous tenor was heard to advantage in the part of the Duke of Mantua, and his "La donna e mobile" was much applauded. Miss De Mette was as always capital in the brief but zestful part of Maddalena; others deserving comment were Pietro di Biasi as Sparafucile, Natale Cervi as Monterone, and Antonio Canova as the Conte de Ceprano. The entire performance was bound together into an artistic whole by the vivid and authoritative conducting of Gaetano Merola. From stars to chorus there was perfect team-work instead of individual display, and there was throughout an ease, a confidence and a finesse which are new to the company, and which bear testimony to the fine hand of the director.

Tonight's offering is "Madame Butterfly," with Rosina Zotti, and not Miss Sharlow, in the name part. The latter will be heard Wednesday afternoon in "Faust" and Friday night in "I Pagliacci." On the same night, Miss de Mette is to sing Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana."

POWDER BANNED; GIRLS STRIKE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., April 6.—The waitresses of the Watson Hotel went on strike yesterday when the management issued an edict that they must not use powder and paint when on duty. The edict was aimed at the girls employed in the kitchen also. All quit work.

The cafe and dining-rooms were crowded with diners when the order became known. One by one the girls walked out of the place, snapping their fingers at the order, which had been posted in the kitchen, reading: "Waitresses shall not paint or powder their faces in the dining-room or they must not sit down during business hours; no employe shall consume more than 50 cents worth of food at one meal."

LUXURIANT HAIR FOR YOU?

Of course you desire it. Then read of this wonderful hair elixir, KOTALKO

Worry no more about your hair, Miss, Mrs. or Sir! Throw away those liquid lotions that are only drying your scalp and doing no good whatsoever. Don't shampoo the natural oils out of your scalp.

There's a hair elixir that is meeting with increasing favor, for it is altogether different from the scented lotions, emulsions and washes. It is Kotalko, compounded from the Three Kingdoms of Nature and including twelve ingredients, one of which is the genuine bear oil, which you have heard of as marvelous in fortifying hair.

No matter what condition your hair is in—do not despair. Kotalko is compounded on the principle that aided Nature in giving me a full growth of hair when I was bald (see the picture below) and it is doing wonders for others—men, women and children.

I could fill this whole paper with replies of testimonials from persons who endorse Kotalko. The enthusiasm is great when a person finds, after all else has failed, that Kotalko is just what Nature needed as aid in producing a splendid growth of hair.

You may now obtain the genuine Kotalko under my guarantee at the drug store—or the druggist will get it for you, but take nothing else that is said to be "just as good," for you will then only delay your use of Kotalko. Or, if you wish first to prove Kotalko, send for a Testing Box which will come to you by mail promptly in a plainly wrapped package. Enclose only 10 cents, silver or stamps, in your letter.

Satisfy yourself. You want to stop falling hair, eliminate dandruff, strengthen and develop renewed growth of strong and silk-like hair, or cover that bald spot with hair. Buy KOTALKO at the druggist's; or get the dime testing box by mail NOW, apply once or twice daily—watch in your mirror! Address:

"FLORODORA" REVIVAL WELCOMED TO NEW YORK

Famous Double Sextette as Big a Hit as It Was 20 Years Ago, When Opera Was Produced.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Up almost to the last moment of the gala proceedings at the Century Theater last night, not one girl in the new "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden" double sextet had won a fortune in the stock market or become engaged to marry a multi-millionaire, an oversight on the part of the managers of the "Florodora" revival, which amounts almost to criminal negligence. But with this single upset of tradition, the rebirth of the dainty musical comedy of London origin, which was captivating all New York just 20 years ago, may be set down as a success—not an ordinary success, such as always comes on an Easter Monday night at the theaters, but a big, jolly, whooping, bona fide success.

The jam at the Century, which has just become a possession of the Shuberts, was as dense as if the circus had broken away from Madison Square Garden and moved up into Central Park West. There were expert accountants and lightning calculators at all the entrances, tabbing down the names of the elderly few who survive to boast that they were on hand that distant night at the Casino in 1900 when both the Twentieth Century and "Florodora" were new experiences—of which few, it must be confessed, this writer was one. It doesn't seem very long ago, but a new generation has come into the theater since "Florodora's" day.

It is long enough ago, nevertheless, for all the original "Pretty Maidens" to have become grandmothers now. And it is with their successors that this report first must deal. They are every bit as pretty as the ones at the Casino who made traditions for "Florodora." Their sly winks at the audience and their little catch-steps last night were just as captivating as before. Having displayed themselves in stunning heliotrope and cream gowns of the prevailing abbreviated mode, another set appeared in the train skirts and picture hats which were the fashion during the period of the musical comedy's ascendancy at the Casino—and this spectacle, which now seems so strangely grotesque, brought the most hilarious laughter of the night. As was to be expected, the double sextette, whether it was singing "Come and See Our Island," or the more popular "Tell Me Pretty Maiden," was the big hit of the opening, but otherwise the "Florodora" revival had been artistically and attractively made.

JOE HOWARD'S REVIEW AN AMBITIOUS NUMBER

Joe Howard, perennial song writer, is the top-liner on this week's Orpheum bill, with the most ambitious act which he has staged in several years. He has the assistance of a number of pretty girls, including Julia Rooney, daughter of the famous Pat. They present new songs and dances and repeat some of Howard's old favorites. It is a most colorful act, with gorgeous setting. It comes last on the bill, but they don't walk out on it.

Allen Rogers, a young American tenor, with a voice far above the vaudeville standard, sings several opera airs and some popular songs in fine style. Erwin and Jane Connelly have a clever little sketch in which humor and pathos are deftly blended. Of the Novelty Clintons, the man of the team is a most remarkable jumper and manipulator of stage falls. Paul Morton and Naomi Glass are back in their 1920-1950 sketch. Jack Osterman is a singer and monologist with youthful assurance.

COURT ORDERS FILED COPY OF WILL OF MAN SLAIN IN 1915

The St. Louis Court of Appeals today ordered filed a copy of a will made by Adolph J. Lang, who was found shot to death in an alley near Sarah street and Maryland avenue Feb. 24, 1915. Suit to have the will filed was instituted by Mrs. J. M. Hurwitz of Pittsburg, Kan., formerly of St. Louis, who was employed by the same firm that employed Lang.

Sig Lang, brother of Adolph, said after his brother's death that no will was found, and that he would administer the estate. Mrs. Hurwitz and Lang's sister, Mrs. Minnie Newman, however, produced what they said was a copy of the will. It provided a bequest of an 8-karat diamond ring to Mrs. Hurwitz and also the proceeds from a $5000 accident insurance policy. Mrs. Newman said her brother Sig knew of the will, and refused to file it. It left Sig Lang $1.

Adolph Lang had made a $5000 life insurance policy payable to Mrs. Newman, and a $3000 policy payable to her son.

PIONEER IN USE OF X-RAY DEAD

NEW YORK, April 6.—Dr. John A. Lee, known throughout the country as a pioneer in the use of the X-ray, died here Sunday. Death was due to burns suffered in experiments with the X-ray several years ago when this agency was only slightly understood.

Dr. Lee established the first X-ray hospital department in the United States at St. Mary's Hospital in Brooklyn. He received severe burns in 1905 and was forced to give up his experiments. In the succeeding years he underwent several minor operations as the result of the infection and lost a finger by amputation. The disease finally reached his lungs and caused death.

FARRIS ASKS FOR OTHERS' VIEWS

Frank H. Farris, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, yesterday sent to each of his opponents a letter calling upon them to state whether they were for or against prohibition and whether they were for or against the selection of Senator Reed as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention. Farris in an interview in the Post-Dispatch a week ago told of his intention to mail the letter.

It was addressed to Lieutenant-Governor Wallace Crossley of Warrensburg, John M. Atkinson of St. Louis, and Charles H. Mayer of St. Joseph. Farris said in the letter that he had declared himself on the two questions and asked that his opponents do likewise.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 6.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Continued easier money rates on the Stock Exchange, but no relaxing of the tension on the time loan market, and a reaction in sterling and the other European exchanges, but with late recovery in sterling, were the dominant factors in today's situation. The Stock Exchange reflected chiefly to 6 per cent call money rate and an irregular but at times considerable advance occurred in the industrial shares. All the more speculative issues trading was pretty much active all day, although activity was so unevenly distributed as to suggest some possible difference of policy under existing circumstances, between the different manipulator 'pools.'

"The money market was assumed to reflect the improvement of last week in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's position. Little attention was paid to the new amendment passed by Congress to the Federal reserve law, whereby the reserve banks and Reserve Board now have the power to exact progressively higher rates on banks which are using too freely the facilities of rediscount. In the congressional debate there was discreet absence of allusion to what Wall street is aware was the real purpose of the amendment, to restrain when possible the use of such credits by borrowing banks for the purpose of equipping speculation. One interesting incident of the day was a further decline in London money rates. 'Short bills' were quoted at 1⅝ per cent, as compared with 5⅜ and 5⅝ a week ago.

In yesterday's late afternoon trading, sterling exchange reached 4.06½. This rate was 80 cents per pound sterling below the normal parity, but 88½ cents above the low record of Feb. 4. In other words, considerably more than half the maximum depreciation has been canceled in less than nine weeks. This morning the sterling market hesitated, then yielded to $3.98¾. This was not unexpected, both because of the practically uninterrupted rise of 22 cents within a week, and because the reopening of business at London, after its four-day holiday, was reasonably certain to bring on the market an accumulated mass of ordinary trade bills. But the result of this selling movement was the same as on other recent occasions of the sort. The sales were absorbed with rather remarkable ease, and before the day was over it was evident that the pressure on the market was relaxed and that purchasers would have to bid for sterling. In response to these conditions the course of rates was reversed and sterling crossed $4 again.

This extraordinary recovery in sterling is, no doubt, in some degree connected with the mere influence of the English gold shipments and sales of securities, taken by themselves, on the balance of exchange. But the magnitude of the recovery is evidence that the real factor in the market has been restoration of international confidence. It is easy to understand, for instance, that with the rate falling in a fortnight from $3.60 to $3.18, the placing of foreign credit balances in London would virtually cease and withdrawal of balances already there might be accelerated. No foreign depositor could have looked with equanimity on the prospect of a 15 or 20 per cent reduction in the amount which his London credit would produce on the foreign exchange market drawn upon when needed.

The point to notice now is, that this influence has been substantially removed; not only because of reassurance at London's new policy in the gold market, but because of the very fact that the forward movement of rates has been steadily maintained. This aspect of the situation, largely psychological, lends interest to the question when and at what level of rates the sterling market will be reflecting primarily such influences as an adverse balance of trade in merchandise and a depreciated currency. Gold bullion sold in London today at 108 shillings per ounce, the lowest of the year to date. Making the usual computation on the basis of par for the mint price of 85 shillings, it will appear that today's London price of gold was 120, as compared with 125½ a week ago and 149¾ on Feb. 5.

REACTION DOWNWARD ON NEW YORK COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 6.—Yesterday's advance was followed by reactions in the cotton market during today's early trading. A disposition to take profits on long contracts was probably increased by reports that weather conditions were gradually improving in the belt, and after opening steady at a decline of 5 to an advance of 7 points the market soon turned easier. May contracts sold off from $40.25 to $40.05, while October broke from $34.80 to $34.45, or about 19 to 28 points below last night's closing. Trade interests were moderate buyers on the decline, but demand otherwise was much less active after the big buying movement of the previous day.

The weather map showing unseasonably low temperatures but no further precipitation in the South, encouraged reactionary sentiment and the market eased off to 39.83 for May and 34.45 for October, or about 28 to 32 points net lower. The buying by trade interests continued, however, and the market became less active later with prices ruling steadier on covering. May rallied to 40.15 and October to 34.62 around midday.

No fresh feature of importance developed during the early afternoon, but the outlook for continued cold weather in the Southwest led to some scattered covering. May contracts ruled around 40.18c and October 34.69c after 2 o'clock, or about 4 to 11 points net lower.

Money and Exchange.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Sterling exchange was under pronounced pressure during the first half of the day, enormous offerings coming from London, forcing demand sterling down to $3.98¾, compared with the high level of $4.06½ made late yesterday. Continental rates followed sterling on the decline, severe losses being sustained in rates on France, Italy and Scandinavia. German was in steady demand and showed a firm tone. Sterling rallied in the afternoon.

IMPROVED DEMAND FOR MANY STOCKS ON CURB MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 6.—The trading on the Broad Street curb was influenced more by developments in connection with various properties han by the display of strength on the Stock Exchange, although the easier money conditions and a general increase in confidence in the outlook also had a good deal to do with a pronounced improvement in the demand for many stocks.

The heaviest trading in the morning was in Island Oil, which sold at 8, but later reacted to 7, the buying being based on a statement that the company had brought in a new well with the production of 50,000 barrels. Official announcement was made that Middle States, Texas Chief and Dominion combination began drilling their first well this morning on the 20,000-acre lease immediately offsetting the Bell well, which came in on open production last Saturday. Geological experts employed by Middle States Oil made a preliminary report this morning, stating that this area will be equal to any oil producing region heretofore opened in the State of Texas. Active work was also reported in the Iowa Park section, where one of the Middle States subsidiaries, Texas Chief, began drilling its first offset to the Allen-Munger well. Ranger Texas Oil Co., another Middle States subsidiary, had a near by lease and also will drill at once. Skelly Oil showed pronounced strength advancing from 10⅞ to 11⅝. There was a good demand for Mexican Panuco, which rose from 15¼ to 16. General Asphalt during the forenoon ranged from 99½ to 101.

Industrials fell off in their trading volume and were less prominent in today's dealings. Cuban-American Sugar sold at 50 and Cleveland Auto was traded in at 78 to 80. Aetna Explosives sold at 9¾ and 9⅞. North American Pulp was firm with sales at 5½ and 5⅜. Sweets Co. was traded in at 3½ and 3⅜. American Safety Razor sold at 9½ and 9⅝. Allied Packing was traded in at 25 to 24.

LIVESTOCK

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., April 6.—Today's estimated livestock receipts: Cattle and calves, 5500; hogs, 15,000; sheep, 500; horses and mules, 650.

CATTLE—Receipts showed a material increase over yesterday, estimate calling for 5500 head, of which arrivals ran heavily to steer classes. Market averaged steady to strong on steers at the opening, but later several buyers received orders to cease operation owing to uncertain shipments eastward and market as a result eased off somewhat. Butcher cattle sold steady to strong. Veal calves sold all the way from 25@75c higher, top going up to $15.75. Steers topped early at $14.50 on two loads.

HOGS—Market started out 15 to 20 cents higher on choice light hogs and top advanced to $16.90, establishing a new record high mark for the year. Bulk of the good light hogs sold from $16.40@16.85. Shipping demand was just moderate, and after orders had played out, the market showed a tendency to weaken and it was thought the close would be lower. Strong weight and heavy hogs were little if any improved. Bulk of the good 250 to 260 pounders ranged from $15.75@16.35 and heavies from $14.75@15.75. A good many heavy hogs were noted. Pig market steady, with best weight and quality from $16@16.50 and lighter offerings from $14.50@15.75. Roughs unchanged, with bulk at $12.50 and a few at $12.75.

DISPUTANTS IN STUTZ CASE MAY COMPROMISE

Stock Exchange Governors to Throw Controversy Into Court Unless Agreement Is Reached.

NEW YORK, April 6.—As a result of the decision of the Law Committee of the Stock Exchange at a special meeting of the Governors yesterday, the Stutz controversy will be thrown into the courts unless a compromise is effected, which now seems likely. Allen A. Ryan had a long conference with some of the Governors yesterday, and while both sides maintained the usual silence it would not be surprising if a settlement were reached before the end of the week.

There seems to be no disposition by the Governors to take disciplinary action against Ryan, although they believe they are justified in their action so far and consider that criticism has arisen from a misunderstanding of their position. Ryan is equally positive he is right, but mutual concessions would relieve a situation which seems to threaten endless litigation.

Despite statements to the contrary, no big man is involved in the fight. Those who are mostly concerned are a lot of small gamblers who have accounts in the odd-lot houses. They cannot be said to represent the public, as the public does not sell stocks short.

The ruling by the Law Committee was as follows: The amount of the premium to be paid with respect to loan stocks is not a matter of regulation by the exchange in the judgment of the Law Committee. The exchange will not treat the failure to deliver Stutz Motor stock due to the inability of the contracting party under existing conditions to obtain the same as a failure to comply with his contract requiring action on the part of the exchange, pending the determination of the question of his liability by action at law or other appropriate proceedings."

Notwithstanding the suspension of trading in the stock, the Stutz Motor Co. yesterday formally applied to the New York Stock Exchange to list 20,000 shares additional common stock without nominal or par value. This is the first stock dividend and it is not only apparent that it was declared before the Supreme Court handed down its recent stock dividend decision, but that the directors of the Stutz Motor Co. had in mind several months ago the subsequent dividend of 80,000 shares, which was declared after trading in the stock was suspended. This shows it was not hastily determined upon to defy the Governors.

But for the fight the shorts would have been compelled to settle yesterday, when due bills for the 20-per-cent dividend were sent out, but under the protection of the ruling of the Law Committee the shorts refused to settle, and "unless there is a compromise the next move will be in the courts.

CORN MARKET OFF 3 CENTS IN THE LATER SESSIONS

Corn futures opened slightly higher here today, then sold about 1c under yesterday's final prices. Trading was influenced early by small receipts, but the market later showed pressure from sellers who secured profits on the late rally yesterday. There was little of importance in the market news.

Oats futures were steady with corn early, then reacted slightly when corn sold off. Trading was largely professional, however.

Corn was weak and over 3c lower in the late market. Oats were over 1c lower.

Clearances of wheat today were 44,000 bu; corn, oats and flour, none; wheat and flour, 44,000 bu.

CLOSE HEAVY ON THE CHICAGO CORN MARKET

CHICAGO, April 6.—Forced closing out of trades belonging to a firm which had been conspicuous of late on the bear side of the corn market led to a fresh advance today in the price of nearby deliveries of corn. As soon, however, as the open interest referred to had been covered, the market underwent a sharp decline. The forced buying was estimated at 1,000,000 bushels. The subsequent setback was ascribed to heavy calling of margins, as much as 15c a bushel on corn being demanded in some cases. Opening quotations, which ranged from ⅝c decline to 1⅞c advance, with May $1.66 to $1.67 and July $1.60 to $1.61, were followed by a tumble all around to well below yesterday's finish.

Oats lacked the artificial stimulus which at first lifted the corn market. From the outset weakness was apparent, owing to burdensome calls for greatly increased margins. After opening 1⅝c down to ⅝c advance, including July at 84c to 84¼c, the market underwent a general decline.

Upturns in the value of hogs gave relative firmness to provisions. Demand, though, was not urgent.

Confidence on the part of the bulls seemed to be much diminished after announcement that the Federal grand jury would investigate alleged manipulation of the market. Considerable liquidation by holders was in evidence. The close was heavy, 2⅝c to 3⅛c net lower, with May $1.62½ to $1.62⅝ and July $1.56⅛ to $1.57.

HOUSTON WARNS BANKS U. S. WILL BORROW HEAVILY SOON

Treasury Will Need Money Despite March Reduction of $705,660,000 in Public Debt.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Governors of Federal Reserve Banks were warned by the Treasury Department that the Government would be a heavy borrower in April and May, despite the March reduction of $705,660,000 in the public debt. The number or amount of Treasury certificates of indebtedness which will be necessary to meet the nation's needs was not disclosed, but another issue of such obligations is expected soon.

It was explained that while "important progress" has been made in lowering the gross debt, it was "a mistake to assume" that a reduction equal to that in March would be had next month. Fluctuations will occur in the amount of outstanding debt and these will follow the payment of income and profits tax installments, officials said.

For the first nine months of the fiscal year the Treasury shows a deficit of $214,000,000. But during that period the peak of the war debt was reached and a comparison of the public debt by months since Aug. 31 last reveals a substantial reduction both in the permanent and floating obligations, Secretary Houston said.

GRAND JURY TO INVESTIGATE ALLEGED MAY CORN POOL

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 6.—Alleged manipulation of corn in the Chicago market and existence of a pool to corner May corn will be investigated by the Federal grand jury which meets this afternoon, it was announced today.

Reliable sources at the Federal Building declared that an investigation by the Department of Justice had already disclosed evidence of the alleged conspiracy.

Corn yesterday sold at $1.67⅞, a record price for the year and 45 cents above the price on February 9 last. One result of yesterday's high price was the closing of the brokerage firm of E. M. Hoyne & Co., which announced its inability to protect its open trades on the floor.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

MARJORIE CARR.—The following is the "Gipsy Trail" by Rudyard Kipling:

The white moth to the closing bine,
The bee to the open clover,
And the gipsy blood to the gipsy blood
Ever the wide world over.

Ever the wide world over, lass,
Ever the trail held true,
Over the world and under the world,
And back at last to you.

Out of the grime and the gray
Gipsy, come away!

The wild boar to the sun-dried swamp,
The red crane to her reed,
And the Romany lass to the Romany lad
By the tie of a roving breed.

Where winds unhaltered play,
Nipping the flanks of their plunging ranks
Till the white sea-horses neigh.

The pied snake to the rifted rock,
The buck to the stony plain,
And the Romany lass to the Romany lad,
And both to the road again.

Both to the road again, again!
Out on the clean sea-track—
Follow the cross of the gipsy trail
Over the world and back!

Follow the Romany patteran
North where the blue bergs sail,
And the bows are gray with the frozen spray,
And the masts are shod with mail.

Sheer to the Austral Light,
Where the besom of God is the wild west wind,
Sweeping the sea-floors white.

Follow the Romany patteran
West to the sinking sun,
Till the junk-sails lift through the houseless drift,
And the east and west are one.

Follow the Romany patteran
East where the silence broods
By a purple wave on an opal beach
In the hush of the Mahim woods.

The wild hawk to the wind-swept sky,
The deer to the wholesome wold,
And the heart of a man to the heart of a maid,
As it was in the days of old.

The heart of a man to the heart of a maid—
Light of my tents be fleet!

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

BRIGHT DUNCE.—See answer to A. J. K.

P.-D. READER.—He must serve out his term of enlistment. He cannot buy his way out of the army.

ROD AND GUN.—The laws of Illinois permit fishing with a drop net in the back waters of Cahokia Creek.

MRS. M. C. A.—Under the laws of Mississippi, three years of actual occupation under a tax sale confers title to the land.

A. J. K.—If you are over 21 you will need a license to go crawfishing, otherwise you will not. There is no law against frog hunting.

A SLAVE ROSES.—You will continue to receive your insurance money from the War Risk Insurance Bureau if you remarry.

A. W. D.—There is no law requiring your neighbor to fence his lot, but if you and he agree to erect a division fence, each should pay half the cost.

A RURAL READER.—A woman who has divorced her husband without his knowing it while he was in the army cannot collect the allotments sent to her by the Government.

A READER OF THE P.-D.—Since A holds a deed of trust on B's home and C has a judgment against B for a debt, C can have the property sold at execution sale subject to A's deed of trust.

N. P.—If the notice to move was given to you after you had paid your rent, you do not have to move until a month after the next rent day, as the notice to move must be received before the rent day.

L. B. S.—You can find out from your lawyer or from the court whether he has gotten a divorce yet. If you want to be divorced, let him go ahead with his suit; if not, contest it.

ANXIOUS.—Section 2844 of the Revised Statutes must be complied with. This requires affidavits regarding the payment and the loss of the notes, to be presented to the Recorder. Its provisions are too long to print in full here.

MARY DOL.—We think the contract is good, if it was acknowledged before a notary by each of the contracting parties and recorded with the certificate of acknowledgment, in the Recorder's office. If it was not recorded it was good only between the parties and persons having actual notice of it.

MRS. HONEST.—Any woman becoming 18 years old in the fall of 1919 and who has made over $1000 from December, 1918, will be allowed $1000 exemption. A woman running a small restaurant should report only if her net profit is over $1000. If she is the head of a family her exemption is $2000; if not, it is $1000. There is a $200 deduction for each child.

TRUNK.—You must hold the trunk for not less than 6 months. You can then sell it, first giving 5 days' notice of the time place and terms of the sale, by advertising in a local daily paper. The proceeds of the sale, after paying the debt to you (the cost of the sale and storage charges, 50c on each parcel) shall be paid into the city treasury for the benefit of the owner, if he subsequently appears. If he does not claim it within one year it goes to the school fund.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

PACKARD.—We do not think there is any hair dye that is harmless.

A. C. W.—The goiter specialist you were inquiring about is in the Century Building.

SMITH.—The object of the Municipal Clinic is to help, not hinder or oppress. Only professional diseased women are confined. Apply at Room 35, Municipal Courts Building.

DAILY SUBSCRIBER.—There are schools for chiropody in New York City, and in Chicago. The term is eight months. In St. Louis all practitioners must register with the City Register.

P. W. B.—We do not know of any society that places patients in Barnes Hospital. If there is a bed available it should not be necessary to do anything more than apply for admission. Consult Dr. Burlingame, superintendent.

CONSTANT READER.—The wearing of your glasses should be governed entirely by the advise of your oculist. Follow his directions. Lines of the face are difficult to alter. Often they are caused by facial expression. Massage may correct them if regularly and persistently followed.

ATHLETE.—There are certain conditions where a prescribed form of exercise for the eyes is effective. The only oculist using this treatment, so far as we know, is located in New York City. If you should consider going there for treatment write to us again and we will secure his name and address.

BROWN EYES.—Massaging your neck may help. It is claimed that local fattening may be accomplished by inunctions of fatty substances, but we consider such results doubtful. The method of preparing sassafras tea is: Cleanse the surface thoroughly with soap and hot water, rinse in hot water and rub in some bland oil. Cod liver oil is perhaps the best, but it discolors and is objectionable on that account. Olive oil, lard, cocoanut oil are suggested. Amount of rubbing, one to two ounces. Sassafras is not of any advantage as a blood medicine. It has indeed, few virtues. It is used generally as a protective to the mucous lining of the stomach and intestines. While sometimes considered to have food value, it has little and in addition is likely to ferment and cause colic and diarrhoea. The only real practical value it has is to hold insoluble drugs in mixtures and in suspensions. A sallow complexion indicates malnutrition. Endeavor to improve the general health.

RANDOLPH DEMOCRATS ELECT DRY DELEGATES

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HUNTSVILLE, Mo., April 6.—The Randolph County Democratic Convention, selected by the advocates of a beer and light wines plank in the State platform as an advantageous place in which to make their first concerted fight for a delegation to the State Convention, yesterday rejected the wet delegation and of the 20 delegates chosen, 17 are recognized as drys.

The fact that the element in the convention known as wet, also was known to be friendly to Senator Reed for delegate to the Democratic National Convention possibly had something to do with the decided victory of the drys, though the liquor question was the one which occupied the attention of the delegates.

In Randolph County, one of the biggest Democratic counties of the State, politics long has been an art practiced from father to son through several generations. All the tricks of the game are known and new ones are invented in nearly every campaign. Out of 95 delegates in the convention, Moberly, the largest town in the county, had 47, or one less than a majority. If the Moberly delegates could be held together as a unit and even one delegate obtained from another township Moberly would control the convention.

Wets in Majority.

With this in mind the first fight was made in the township convention in Moberly a week ago. The wets were in the majority and controlled the township convention. It instructed its delegation to the county convention to vote on all questions.

Half the delegates were women, and the Moberly leaders, including United States Marshal John E. Lynch, Maj. J. Lilly and J. W. White, collected the proxies of nearly all the women, and went out into country precincts and got a few more. They went to the convention with a clear majority.

However, the opposition was not caught napping. Instead of proxies its delegates were on hand in person under the leadership of Oak Hunter, member of the Legislature, and the Rev. E. M. Richmond, a Christian minister who has had time to play practical politics in Randolph County for many years.

The first thing they did in the temporary organization was to put through a motion providing that townships should not be called in taking votes in the convention, but that the vote should be taken by ayes and noes. As several proxies were held by each of several of the Moberly delegation, under this system of voting the anti-liquor and anti-Reed element had the advantage. Thus they were able to elect the chairman, who appointed the Credentials Committee. This committee ruled out all proxies held by delegates who were not voters in the townships of the delegates whose proxies they held. This eliminated several proxies, and then the convention voted to bar all proxies.

Only Punishment Left.

The anti-liquor element had no intention of instructing the county delegation on the wet and dry issues, but made its fight to keep the wets from instructing for a wet plank in the platform. Resolutions were adopted indorsing the administration of President Wilson and the league of nations, and instructing the Randolph County delegation to vote against any person for delegate to the national convention who was not in sympathy with President Wilson. Edward F. Goltra was indorsed for National Committeeman.

BAN ON COOKING WITH LIQUOR

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, April 6.—The following ruling was received yesterday by Prohibition Commissioner Dodson, from Commissioner Kramer in Washington:

"Commissioner Roper, after considering this matter very carefully has decided that under the law there is no authority for issuing permits to use liquor for culinary purposes. In the further progress of your work, therefore, you may govern yourself accordingly. No further application for withdrawals should be approved under permits outstanding."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Will Frank A. Miller, writer of letter, "Is It Fair?" in Sunday's paper kindly communicate with the editor of the People's Column?

Our "Safety First" Advocates.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

You cannot imagine with what genuine satisfaction I have recently read the articles in your paper on what should be of interest to all of us—"Safety First," and especially the article and slogans of our Police Department which appeared on the first page of your paper of last Thursday.

In this connection too much cannot be said of Chief of Police O'Brien and Mr. Varney Verheyen, his assistant. Recently they have conducted a course of discourses at the various police districts delivered to police officers, instructing them to the safety of the public, which has already and is now bearing fruit.

The Central Mississippi Valley Division, National Safety Council, affiliated with the Chamber of Commerce, is most active in this field. It has and is now conducting a safety supervisors' school which meets every Friday evening at 8 p. m. in the Union Electric Light and Power Co. hall, where a lecture on safety problems is delivered by one well versed on the subject, the lecture last night being by H. J. Bell, who until recently was a director of safety over one of the large railroads while under the control of the Government.

The Council has also conducted a school for chauffeurs, the object of which was to teach the operatives of automobiles traffic regulations, and in connection therewith methods for the safe operation of their machines while on the public highways.

There is also at this time being conducted by the Packard Motor Car Co., 2201 Locust street, a school for the drivers of motor trucks, which now has an enrollment of over 600 attendants. This is a school for the instruction of drivers not only in the traffic laws, rules for safety, but also covers the maintenance of their cars in proper condition and repairs, so as to reduce the chances of accidents by reason of same happening by reason of defects in the cars. This school is not alone confined to drivers of the Packard cars, but is open to drivers of all motor trucks, and there is no charge for instruction.

There is also being conducted a superintendents' and foremen's school for the instruction of methods of safety in the various industrial plants in the city which meets in the club building of the United Railways Co., Grand and Vista avenue, twice a month on Wednesday evenings.

The children of our public schools through the efforts and hearty co-operation of Dr. J. W. Withers, Dr. George P. Knox and Dr. E. George Payne, are most actively engaged in this work of safety. There is to be a demonstration of the scope of the safety work as conducted in our public schools on next Monday morning at 9 o'clock, under the direction of Dr. Payne at the Wyman School, 1601 South Theresa avenue.

I cannot close this letter without saying a word for our Coroner, Dr. R. S. Vitt, who gives a great deal of his time to this matter, and from whose recent report to the Mayor it is shown that the efforts of those engaged in safety work has done much to make St. Louis the safest large city in America today.

ROBERT A. CRABB.

To the Business Man.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Do you know that the typewriter companies in this city furnish bookkeepers, stenographers and office assistants just as competent as do the business agencies? There are many men and women who cannot afford to pay 5 per cent of their year's salary to business agencies for merely calling you up and telling you they are sending you a party to fill the position. Remember, you are not doing justice to your employe when you make him pay for the position. It is your duty to help him and you certainly are not doing it when you compel him to resort to business agencies.

A STENOGRAPHER WHO GOT STUNG.

Utilize Vacant Hotels.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Why should the people of St. Louis be requested to expend money on two new hotels for working girls when there are already empty buildings so well adapted for that purpose? There is the West End Hotel, corner of Vandeventer avenue and West Belle, which could so easily be furnished and made a very comfortable home for anyone, even those who have been always accustomed to good homes. There is also the Southern Hotel building, which could be refitted and made comfortable. Buying and building at this particular time, when land and all building materials are at top notch prices, is a very extravagant proposition.

We are all willing to donate to a reasonable extent, but why all this unnecessary expense when the same good object could be accomplished with so much less money? One hotel is downtown in the business district, which would save car fare, and the other is in a neighborhood convenient to three or four different car lines. EMMA D. L. GREY.

HOW PEACE IS MENACED.

The possible consequences of the failure of the Senate to ratify the peace treaty is illustrated by the situation in France and Germany.

The Ebert Government, in an effort to save itself from destruction by Bolshevism and to restore order in the Ruhr district, where the Reds are in rebellion, sends 40,000 soldiers into the district.

France, in a panic and under pressure of the militaristic spirit which has been fomented on the ground that France must take care of her own interests and enforce the treaty with her own forces, has decided to send troops to occupy Frankfort, Darmstadt, Hamburg and Hanau. France is determined that the treaty of Versailles shall be enforced to the letter and this armed occupation of German territory is a warning to Germany that France will use troops for the purpose, regardless of the attitude of other nations which have not yet organized safeguards.

Disclaiming any intention of renewing war with Germany, the French note declares that "the sole object of these measures is to bring Germany to due respect of the treaty, and they are exclusively of a coercive and precautionary measure."

The French assert that the movement of German troops into the Ruhr district is a violation of the treaty and endangers peace. The treaty does forbid Germany to maintain or assemble troops within a specified distance east of the Rhine and her violation of this condition would be regarded as a hostile act, but that a few troops sent into the Ruhr district, where there is a genuine insurrection, to restore order is a violation of the spirit of the treaty or a menace to world peace, is a far-fetched view.

What will become of any German Government which is not permitted to put down insurrection and restore or maintain order within German territory? Shall there be outside intervention to maintain order in German territory? We know the consequences of that policy.

If the United States had ratified the treaty and were participating in the work of the League of Nations, strong agencies, backed by powerful world opinion, would now be dealing with the problems which the nations now feel impelled to settle by their own forces for their own purposes. The peace of the world would be in charge of the League and the guarantees of peace would be working.

With the nations safeguarding their own interests, moved by fear and greed, and the militarism which accompanies them, the peace of the world is in grave danger. Only Germany's weakness prevents an immediate conflict on the Rhine. Certainly the situation does not work for peaceful and friendly understanding.

A two-gun man ended his career in a moving picture theater, after holding up a bank and shooting several policemen. Two-gun men thrive only in the movies and the St. Louis product naturally enough turned to the picture house, where, likely enough, he got his inspiration, for refuge.

FROSTS AND FRUIT.

The comedy phase of the Easter blizzard which blighted the spring hat and the spring gown was darkened by the tragedy of the fruit trees. The destruction of peach, apple, plum and cherry crops is widespread and nearly complete. The loss to fruit growers in Missouri alone is estimated at 12,000,000 bushels, the money value of which is many times that number in dollars.

The loss, however, is not confined to the fruit growers; the public will feel it in greatly increased prices for fruit during the coming year. The weather conditions in this region, otherwise admirably suited to fruit growing, make the fruit crop extremely uncertain. Experts have gone far in devising methods of preserving fruit crops from injury by insects, but have not yet found cheap and practicable methods of preserving them, especially the early varieties, from frosts. If the frost enemy were conquered, fruit growing would be far more profitable and fruit prices would be uniformly lower.

THE "OPEN COMPETITION" PLAN.

The United States District Court at Memphis has recently held that the exchange of market information through a common secretary on the part of members of the American Hardwood Lumber Manufacturer's Association constitutes a conspiracy in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. In the case in question the proceedings were of a civil character, but the Department of Justice has given warning that criminal prosecution will be begun in all similar cases coming to its notice.

The decision and warning are timely. It cannot be doubted that this particular expedient has been very widely resorted to in kindred lines of business for the purpose of evading the conspiracy statutes, not only of the Federal but of the state governments as well. The general uniformity of prices of nearly all articles, despite variation in overhead and operation costs, is the plain result. Under the operation of the laws of competition the large manufacturer should be able to undersell his smaller competitor by reason of quantity purchases and production. In practice, however, we usually find a significant uniformity of price.

In many businesses we see associations, like the lumber manufacturers, having common secretaries for the members in the respective lines, acting as a clearing house for information exchanged among the members; in others, clubs are formed under an obligation to file with the secretary, daily, copies of estimates made and prices charged, which information is promptly manifolded to all members. The objects are plainly to preserve the price level and to discourage competition.

This so-called "open competition" plan has evolved during the last decade as the result of a growing lethargy in the enforcement of anti-trust statutes. Its unmolested practice in one line of industry has encouraged others to adopt it, till at length it may be said to be in common use. It is nevertheless an evil, contributing directly to the high cost of living; it is clearly conspiracy under the law and calls for prompt consideration not only by the Federal Government but by the state authorities as well.

BLANTON, TEXAS' WATCHDOG.

Those who regard Congressman T. L. Blanton of Texas as a "pest" include more than divers of his House colleagues. That very small but aggressive part of the public which has ingenious schemes for profiting at the people's expense hold him in like disparagement. No doubt can exist, however, on the point that his role is a very useful one to the country. If he occasionally causes inconvenience and delay to the advocates of some meritorious plan, such debit item is offset by a hundred credit items for wastes exposed and graft prevented.

The people have a much better idea of congressional psychology than the statesmen at Washington may imagine. The grateful new member who goes down with his head full of ideas for saving his constituents money finds a system of extravagance and privilege that arouses his indignation. No congressional or departmental perquisite is ever lopped off. On the contrary, perquisites are expanded in character and multiplied in number as time goes on. A notion which it is impolite and positively unethical to contradict is that any Congressman could earn a great deal more in private life than his official salary, though only a negligible percentage ever have or ever could earn more.

Anything that comes to them by way of custom or favor they regard as only an inadequate return for their great deserts and the cost of being elected, and how can a man who votes for perquisites for himself oppose perquisites for the departments? Besides, after voting millions and billions for the great purposes of Government, thousands and tens of thousands seem trifling. The average new member, finding retrenchment effort a thankless task and one bringing ridicule, desists, but Mr. Blanton was of stronger stuff.

If the late Judge Holman of Indiana, treasury watchdog, used to be horrified at some of the attempted grafts of his time, what would he have thought of the amplified grafts of the present? Since his death no one has seemed as worthy to be called his successor as Blanton. His war on extravagance and waste is not always successful, but there never was a time when war on extravagance and waste should be prosecuted as unceasingly and relentlessly as now.

The profound disappointment and bitter regret of the people of Missouri over his refusal to run for the United States Senate was fully covered by Gov. Gardner in his letter, but he neglected to give warning that it would be followed by a blighting blizzard.

VOYAGE OF THE CONGRESSIONAL ARK.

Congress, with ample opportunity, has failed to solve for the voters the problem of living despite high-cost handicaps, but a considerable number of the members seem to have found a triumphant solution for themselves. A hundred of them are going to cross the Pacific to "study the Asiatic situation." They will go over on an army transport, on which, we are told, "members of Congress can travel free," though why they should travel free on them is a mystery only a Congressman could explain. With rare self-restraint, however, when they established for themselves the system of providing free quarters, they did not include free board. They will be compelled to pay for their subsistence at the rate of $1.25 a day. Naturally, a large number of the party will take their families and their clerical help along with them. And why not political friends, unless it is less easy than formerly to introduce political friends as relatives or clerical assistants?

During the campaign, in which high taxes and practicable ways of reducing them will have much discussion, the voyage of this congressional ark, with suites and cuisine available at a total cost of $87.50 a month, ought to have a large interest for voters who find it difficult to obtain even a modest apartment for less than $80 or $100 a month.

CLIMBERS AND HIGH RENTALS.

House hunters and flat hunters, after a series of Sundays spent in answering want ads, make a discovery. It is that much of the shortage of dwellings and of the resulting high rentals is due to the spirit which leads us to eat "too high up on the hog and too far back on the cow."

The partial suspension of building operations during the war, the normal increase in population and the movement of families to the city from the country, do not satisfactorily account for the scarcity of rentable homes and the alarming altitude of rents. A stronger factor, numerically, is made up of families enjoying the prosperity of very high wages or large business profits, seeking new homes in expensive sections. The heads of the families feel that plain duty to themselves and the children demands that they move into a superior neighborhood. From all parts of the city these people come, but the sections to which they wish to go are small. With a dozen applicants for each apartment, the landlord feels it to be his bounden duty to raise the rent all round, for the prosperous persons who desire to live in those restricted communities are many, and the places in which they may live are few.

The superior cultural virtues and social advantages attributed to expensive neighborhoods usually are fictional, but when John's salary has reached a certain point, Mary feels that the welfare of little Jack and little Marie make it incumbent upon the parents to move into a "better" neighborhood. This is a region of newer buildings, grandfather's clocks and more things "built in." These are pleasant things, but they do not justify doubling the rent item in the household budget, which they require.

THE PUSSYFOOTER.

JUST A MINUTE . . .

SHADES OF SHAKSPEARE.

Scene: The castle. Macbeth and murderer.
Macbeth: Dost pack a gat, minion?
Murderer: Ay, that do I, my lord.
'Tis a six-shooter, and I pull
A wicked trigger.
Macbeth: Good! Go thou,
And bump off Fleance and Banquo—
Murderer: Not so hastily, my lord,
For I demand five bucks for each,
And an eight-hour day,
Or I strike.
Macbeth: What, thou varlet?
Well, 'tis granted; Shoot well,
Lest they escape. A gallon of home-brew
I could not choose a better time.
The police strike;
And the electrician at Sing-Sing,
Demandeth more coin for each man condemn'd
To die in the chair; I am safe.

Macbeth: Ho, cooks! Ha, varlets!
Truly I crave a boiled ham!
Lady Macbeth: Be not angered, my lord,
And Norah has left the castle,
Lured by the wages offered,
By the thane of Fife; I am alone and helpless.
Macbeth: Thou'rt mad to say it!
But natheless, hie thee to the kitchen,
I'll have a boiled ham,
Lady Macbeth: Oh, lord,
Our pantry is empty.
The butchers' union have ordered a strike,
And the stockyards are idle.
The cooks' and waiters' union,
Have struck; and also
The dishwashers' association.
Macbeth: The curse of death on all unions!
Foul, misguided knaves who interrupt my plans,
And block my path of success!
I have murders yet to be committed,
But my men have struck,
All save one. Woe is me!
Enter ghost.
What ho! Is this Saturday?
Lady Macbeth: No, my lord. Why askest thou?
Macbeth: Truly, the ghost walks!
And art off thy trolley. Prohibition
Will prove thy downfall. Thou drinkest
100 per cent stuff; and hast bats in thy belfry.
Ghost: I wander here Macbeth,
For I have no place to go.
The gravediggers have struck.
Furthermore, I am a union ghost
And were this Saturday,
You would not find me here.
For on that day,
The clock strikes 12.

AZTEC.

Sir: This, from a St. Louis morning newspaper, is not exactly a sign, but it throws a signal light on the severity and extent of Sunday's blizzard:

> While Eastern church services were not seriously interfered with by the inclement weather, the attendance probably was greatly reduced by the blizzard in some of the churches.

Indoor meteorology? N. M. J.

Quite so. John Burroughs said the other day that we need more and better newspapers, and we are all trying to branch out.

Henry Ford is going to manufacture Zeppelins. He made an automobile in which we could have got about had we built any roads for it, but we wouldn't do it; so Henry is going to take us into the air. Even over states like Missouri, which there are no roads much of the year, the air is just as passable as it is anywhere. This is Henry's new clew, and the flying tin Lizzie is to be with us soon. The Germans are flying Zeppelins as regularly as we are sending out trains. They make as much as 100 miles an hour, are reliable except when too much wind keeps them indoors, and have put the Germans miles ahead of the rest of Europe in transporation. Mr. Ford is going to bring transportation in this country up to transportation in Germany. He is not mad because we let the Republicans cheat him out of a seat in the Senate. He is going right on doing things for us, which is the proper spirit. We have got to take to the air. The way improvements are fought everywhere indicates that clearly enough. The air doesn't have to be made ready for travel by reluctant taxpayers with a vote on it. That is its advantage over the ground. Rich men are those who foresee what is coming; and Mr. Ford sees the answer here exactly as he did when people first began casting about for something that would get them over ground faster than they could go in a horse and buggy.

Sir: Anent jails and their lack of patronage: The perspicuity of Mr. Antwine is hardly to be questioned; but, while enjoying his delicious effusion, it occurs that possibly he might merely have wanted to say, "It's harder to catch a sober malefactor than a tipsy one."

All of which brings us to the point of remarking that when one observes a guardian of the law standing by the curb with a far-away look upon a troubled brow, think not that it is only the loss of the personal imbibing of the liquor he is suffering, but rather the loss of that golden opportunity of apprehending fugitives of foggy mentality.

No one can reasonably deny that there are more crooks at large now than before prohibition. REHNEIWHCS.

SELF-ASSESSMENT OF INCOME.

From the Nation.

Why should the taxpayer carry the burden of making his own assessment under the income tax any more than he does under the property tax? As the law now stands, we make our own assessments for the Federal income tax, and pay the tax, or a part of it, at once without any conclusive official verification of our work. To be sure, the collector is supposed to examine the returns when we file them. He may "increase the amount of the return," but may not lower it. Then, "as soon as practicable after the return is filed," the Commissioner examines it. He may raise or lower the amount of taxable income or he may leave it unchanged. Changing it constitutes the only official assessment ever made. Commissioner Roper, reporting last December, stated that owing to lack of trained assistants he had gotten little beyond the examination of the returns of income of 1917. Further, for 1918 incomes, and presumably for the 1919 incomes, a large part of the returns filed will be left with the Collector for examination. Last year 3,500,000 out of 4,125,000 returns were thus left entirely without official assessment. Of these only such as involve appeals will be assessed by the Commissioner. As a matter of fact, there is no proper official assessment of the income tax at all. It is self-assessment corrected if need be by official audit, and nothing more.

EXCESS PROFITS TAXES.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

Practically all taxes on business processes are finally paid by the consumers of the product of the taxed process. There is no business concern which does not charge taxes as part of operating costs. The concern sells at a profit on all costs, including taxes, and each succeeding purchaser does the same. Nor is there any possible way of preventing it so long as the market will absorb the products at resulting prices. The objections to the excess profits tax are serious. In the first place, they lead to extravagance in the conduct of business, because, for example, the managers of a concern would much prefer using money to increasing their own compensation to paying it to the Government as taxes. A more serious objection is its uncertainty, owing to the multitude of cases in which it is not possible to determine whether there has been excess profits, but a reasonable certainty that the revenue officers will stoutly insist that such profits have been made. In self-defense business men allow amply for excess profits taxes in making up cost sheets, thereby greatly and unnecessarily increasing the amount finally paid by consumers. It is also an exceedingly costly tax to collect.

FROM BOURGEOIS TO BOLSHEVIK.

From the New Republic.

A YEAR ago the bourgeoisie numbered more than 40,000. Today, according to Mr. Eyre, it is 4500. What has happened in the meantime? The shrinkage, Mr. Eyre says, "does not mean that some 35,000 bourgeoisie have been massacred by the Bolsheviks—for the total remains about the same—but simply that that number of persons of the nonproductive leisure class have transformed themselves into workers, thereby automatically gaining the right to the first or second category food card. They also acquire, incidentally, full citizenship rights, which under the Soviet regime only workers if producers enjoy, and consequently have the vote." To force members of the leisure class to transform themselves into producers may be no policy of which the western democracies approve. But if the persons discriminated against have an opportunity to shift their own status, and if Mr. Eyre is right when he says they now amount to less than 1 per cent of the population, is there really any honorable reason left for a blockade against the other ninety-nine.

THE SPOON THE PIG BIT

THIRD INSTALLMENT.

THE girl, still in the grip of what appeared to be a hypnotic trance, yet heard him subconsciously, walked forward hesitatingly, seated herself on the edge of a chair beside the fireplace, folded her hands in her lap and clasped them tightly to still their nervous trembling, but she was powerless to hide the betraying, uneven fluttter of her breast. Slowly and shyly she raised her eyes and fixed them with purposeful intensity on the Big Fellow's face. He seemed wholly unconscious of her scrutiny, which pleased her, for her thoughts had a long road to travel.

He busied himself unconsciously with tea dishes and a sturdy movable table, produced biscuits and a loaf of cake which fairly oozed raisins, kicked the embers to flame, fed them with fresh logs, hung a kettle on an iron hook and swung it over the fire, and while he was doing these homely things he talked.

"Young Waldron," he said, "have you ever seen a farm? You have, have you? Well, then, you know that there's no real farm without pigs, no pigs without food, no food without a spoon."

Waldron nodded in solemn acquiescence, his eyes fastened on the sticky fruit cake, his short arms outstretched to grasp the side of the throne in a self-restraining grip.

"Well, it was this way," continued the young man's big voice. "There was a time when I wasn't a fullfledged pirate, when I hadn't yet killed man or woman nor assisted at the keelhauling of a mutinous mate; a time when I lived on a farm, cheek by jowl with another. Nevertheless, I was happier then than I've ever been since because I was a captain in a small way and had a crew under my complete control. It was made up of a woman."

The Big Fellow nodded thoughtfully. "Yes," he said, "she was a woman even then, with fight in her eyes and round chin. Three foot ten she stood in her rubber boots, but there was a man's peck of courage in her heart, as you yourself would have admitted if you could have stood by when I swung her off her feet by the two braids of her brown hair to see if she would cry."

"I suppose she did," remarked Young Waldron, half interestedly.

"Yes, she did," confirmed the Big Fellow, "but she bit, scratched and kicked at the same time until what was left of me gave her the blood and oath and took her on for a whole crew on the usual share basis. There wasn't much loot to be taken by fair means or foul on the rolling prairie, but whatever we got from the watering tanks, the overflow from the two wells, or the mighty pigs' troughs, it was share and share alike, half to the forecastle, half to the quarter deck. But sooner or later to every Jolly Roger comes a day of treasure-trove, and it came to us—a day as black as ever sun shone on, for it bared the pirate's cruel heart and broken faith that was in me."

The Big Fellow shook his head sadly from side to side. "It happened at one of the pigs' troughs," he continued. "They had dumped in the kitchen leavings and we were ranging up and down looking for plunder when the biggest porker in the pen, the crew and I simultaneously caught the bright, unmistakable glint of silver. The porker got there first, seized the booty and was off, but we were close at his heels. We drew alongside and gave him a broadside; got to the wind of him, ranged for'rard and raked him stem to stern. Finally a solid green apple shot sent across his bows caught him in the snout by a miracle of chance. He dropped the plunder with a squeal of rage and fear. We swooped down on it, luffed, caught it up at the slack of the sail, and the next second we were off on the other tack, and presently made the neck to the secret inlet behind the barn."

"That was a fight for your life! Short, but, O my!"

The enormous young man hung his head as though ashamed to go on. "When we had landed," he continued eventually, "and set to the work of burying the treasure, I insisted on a hole three feet deep and four feet long. The crew was puzzled, protested again and again that her back ached and asked me why and wherefore, but I remained unmoved, smiling faintly at the treacherous thought that was to give me the name of the Tiger of the Plains. When the hole was at last completed to my satisfaction I dropped the silver in its depths and said to the crew in a rumbling voice: 'You, too. Get in. None shall tell this secret.'

"Her lips trembled. She stood stunned, knocked silly by the blow of broken faith, and shook her head from side to side. That's the worst of women; they can't believe the blackness in the heart of man, its utter subjection to the call of cruel greed. Casting off my jacket, I stopped, leaped forward, caught her around the middle, tripped her, threw her into the hole, and, not daring to reach for the spade, began ruthlessly to push the fresh earth in double handfuls in upon her.

"'No! no!' she screamed, and then sobbed as though her heart would break. 'O Captain, O Captain!'"

At this point a glimmer as of a jewel flashing in the sun distracted Young Waldron's fixed gaze from the cake. The gleam came from what appeared to be a single great tear, rolling slowly down the smooth oval of the girl's flushed cheek, but as never before had he seen a grownup cry and as the tear was not followed immediately by a flood, he dismissed the phenomenon and on a sudden instinctive impulse bellowed the one word "Cake!"

Staring dreamily at the wet streak on the girl's face, the enormous young man picked up the plate containing the loaf which so richly oozed raisins and thrust it into Young Waldron's lap. "But when some of the earth got in her mouth," he continued firmly, "she suddenly stopped crying, gave a wriggle, hunched her back and came out of that hole like six wildcats out of a wet bag. Her head struck me on the chin, and as I was sitting on my heels I went over backwards and the next minute she fell on me, boarded me tooth, nail and foot, stamped on my face, and then ran. It was as quick as that. She went and she never, never came back. But the great thing, Young Waldron, was that she never told, never whispered a single word about the spoon the pig bit."

Young Waldron paid not the slightest attention to what was apparently the conclusion of a very mediocre yarn. His mouth was full of cake; cake smeared his cheeks, his ears, his nose, and oozed in streaks from the corners of his eyes, reminiscent of the tobacco-colored tears which the Red-Chested Terror once had shed. The Big Fellow stared at him, marveled absent mindedly, and then turned his gaze frankly and solely upon the girl.

"I carried it from place to place," he said to her and to her alone, "hid it again and again, until it became like a black shadow buried in the darkest corner of my heart. I was glad when the farms struck oil and ours sold out while the other didn't. Worse than that, when the oil petered out and the other farm had lost its chance, I heard of it at school far away and smiled, because I thought now the crew would never get the money to follow me across the world and claim her own. But little does brutal youth know of the reach of the arm of justice or the fine mesh of the net of retribution!"

He drew from the table drawer a very old, thin, and dented silver spoon, leaned over and dropped it in the girl's lap. "For you," he said. "The spoon the pig bit."

"For me?" whispered the girl, who seized the spoon, stared at it, and burst into tears. "O captain," she sobbed, "you've grown so terribly big and—and so famous, and, of course, I've seen your name, but I thought it must be a very old man to have done such great things, and how could I know you, anyway, because all your freckles are gone and you're so big, so terribly big, and"——

"For you," repeated the enormous young man, striding up and down rapidly before the fireplace and cracking his knuckles like pistol shots.

"Stop that!" cried the girl, suddenly. "Don't do it! I don't like it!" She stood up and stamped her foot.

"For you," repeated the Big Fellow, unheeding, but presently desisting to wave his arms in a wide windmill gesture. "For you sun, moon, world and stars, fame, fortune, my heart and the spoon the pig bit because you were there, because you're of me; because time began for you and me equally and left all else strange and strangers us two forevermore."

The girl stepped forward boldly, stood directly in his path, reached up and seized the lapels of his rough tweed coat. "Stop a minute," she said quite calmly. "Now, tell me. What are you talking about?"

"Love," said the Big Fellow, staring down into her determined face. "Not a spasm of affection, you understand. Not German measles nor paratyphoid nor varioloid nor any of these passing affections of the deluded mind. No! Smallpox, the real thing, branded in the flesh."

The girl shuddered and half turned from him. He swept his arms about her, raised her slowly, tenderly, firmly from the floor until she rested securely against his breast. "Bury you," he whispered, but even a murmur from that voice was like thunder for all that, vibrant with distant possibilities of storm. "Bury you," he repeated, "bury you alive, here in my heart, home again whether you like it or not, for the rest of life."

The girl shook her head from side to side so close to his face that her hair tickled his nose and made it wrinkle funnily so that she wanted to laugh, but she said quite soberly, "No; you take everything too much for granted. I can't give myself like that; never."

"Everything is never too much," declared the enormous young man calmly and tightened his arms until he felt the girl's heart begin to beat fast and faster. "It's the people that only take half who go smash! All the people in the world who only take half. And as for giving yourself, you poor dear, we had nothing to do with that and you know it. They grew you mine just as they grew you with the deepest blue eyes and the brownest brown hair, and how do I know? Because I was stone and now I can talk, because big, juicy words are fresh on my tongue today and because presently I shall roar and frown to my heart's content, and you know and I know that you won't run away and hide. Buried, you are; buried alive and your heart is beating so fast, so very fast, my darling, that it will burst and splatter us both with our blood if you don't look at me, look at me now and please—please"

Silence, an incredibly long silence, fell upon the room; it was young Waldron who finally broke it.

After a while the girl whispered: "Aren't you tired?"

"Tired?" rumbled the giant in her ear. "If it weren't for having to call a taxi, fetch Young Waldron's boat and deliver him charges paid, goods subject to exchange, you and I would stay here just as we are while walls crumbled and nations passed away, till Martians on the wing would poise and say, 'So grew these two of equal mingled blood and bone and flesh that it was given them to stand like some forgotten statue and laugh forever in the face of time.'"

Another E. Phillips Oppenheim Story.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Reddy Fox Gives Up in Disgust

PER-SIS-TENT is a big word, but it means simply to keep trying and trying. Reddy Fox learned long ago that it often pays to be persis-tent. So morning after morning, just before sunup, he hid behind Johnny Chuck's doorway. Morning after morning he was disappointed. Reddy thought he knew all there was to know about Johnny Chuck's habits. You see, Reddy makes it his business to find out all about the habits of the other little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest. The more he knows about their habits the easier it is to catch them.

But Johnny Chuck was proving a puzzle. He didn't come out and sit on his doorstep at sunup, as most Chucks whom Reddy had known did. In fact, he didn't seem to have any regular time for coming out; but always when Reddy had given up and was on his way to the Old Pasture and turned to look back, there Johnny would be sitting on his doorstep. It always appeared to Reddy that if he had waited just a few minutes more he could have caught Johnny.

Reddy was very much puzzled. He studied the matter over and over and over. He suspected that somebody must in some way warn Johnny Chuck, but his sharp ears never caught a sound which might be a warning and his keen eyes never saw anyone around while he was watching. Finally, Reddy thought of another plan and he tried it.

Instead of going over and hiding in his usual place, Reddy went over and lay down some distance away, but where he could plainly see Johnny Chuck's doorstep. That morning Johnny appeared on his doorstep just after sunup. The same thing happened the next morning, only this time Polly Chuck came out with Johnny. The following morning Reddy was back in his old hiding place just back of Johnny Chuck's doorway. Again he was disappointed. No one appeared. The same thing happened the next morning. It was a mystery.

Now, Reddy's wits are nothing if not sharp. He began to suspect that things couldn't happen this way. He began to suspect that somehow Johnny Chuck knew all about how Reddy was watching for him. But with all his smartness, Reddy never once thought to look for back doors to Johnny Chuck's house. If he had thought of the possibility of those back doors he would have guessed right away that every morning Johnny poked his head out of one of these first, to make sure that all was safe. But not knowing of these back doors, and not thinking of them, Reddy couldn't understand why his clever plan always failed.

At last Reddy gave up in disgust. He made up his mind that it was a waste of time to try to catch Johnny Chuck that way. It would be much better to spend his time hunting for fat Meadow Mice. So Reddy gave up visiting Johnny Chuck's new home and Johnny and Polly soon discovered the fact. But that didn't make them any the less watchful. Safety for the little people of the Green Meadows means everlasting watchfulness, and so Johnny and Polly continued to be just as watchful and just as careful as if Reddy were still waiting for them every morning; and to this day Reddy Fox doesn't know why it was his clever plan for catching Johnny Chuck failed. If you should tell him that it was simply because Johnny's wits were as sharp as his own he wouldn't believe it. Besides, Reddy had made up his mind that Johnny Chuck was tough and wouldn't make a good dinner at all. At least this is what he told Mrs. Reddy.

LOVE LETTERS OF THE CZARINA

By ISAAC DON LEVIN.

Article V.—The Czarina as Nurse.

THROUGH Victoria, Queen of Sweden, the Czarina received letters from Germany. When a report reached her that Joachim, the German Kaiser's sixth son, had been captured by the Russians the Czarina suggested to the Czar that the Kaiserin be notified that he was safe and sound. "It is not for me to advise you," writes the Empress, "it is only a mother pitying another mother."

In transmitting to the Czar a letter from Ania, the Czarina expresses the hope that Ania's "letters are not the old oily style again." She also tells of Ania's slackened interest in her hospital work after she had received the order of the cross. That the Czarina took her job as a nurse very seriously appears from these letters and her sympathy for the war victims is indeed very touching.

Alexandra Hears Report Prince Joachim Has Been Taken Prisoner and Wants Kaiserin Informed.

Describes Hospital Work.

"TZARSKOYE SELO,
Nov. 19, 1914.

"My Very Own Beloved One:

"Your letter was such an intense joy, consolation to me. God bless you for it and a thousand tender thanks. I love to read all the dear things you say; it warms me up, because I cannot help feeling your absence greatly; 'the thing' is missing in all the life of my home. I lunch now always on the sofa when we are alone. How lucky one has taken Rennenkampf away before you came. I am glad—may they only find a good one instead. It won't be Mistchenko by any chance? He is so loved by the troops and a clever head, is he not? One says the blue cuirassiers are enchanted to have my Arseniev and well they may be. Really it was an excellent idea your arranging your stick for gymnastics—good exercise when you will be shut up for so long, except standing in hospitals, which is horribly tiring.

"At 9 Olga, Anastasia, baby and I went off to his train. We have very heavy wounded this time, the train was at Sukhatchev, six versts from the battle, and the windows shook from the artillery. Aeroplanes were flying there and over Varsovie. Schulenburg says that the 13th and 14th Siberians were hideously afraid of all and thought God was with the Germans, not grasping what the aeroplanes were and so on, and one could not get them to advance—all new troops, and not real Siberians. They have discovered our six motors of his train, which had disappeared since the 1st—they are at Lodz, or ly can't get away, otherwise may be taken, but they do still bring wounded. Lots come on foot now, so have their lungs in a precarious state I get no news. In town one says it was bad yesterday—in the papers lots is white, not printed; probably we retreated near Sukhatchev. Some of these wounded had been taken by the Germans and then ours got them after four days back again. Dear me, what wretched wounds. I fear some are doomed men; but I am glad we have them and can at least do all in our power to help them. I ought to have gone now to see the rest, but am too awfully tired, as we had two operations besides, and at 4 I must go to the big palace, as I want the Princess also to have a look at the poor boy and an officer of the Second Rifles, whose leg is already getting quite dark and one fears an amputation may be necessary.

"I was with the boy yesterday during his dressing; awful to see, and he clung to me and kept quiet, poor child. We have some heavy cases in the big palace.

Disapproves of Ania.

"It was gray and rainy yesterday and warm; this morning the sun shone, but it's gray. Ania has gone for a walk and then will come to me. She was in a disagreeable mood the whole evening, so I went to bed at 11; this morning she continued, but we succeeded in breaking her. It's doubly painful when one feels sad, and she pretends being the 'chief mourner' before others, and her and I keep up and talk, and she might do the same. She continues asking about the Feldjaeger (courier); I suppose intends writing—whether you have allowed it, I do not know.

"My sweetheart, my very own treasure, I must end now, the messenger leaves earlier today.

"When you return you must give my letter to number, as I have no idea how many I have written. Once more, endless thanks for dear letter, which is very well written, tho' the train moved.

"I press you to my yearning breast, kiss all the dear places I so tenderly love. God bless you and guard you from all ill.

"Ever, Nicky my angel, my own treasure, my sunshine, my life, your very own old WIFEY."

"Messages to Dmitri Sheremetiev."

"His train" is the train bearing the name of the Czarvitch Alevei.

"Tzarskoye Selo, Nov. 20, 1914.

"My own beloved Nicky dear:

"There is a belated gnat flying round my head whilst I am writing to you. Well, I went to the big palace to that poor boy's dressing, and somehow it seems to me as though the border of the great bedsore wound were getting firmer—the princess did not find the tissue too dead looking. She looked at the Rifle's leg and finds one ought at once to take it off before it is too late and it must be done very high. Vladimir Nikolaievitch and Eberman find one must first try another operation of the veins aneurism (swelling of the arteries) and if that does not help, then take the leg off. His family want some celebrity to consult, but all are away except Zeidler, who could not come before Friday.

TO THE CZAR IN WAR TIME

"This morning we were present (I help as always, giving the instruments and Olga threaded the needles) at our first big amputation (whole arm was cut off), then we all had dressings in our small hospital), very serious ones in the big hospital. I had wretched fellow with awful wound, scarcely a man any more, so shot to pieces. Perhaps it must be cut off as so black, but hope to save it—terrible to look at. I washed and cleaned, and painted with iodine and smeared with vasoline and tied them up, and bandaged all up. It went quite well and I feel happier to do the things gently myself under the guidance of a doctor. I did three such and one had a little tube in it. One's heart bleeds for them—I won't describe any more details as it's so bad, but being a wife and mother I feel for these quite particularly. A young nurse (girl) I sent out of the room. Mlle. Annenkof is already older, the young doctor so kind. Ania looked on so coolly, quite hardened already as she says. She astonished me with her ways constantly, nothing of the loving gentle woman like our girlies. She ties them up roughly when they bore her, goes away when she has had enough, and when little to do, grumbles.

"I press you tenderly to my heart, kissing you fondly and remain forever your deeply loving own wify.

Hears Prince Joachim Is Taken.

"Tzarskoye Selo, Nov. 24, 1914.

"My own beloved treasure:

"It's nice that we were together at Smolensk two years ago (with Count Keller) so I can imagine where you were. Alexei's 'community' wired to me after you had been there to see them. I remember them giving Baby an image at that famous tea there. Still no news of the war through far Orloff since you left. One whispers that Joachim has been taken by our troops. If so, where has he been sent to, I wonder? If true, one might have let Dona know through Vicky of Sweden that he is safe and sound (not saying where), but you know better, it's not for me to advise you, it's only a mother pitying another mother.

"For your second dear letter, thanks without end. It was a joy to receive it, sweetheart. It is such anguish to think of our tremendous losses; several wounded officers who left us a month ago have returned again wounded. Would to God this hideous war could end quicker, but one sees no prospect of it for long. Of course, the Austrians are furious being led by Prussians, who knows whether they won't be having stories still amongst each other? I received letters from Thora, Q. Helena and A. Beatrice. All send you much love and feel for you deeply. They write the same about their wounded and prisoners; the same lies have been told them, too. They say the hatred toward England is the greatest.

"According to the telegrams Georie is in France seeing his wounded.

"Our friend (Rasputin) hopes you won't remain too long away so far. I send you papers and a letter from Ania. Perhaps you will mention in your telegram that you thank for papers and letter and send messages. I hope her letters are not the old oily style again. Very mild weather. At 8½ we went to the end of mass in the Pestcherny chapel, then to our hospital, where I had heaps to do, the girls nothing, and then to an operation in the big hospital. And we showed our officers to Zeidler to ask advice. Olga and Tatiana went in despair to town to a concert in the circus for Olga's committee. Without her knowledge one had invited all the ministers and ambassadors, so she was obliged to go.

"Now Malama comes to tea and to say quite good-by.

HORNSBY'S ERROR GIVES BROWNS ONE IN FIRST INNING

Manager Burke Uses Entire Team of Substitutes—Only 500 Fans Out for Contest.

CARDINAL FIELD, April 6.—Only a few hundred of the faithful turned out at Cardinal Field this afternoon for the second game of the spring series. Less than 500 were assembled when the game started.

Manager Burke objected to playing with the mercury near freezing temperature and sent a team of recruits against the Cardinals. The American League regulars clad in civilian clothes watched activities from the grand stand.

The infield had been scraped and looked in fair condition but hard-hit grounders were slowed to feeble rollers before reaching the cutfield. Balls hit to the outfield stuck when they struck.

Burke picked Vangilder and Pat Collins to work for his recruit team, while May and Clemons did battery duty for the Cardinals. Heathcote reported ill, and Smith went to right field for the Rickeyites.

FIRST INNING.

BROWNS—Lee flied to Shotton. Shovlin singled over second. Mullen lined to Janvrin, whose throw to double Shovlin got by Fournier, Shovlin reaching third. Hornsby fumbled E. Smith's grounder and Shovlin scored. Strong out, Stock to Fournier. ONE RUN.

CARDINALS—Shotton beat out a bunt along the first-base line. J. Smith filed to E. Smith. Stock doubled to right. Hornsby fouled to Thompson. Fournier flied to Robertson. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

CARDINALS—McHenry was out, Thompson to Strong. Janvrin went out the same way. Clemons out, Lee to Strong. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

BROWNS—Lee struck out. So did Shovlin. Mullen fanned for the third strike-out victim of the inning. NO RUNS.

CARDINALS—May out, Shovlin to Strong. Shotton out the same way. J. Smith bunted and was safe when Strong fumbled. Stock out, Shovlin to Strong. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

BROWNS—E. Smith was hit by pitched ball. Strong sacrificed, May to Hornsby, who covered. Robertson beat out a hard hit to Stock, E. Smith taking third. Collins flied to J. Smith, E. Smith scoring after the catch. Thompson called out on strikes. ONE RUN.

CARDINALS—Hornsby lined to Thompson. Fournier singled to center. McHenry forced Fournier, Thompson to Shovlin. Janvrin hit bya pitched ball. Clemons doubled to left center, scoring McHenry and Janvrin. May called out on strikes. TWO RUNS.

BockenkampLoses In Golf Tourney

St. Louisan Beaten by Graham, 2 and 1 in Semifinal—Ouimet Is Winner.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 6.—Francis Ouimet of the Woodland Club and H. J. Graham of Greenwich will meet today in the 36-hole final of the North and South amateur golf championship tournament. Ouimet became a finalist by defeating Harold Weber of Toledo, 3 and 1, yesterday, while Graham's victory came by the same score over Richard Bockenkamp of St. Louis.

Bockenkamp had previously defeated R. H. Gwaltney of Baltrusal and Frank Ranforth of Northfolk, but his play had been rather inconsistent and Graham was expected to win handily. However, the St. Louis youth showed unusual form and pressed his opponent throughout, being on even terms on the fifteenth green. However, a 15-foot putt of Graham's on 16 and a hooked drive by the loser on 17 determined the match.

The matches were played under bad weather conditions, the golfers facing a raw wind. Graham and Ouimet turned in cards of 80; Bockenkamp 81, and Weber 84.

The cards:

BIG 10 OFFICIALS WILL INVITE CALIFORNIA TEAM

CHICAGO, April 6.—The University of California track team, which defeated Illinois in a dual meet at Berkeley, Cal., last Saturday, will be tendered a special invitation to compete in the Western Conference track and field games at Ann Arbor, June 5.

This announcement was made by Avery Brundage, president of the Graduate Managing Committee which has entire charge of the games. The presence of the coast team, Mr. Brindage said, would undoubtedly add interest to the event which will be conducted by Michigan for the first time.

JIMMY WILDE MATCHED WITH BATTLING MURRAY

Taylor Knocks Out Hagen.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., April 6.—"Fighting" Taylor of St. Louis knocked out Ed Hagen of San Francisco, here last night, in the third round of what was to have been a 12-round boxing bout. The men are middleweights.

GEORGES CARPENTIER SEES WILLIE MEEHAN OUTPOINT AL ROBERTS

NEW YORK, April 6.—Willie Meehan, who holds a four-round decision over Jack Dempsey, outpointed Al Roberts at the Newark Sportsman's Club, in the First Regiment Armory, Newark, N. J., last night, in eight rounds. Meehan is a freak boxer if ever there was one. He is not a heavy hitter, but he manages to send in blows with amazing speed, and these blows, though they may not have force behind them, land cleanly and with disastrous results, as far as poise is concerned. Roberts was badly befuddled because of this, and allowed Meehan to pile up plenty of points to win by a good margin.

Gene Tunney knocked out "Knock-out" Sullivan, who substituted for Dan O'Dowd. The latter could not appear because of an injured ear. Clay Turner, the Indian, substituted for Charley Weinert, also out because of training damages, against Ole Anderson. It was a stubborn, free-hitting fight throughout, with Turner having enough cleverness to outwit his inexperienced opponent.

Mike Nestor, the wrestler, making his first appearance as a fighter, was knocked out by Leo Bagley in three rounds.

Georges Carpentier watched the bouts with every show of interest from the ringside. Before going to the Armory he was the guest at a little dinner given by Dave Mackey, president of the Newark Sportsman's Club, who has offered $50,000 for an eight-round bout, no decision, between the heavyweight champion of Europe and any man he may select at any time before he faces Jack Dempsey for the world's title.

U. had sanctioned an amateur boxing tournament to decide the city championships in all classes from flyweight to heavyweight, April 22-23, the bouts to be held at the Armory. If the entry proves unexpectedly large, the tourney will be extended to include Saturday night, April 24.

The event will be open to all boxers, whether club members or unattached, who have registered with the A. A. U.

Moore Defeats Bramer.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 6.—Pal Moore, Memphis, was given a referee's decision over Harry Bramer, San Francisco, in an eight-round bout here last night. They are featherweights. Bramer carried the fight to Moore in every round, but the latter landed the largest number of blows.

Ben Millers Win From Olympia in Cup Battle, 2-1

McHenry Tallies Deciding Point After 25 Minutes of Play in Second Half.

CHICAGO, April 6.—On a snow-covered field, the Ben Miller soccer team of St. Louis emerged victorious over the local Olympia team in the fifth round of the national cup series at Bricklayers' Park, the score being 2 goals to 1. By virtue of their victory the Millers entered the semi-final round of the competition and their opponent will be the winner of the Rochester-Detroit game.

The condition of the ground made it rather hard for the players, but Chicago fans were as one in saying that if it had been a dry ground the Mound City team would have won by a much larger score. The work of McHenry and Shimel, the Miller right wing men in the second half, was a pleasure to witness, and to the hard working McHenry goes the credit for the St. Louis victory. He sent in a shot during a scrimmage which caromed off Enrietta and Kratina into the net, while Purdy, the home custodian, was out of his citadel.

St. Louis won the toss and Trojanek kicked off against a light wind. After some play in midfield the Millers made tracks for the home goal, and McHenry sent in a shot from the touch line that gave Purdy some trouble.

Olympia Forces Corner Kick.

Vidano sent in a stinger to McGarry and he was forced to concede a corner that resulted in nothing. Shimel and McHenry undertook to take the ball to the other end, but F. Gomorra, playing his first game at half-back, checked them and passed the ball to Kelly, and after fanning both backs, sent the ball over the bar.

A cross from Potee resulted in a scrimmage around the home goal, but Marre failed. Play was then centered around the Miller territory and when Johnston miskicked, "Dickie" Vidano sent the ball flying into the net for the first goal of the match, 30 minutes from the start.

The game then became brimful of action. Stung by the thought of being one down, the Miller forwards dashed down the field and Purdy fisted out a beautiful cross from McHenry. Shimel missed a wonderful opportunity to equalize by shooting past from five yards out, when the goal seemed gaping wide.

Dunn's Goal Ties Score.

Shots were flying fast into the Olympia goal, the home backs being unable to clear well, and the game was put on even terms by Dunn, who, after slipping both backs, gave Purdy no chance with his shot from the 20-yard line. The half ended in a few minutes, with the ball in midfield.

The second half started with the Millers immediately setting out for the home goal, and after some neat passing by the Miller forwards, Potee forced Purdy to make a miraculous save. Billy Quinn and his co-workers in the halfback line were beginning to attract attention by the way they were breaking up play after play and feeding the forwards. Shot after shot was being sent into Purdy, but he blocked with his hands, feet and body.

Olympia seemed to come to life and Kelly worked the ball well up the field. He dodged Johnston and "Doc" Shea and passed the ball to Perch, only to see him shoot yards wide. The young Irishman again got possession of the ball and was making his way towards the goal, when he was brought down by Johnston, within the penalty area.

Vidano took the kick and missed, but two of the Millers had stepped over the penalty line before he had taken the kick and he was given another chance. This time he sent the ball into the waiting hands of McGarry.

Thelineup:

Burkhardt Jumps Over Ring Ropes, After Being Floored 11 Times and Counted Out

By John E. Wray.

JAW bones creaked and senses reeled in the ring at the Armory, last night, in a saturnalia of slugging such as seldom has been witnessed in a local boxing arena.

The main business of the evening, on the part of the principals in the three contests scheduled, was to land a bomb on the enemy's dome. As a result, they carried two men to their corners after an interval of two rounds each, while the main event of the evening terminated in the third session—a total of seven rounds of boxing.

The climax to the orgy of knock-outs came with the final event, an eight-round contest with Jack Lawler of Omaha facing Chris Burkhardt of New Orleans, who is said to fight under the name of Young Chaney.

Fight? The only fighting Burkhardt did was on the receiving end of the argument, he being the poorest excuse for a main event man shown here in some time. Opposed to the tigerish young battler from Omaha, Burkhardt did do one thing—he set a near-world's record for endurance.

Real Receiver-General.

From the beginning to the end Burkhardt took more solid blows to the jaw without losing consciousness than seemed humanly possible to endure. He was floored 11 times in all, five in the first round, four in the second and twice in the final period, the last being the coup de grace. It would have been merciful to have stopped the show in the opening period.

Eleven knockdowns in less than seven minutes almost outshines the famous endurance record of Joe Jeanette who was floored 24 times in a bout with Sam McVea in Paris, but won his fight in the forty-ninth round.

Burkhardt came here heralded as a real fighter, with "clippings to prove it." But the dope went wrong from the moment he put up his hands. He had a stance like a longshoreman, and the first minute of sparring developed the fact that he wanted Lawler to do all the leading.

Five Knockdowns Fail to End It.

Lawler obligingly accommodated. After feinting and sizing up his foe for almost a minute Lawler evidently concluded there was no danger present, and he rushed the enemy savagely. Bang, went a right hook to the jaw with the thud of a hammer, and the lard-faced Burkhardt toppled over to the floor. He arose to his knees, and took the count of eight, only to get another right as he arose—a wallop that flopped him to his haunches for a seven count.

These two slams ruined Burkhardt for the evening, and what intelligence he brought into the ring with him departed for the night. This was shown when he scrambled to his feet muttering, but utterly helpless, seemingly. He reeled away from Lawler, but the Omaha man caught up with him and, with lefts and rights, battered him to his knees near his own corner. The dazed Burkhardt—with the referee following him and counting all the time—crawled to his corner on his knees and conversed with his seconds. "He done me dirt," Burkhardt mumbled to his handler. At the count of nine, he staggered up to his feet.

Lawler rushed him frantically, and swung heavily, flooring him once more with his right. Burkhardt went down, but did not wait for the count. He arose, a pitiful spectacle. His eyes were glazed. The right side of his face was as white as though powdered, while the left, from the constant thumping of Lawler's right, was flushed as though rouged.

Burkhardt Lands Only Two or Three Blows During the Entire Struggle

Once more Lawler crushed him to the floor and again he rose staggering around trying to get away from his foe. He lashed out savagely and struck Lawler a heavy blow to the head. Lawler, angered, rushed him again but the bell rang.

The crowd, amazed at the endurance of Buckhardt, cheered him for fully half a minute. More conservative ringsiders expressed the view that the contest should be stopped.

The second round saw Burkhardt leave his corner apparently determined to try and make a fight of it. He did land a blow or two, but the flash was only momentary. Lawler floored him before the round was a minute old, but the remarkable vitality of the man refused to succumb. Burkhardt clambered to his feet and madly tried to fight back. He took a terrific lacing, being battered half around the ring before Lawler brought him low again, almost knocking him into the laps of three women seated at the ring's edge.

Crowd "Boohs" Lawler.

Burkhardt slowly regained his feet and it seemed the time to end the bout. But Referee Randall concluded there was still vitality in the battered frame and once more Lawler tore in, half knocking, half wrestling his foe to the floor. The crowd boohed him, but it was not Lawler's fault.

Up again, Burkhardt was immediately floored. He landed in a sitting posture, exactly after the manner of Jess Willard at Toledo, and, like him, sat glaring foolishly around. He even folded his arms and winked at some one in his corner. Promptly at 8 he arose, only to go down again, and once more he assumed a sitting position, attentively listening to the count. Once more he got up.

The gong ending the round intervened and again came an ovation from the crowd.

As the start of the third round approached, Burkhardt was seen to straighten up in his chair and push his seconds and towel swingers aside and glare at Lawler. At the bell he leaped to the center of the ring, as if to carry the battle, but he was driven to the floor almost immediately with a right and left to the head. Painfully he arose at the eight count and then Lawler rushed once more. A heavy left to the body and then one to the head turned Burkhardt around and sent him face to the mat, stretched full length. He was counted out.

Victim Vaults Over the Ropes.

The indomitable vitality in the man, whether native or artificial, was amazing. It was again manifested a few seconds later, when he actually vaulted over the ropes to the narrow edge of the platform and descended to the floor of the arena unaided. Here he made a hasty exit, leaping over chairs in his eagerness to gain his dressing room.

Lawler's glory is not enhanced by this fight. He beat a man who appeared to have no more boxing knowledge than many local semi-windup fighters.

Kern's Wallop Wins.

Banker Kern landed a terrific right-hander on Ora Dean's jaw, the second blow of their encounter, and cut that tall boy down to the size of the hairy bearcat of the local banking world. A stiff punch to the body in the second round still further weakened Dean and opened the way for the knockout later, which followed a series of terrific clouts to head and body. Kern punished Dean badly.

Howard Reported Ill.

Happy Howard, it was reported, arose from a sick bed to keep his engagement with Pete Macklin, and was stopped easily in the second. Happy was apparently not himself in this fight. He can do much better.

Armory Fight Results

Coach Tells How Centre College's Eleven Was Built

Charles Moran Predicts Kentucky School Will Shine on Gridiron for Ten Years at Least.

That Centre College of Danville, Ky., will remain a prominent figure in collegiate athletics for at least the next 10 years is the belief of Charles Moran, the man who directed the Centre football eleven last season and brought the school from obscurity to national prominence. Moran is now in the city umpiring the spring baseball series between the Browns and Cardinals. With yesterday's open date, he found time to chat about what he claimed to be "the greatest team of the 1919 season."

Moran based his opinion of Centre's prospects on the fact that there is now material in the school to guarantee strong athletic teams for the next four years, and letters from the alumni assure him that more potential varsity stars will be entering from their respective districts for the next few years.

Although Centre is a school of but 250 students, it is one of the oldest institutions in the West, having been founded in 1819. During this time a large alumni body has been established and it only took the work of two wide-awake "grads" to assemble the forces of the blue grass college and direct a host of young collegians to Danville. Moran insists, however, that the directing was done legitimately and that Centre College is represented by a bona fide varsity.

Moran a Strict Trainer.

When asked about his methods, the coach said that he enforced training to the letter of the law, and that it was "the eat, think, and dream football" spirit that made the Kentuckians startle the collegiate world.

"We were just one family," said Moran, "and not one man on that team ever thought of breaking a training rule. Early in the season I saw one man smoking and he turned in his suit the following day. From the time we reached the dressing room for practice until we left it in the evening, there was never a word except a football word. If a coach has such co-operation as that, he can make a football team; but the coach must enter into the spirit with his men."

Centre will have even a stronger football eleven in 1920 than it had last year. Only one man was lost through graduation, this being Van Antworth, left guard. On the other hand, two ends, one formerly from Penn. State and the other from Colorado U., will be eligible in October.

Three promising looking linemen who entered school last December will also be varsity candidates. The team probably will average about eight pounds more than in 1919, and have a year of experience as a unit. A valuable asset.

ST. LOUIS STARS FALL DOWN IN THREE EVENTS OF A. B. C. TOURNAMENT

PEORIA, Ill., April 6.—St. Louis bowlers competing in the American Bowling Congress tournament here yesterday fell down in all three events. In the two-man, Louis Krewinghaus and J. V. Dunne were the pace makers with a score of 1136, which will land them in the prize money. Dunne totaled 530 and his partner 546.

Forgey	185	162	164—501
Kohaus	204	164	226—595
Grattendieck	164	202	159—515
Totals	871	856	870—2597

All of the leaders held their places in yesterday's competition.

The highest single game of the 1920 American tournament was rolled here last night when A. Bomgraber of the Fond Du Lac (Wis.) central alleys team hit for 280. His team failed to reach a high mark and was outside the money.

World's Champions Enter Flag Race With Entire Veteran Team

Success of Cincinnati Reds, Who Already Are Pennant Race Favorites, Will Be Strictly Up to Pitching Staff—"Hod" Eller Will Be Minus His Freak Ball.

No. 12—CINCINNATI NATIONALS.

PATRICK MORAN of Fitchburg, Mass., who last season gave Cincinnati its first baseball championship since 1869, will chaperon a veteran aggregation in an attempt to repeat his success of last year. Not a single one of the recruits in the South with the club has a chance to break in as a regular. So it will be up to the 1919 tossers to keep the Reds in the running.

The same flingers will again be called upon to carry the burden. Among these is Horace "Hod" Eller, who has been shorn of his sensational "shine ball" by the major league moguls. Eller had a "shiner" in 1919 that completely baffled all opposition. Since the magnates passed the rule against this form of twirling Eller has stated that he will be just as effective without the "freak."

Other members of Moran's star flinging staff of 1919 are Harry Sallee and "Dutch" Ruether, southpaws; Jimmy Ring, Ray Fisher and Adolfo Luque, the Cuban, right-handers. In addition, the Reds' boss has Eddie Gerner and Rube Bressler, a pair of left-handers. A few rookies are striving for jobs, but they seem to have little chance of sticking.

Veteran Catchers in Line.

Ivy Wingo, former Cardinal, against right-handers and Bill Rariden, when a left-hander is laboring for the opposition, will again do the bulk of the catching. Nick Allen, who was with the club last year, will again be the third mask and pad man. A youngster named Casey is trying for a berth.

The veteran, Jake Daubert, who in 1919, enjoyed a good season and who will be entering his eleventh campaign in fast company, will again be at first, although unable to start the season April 14, because of an injury. Morris Rath is scheduled to play second; Larry Kopf, short and Capt. Heine Groh, who was one of the team's holdouts this spring, will start at the hot corner. If the quartet plays up to its 1919 standard, Moran will have no worries about the inner works.

Sam Crane, a shortstop, who was obtained from the Indianapolis club of the American Association, is Moran's first string substitute. The others are Meyer and "Goldie" Rapp, a former Cincinnati semi-professional.

Duncan Now a Fixture.

The only change in the outfield since the start of 1919 has come in left field, where Pat Duncan, purchased last summer from the Southern League and who starred in the world's series with the Chicago White Sox, will hold forth instead of Sherry Magee. Edd Roush, champion swatter of the N. L., will be in center and Earl Neale in right. Charley See, the $10,000 beauty from the International, and Lotus, a rookie, are the other meadowmen.

Picking the Reds to win the National League pennant again in 1920 is popular, but the fulfillment of such calculations is far from certain. In order to come through, the quintet of flingers, who hurled so effectively in 1919, when Ruether, Sallee, Fisher, Ring and Eller all finished among the first 20 in efficiency, must twirl just as well as they did last year.

The next article will tell about the Cleveland Indians.

SPORT SALAD

Tough Luck.

THERE was a girl in our town
Who bought an Easter bonnet
With ribbons purple, green and brown
And other colors on it.
But when she saw the rain come down,
With snowflakes intermingled,
That little maid from heels to crown
With disappointment tingled.

DOUBLE HEADER.

Owing to the postponement of the Easter parade, due to rain and snow, there will be a double-header next Sunday.

"Gen. Sibert Leaves the Army"—Head line. Where did you leave it, General? We might need it again any minute.

The man on the sand box suggests that there be a parade next Sunday of those who have refrained from buying new clothes at the present prices. Rags are royal raiment when worn for economy's sake.

Jess thinks that there is nothing like zero weather for slipping the opposition a few zeroes.

Jake Daubert was hit on the back of the hand by a pitched ball and put out of the game for a month or so. Indicating that the hand ball is as deadly as the bean ball.

APRIL FOOL!

THE North Wind doth blow
And we shall have snow,
And we've put our benny in soak.
The outlook is dark
And I rise to remark,
That spring is an April Fool joke.

TOO TRUE.

Sassafras, we are told, makes the best wooden legs. We take it that slippery elm would be the worst on account of the tendency to slip.

The net income of the United States Rubber Co. for 1919 was $21,396,099. Talk about elastic currency!

See where stolen cloth valued at $1000 was found in an auto. Must have been enough to make a suit of clothes and an extra pair of pantaloons.

VALLEY PARKS CAPTURE WOMEN'S TENPIN TITLE

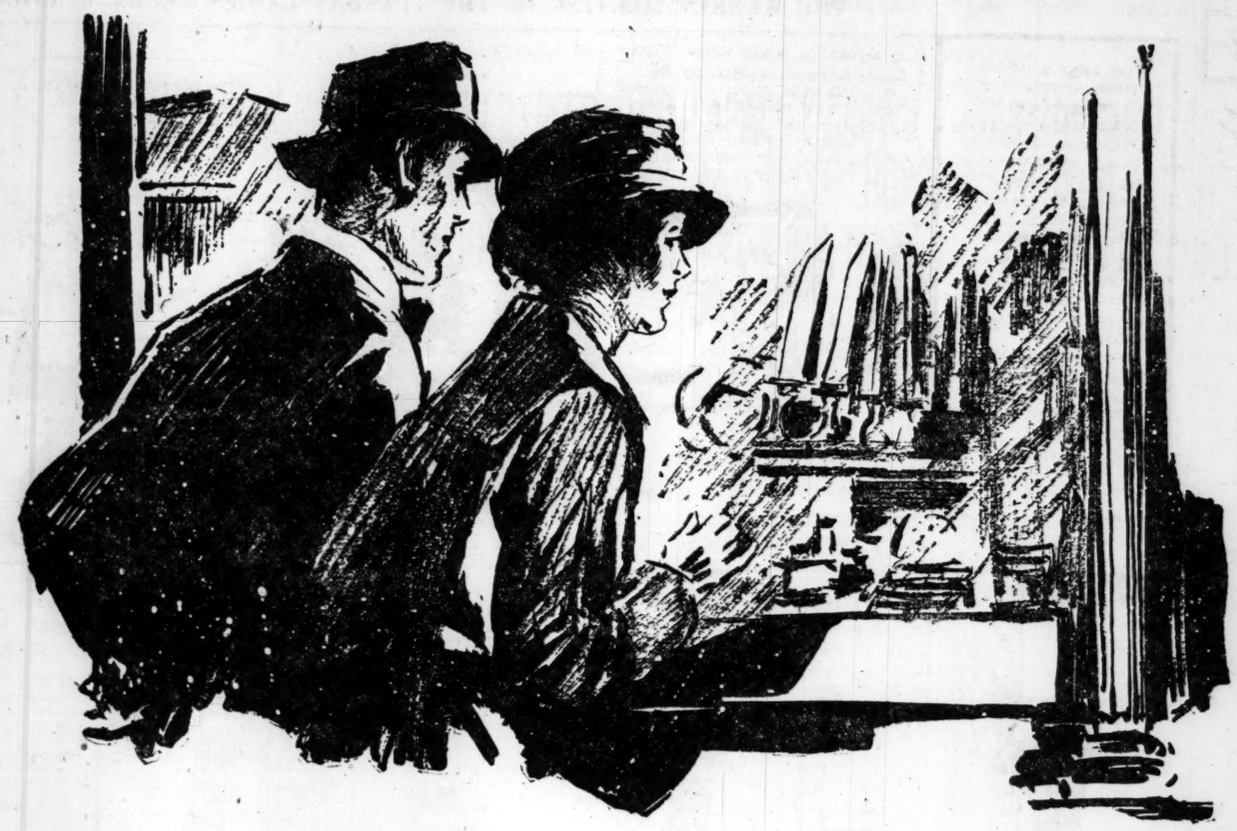

The Valley Parks, with a score of 2342, captured the team honors in the women's city bowling tournament on the Washington alleys last night. Mrs. J. A. Johnston, with 492, was the star performer. Mrs. Hill's five, with 2138, was second; Orange Crush, 2102, third; Sweeney Specials, 2000, fourth; Washingtons, 1919, fifth. Eleven teams competed.

Doubles and singles will be started this afternoon.

Chicago Nine Departs.

CHICAGO, April 6.—The University of Chicago baseball team will start tonight on its third trip to Japan. Previous trips were made in 1910 and 1915. The Ramoon teams which invaded Japan previously started at the end of the baseball season. They won 22 games without suffering a defeat.

The Tyranny of Compromise

He isn't satisfied with what all the rest of the world has found out.

He has to prove to himself that everything else is wrong before he comes to the right thing.

What does a man really want in a razor?

Twenty million men have already answered that question.

The man who shaves with anything but a Gillette is merely putting off the time when he will enjoy the utmost in shaving comfort.

Gillette dealers everywhere know this.

Right in principle, scientifically made and supplying all that a man could want in a razor.

And once he has come to it there is never any getting away.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

SHIRTSLEEVES TO SHIRTSLEEVES.

And took the milk cans to the pump, and cut the hay and oats,
And sat around the crossroads store on stormy, winter nights,
And said that lawyers all were crooks and farmers had no rights.

Old Shiftless had a son named Bill—the sort that folks call smart—
Who saved and scraped till by and by he got a little start,
And what with chattel mortgages, and banking on the side,
Was worth a hundred thousand—maybe twice that—when he died.

Bill's son was educated—fond of getting, like his dad—
And made ten times the fortune that his thrifty parent had.
His family lived in Paris, and his son—named William Third—
Used very spiffy English slang, like "Bally!" and "My Word!"

Young Smith, the lad from Paris, blew his dad's and granddad's cash,
And then came home and married when his luck had gone to smash,
He sold the farms and homestead—everything he did went wrong,
And died, played out and busted—when the baby came along.

The kid is wearing overalls; he feeds the cows and shoats,
And takes the milk cans to the pump, and cuts the hay and oats.
To him the family fortunes are nothing but a myth,
And at the cross roads grocery store they call him, Shiftless Smith.

JUST TRY IT.

How Could He Be So Heartless?

"How did you get on?"

The sweet young maiden breathed the words into her lover's manly ear as she met him at the passage.

He had been "seeing father" and she wanted to know the result.

"Oh, your father is heartless!" said the young man, indignantly. "I—I told him I could not live without you, and"——

"Yes, yes!" impatiently said the girl. "What did he say?"

"He merely offered to pay my funeral expenses."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Golf Bugs.

His father had taken him out to the golf course. That evening he seemed to be ill-at-ease.

"Willie," said his mother, "what is the matter with you? I wish you'd stop scratching yourself."

"I don't know what's the matter, but I guess I must have got some of those golf bugs on me," was Willie's reply.—Detroit Free Press.

Solving Naval Problems.

The naval class was under signal instructions. Most of them had just come back from leave, and, as a result, to some of the boys in blue the instructor's voice seemed very far away indeed. "A ship in distress," he was saying, through the room spaces, "has several methods by means of which she can make known her condition to other vessels or shore stations. Name one, Binks."

"Right," said the instructor.

"Jenks, name another."

And Daddy Took the Hint.

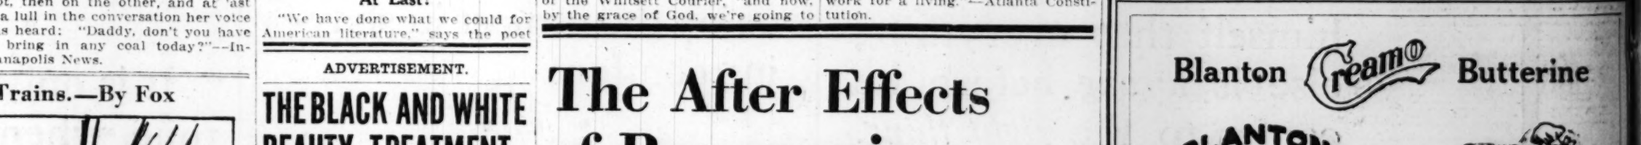

Miriam Field is not quite 9. Also, she is very polite; of that there can be no possible doubt. A favorite uncle is visiting the family and Miriam wishes him to spend all his time with her. Uncle Roger and Dad were discussing politics after dinner, a day or two ago, about the time Dad is in the habit of bringing in enough coal to last for another 24 hours. Miriam hung around her uncle, tried to catch Dad's eye, stood first on one foot, then on the other, and at 'ast at a lull in the conversation her voice was heard: "Daddy, don't you have to bring in any coal today?"—Indianapolis News.

The After Effects of Pneumonia

This is No. 2 of a series of advertisements, prepared by a competent physician, explaining how certain diseases which attack the air passages—such as Pneumonia, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Measles or even a long continued Cold—often leave these organs in an inflamed, congested state, thus affording a favorable foothold for invading germs. And how Vick's VapoRub may be of value in this condition.

Pneumonia attacks the air cells of the lungs. An inflammation is set up and matter is thrown off which causes the air cells to solidify, thus preventing the natural flow of blood thru the lungs. This "backing up" of the blood causes the heart to pump harder, just as stepping on a hose increases the water pressure, which is the reason why, during this disease, the physician watches the overburdened heart so carefully.

After recovery the lungs are filled with a mass of wreckage—the debris of the battle—which must be gotten rid of by a process known as resolution. Frequently, inflamed spots remain, congestion persists, cough hangs on, and the least exposure brings on a cold that is hard to get rid of. If neglected, such damaged air passages may easily develop serious disease of the lungs.

Such cases should always continue under a physician's care and frequent examinations should be made to see that nature is properly continuing the rebuilding process.

Nightly applications of Vick's VapoRub will aid nature in this work. Because Vicks acts locally by stimulation thru the skin to draw out the inflammation, attract the blood away from the congested spots and relieve the cough. In addition, the medicinal ingredients of Vicks are vaporized by the body heat. These vapors are breathed in all night long, thus bringing the medication to bear directly upon the inflamed areas.

Vicks should be rubbed in over the throat and chest until the skin is red—then spread on thickly and covered with hot flannel cloths. Leave the clothing loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel so the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. If the cough is annoying, swallow a small bit of Vicks the size of a pea.

Samples to new users will be sent free on request to the Vick Chemical Company, 232 Broad Street, Greensboro, N. C.
